day was discussed pro and con, resulting in the general opinion that more flowers should be produced for this day. We all time crops for Christmas and Easter, and Mothers' day must be in accord with these days.

The ladies who were fortunate in winning the prizes, fine bunches of flowers, were Mrs. B. F. Barr, Miss Mary Brenneman, Mrs. A. K. Rohrer, Mrs. L. S. Landis, Mrs. Nagel, Mrs. E. P. Hostetter, Mrs. P. S. Hostetter and Mrs. J. F. Moore, of the Rosery.

For the club's June meeting there will be an automobile run to Chester county to Pierre Dupont's gardens and conservatories. No one should miss this, as it is one of the show places of America. Florists and friends from neighboring towns are invited to join our party, and should correspond now with Secretary Albert M. Herr, R. F. D. Number 8, Lancaster.

Various Notes.

Most Lancaster county florists are members of the S. A. F. and those who are not should send their names to the club's "Every Member Win a Member" committee, Elmer J. Weaver, Harry K. Rohrer and Albert M. Herr. There will be a large delegation from Lancaster county to the Washington convention in August.

Ira H. Landis will have a fine, large cut of peonies for Memorial day, as will also B. F. Barr. Some of their earlier varieties were injured by frost, but the mid-season varieties, which are showing color, will be in fine shape.

Fine roses are being cut at W. B. Girvin's and Elmer J. Weaver's. At the latter place much additional space is being planted to Pilgrim, Columbia and Premier. Lloyd Weaver is the efficient manager of the rose section.

Charles B. Herr, Strasburg, and J. Wade Gayley, carnation specialists, are cutting stock of unsurpassed quality.

A. F. Strickler, J. R. Shriner, Thomas Fries and many others are experiencing a wonderful sale for plants and bedding stock.

Suter, Bauman & Caldwell are cutting exceptionally fine America gladioli.

T. P. Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, was a visitor last week.

L. S. Landis will have a fine cut of sweet peas for Memorial day.

Mrs. Albert M. Herr was chairman of the amateur flower show held by the Iris Club, May 25. Mrs. Herr is to be

The Market.

Those whose enjoyment of business depends on bargains have had a glorious week. Those who have to account for the flowers entrusted to their care have had a trying time. The supply of really good flowers has been in excess of the demand. The difficulty in disposing of them has been increased by the large number of poor flowers that have been coming into the market. Many of the retailers say that business has been excellent. There have been many decorations, as well as the regular everyday demand.

The supply is chiefly made up of peonies and roses. Carnations occupy third place. Peonies have been at their height. The crop is exceedingly small, owing to the frost that followed Easter, but the warm weather brought flowers into bloom so rapidly that it seems more than likely that they will be all over by Memorial day. The market has been considerably relieved by heavy shipping orders. Roses are extremely fine. The difficulty of the wholesalers consists in getting anything like value for the fancy stock. There is no demand for flowers over the medium length. The happiest solution appears to be to send fancy stock to the regular customers at something like the prices of the medium grades, rather than to use the medium and shorter grades in the transient sales. There are few orchids, a little valley and some fine outdoor sweet peas. Larkspur and callas are diminishing, but Easter lilies are in good form. The south is sending the last of the Spanish irises and some good gladioli.

Prospects for Memorial Day.

The outlook, one week in advance of the last great floral holiday of the season, is that there will be a heavy out-of-town demand for Memorial day. This opinion is based on the large sales of poppies, made of muslin, by the supply houses. These poppies are to be used as boutonnieres by the members of the American Legion and in wreaths at the cemeteries. Retailers have been somewhat embarrassed by the orders for natural poppies, which, for the sake of their reputations, they have courteously declined. The general feeling is that the late war will make Memorial day mean more to our people than it has for many years and that the use of flowers at that time will increase for the next few years.

Planting Season.

It is difficult to report correctly the planting season, because the great mass of stock used in this way does not go through the wholesale centers, but is retailed by the growers direct to the consumers, usually in small quantities. The careful survey of this scattered field has brought out a few facts. The cold weather in the beginning of May made planting this season later than usual; it is now in full swing. Much of the stock is not so fine as it was last year.

The demand for Cut Flowers during June will be largely for

This is particularly true of geraniums. Most of the stock has either been sold or is certain to be sold before Memorial day. The prices are now sufficient to compensate the growers for their work. The quantity of soft-wooded bedding plants grown and sold appears to be slowly declining. This is due to the increased use of perennials and shrubbery.

Removal of a Landmark.

William J. Young, Jr., sent out notices for the sale of his greenhouse material May 27. This sale is made necessary by the sale of his property at School lane and Pulasky street, Germantown. The place was established fifty years ago by William J. Young, Sr., who built greenhouses and opened a retail flower shop just where it stands today. Father and son have carried on the business successfully and continuously ever since and the place has been noted for the fine quality of the stock grown—chrysanthemums, Easter plants, bedding plants and specialties—and for the integrity and fair dealing of the management. William J. Young, Jr., will move with his family to Linfield, near Pottstown, Pa., where he has a farm. It is understood that he will devote some space to flowers for the wholesale market.

Various Notes.

Bertrand H. Farr has sent out invitations to a peony and iris show on his place at Wyomissing, Pa.

Pennock Bros. have a handsome Memorial day design in their window. The words, "Let Us Have Peace," are across the top in blue immortelles. Beneath the flag in blue on a white ground is, "Comrade Ulysses S. Grant. George G. Meade Post 1, Philadelphia." The design is to be placed on the general's tomb at Riverside.

The glass market is declining.

The Market.

Business the last week was quite dull and low prices were the rule in nearly all lines. There is usually a quiet spell just before Memorial day and conditions this year do not vary greatly from former years. A week hence will see quite different conditions, as everything points to a record-breaking Memorial day business. The first heat wave of the year struck New England May 21, when a minimum official temperature of 94 degrees was recorded. A continuance of the hot wave May 22 and 23 shot the market all to pieces, and the present week opened with demoralized conditions, which cooler weather alone can stabilize.

Roses have suffered from the heat wave and are not in good condition. Extremely low prices rule. Short-stemmed prices are unquotable at present. Carnations are temporarily in the doldrums, but will brace up in a day or two. Light pink varieties, like Pink Delight and Enchantress Supreme, are now poor and of almost washed out color. Ward sells well, also Laddie, but the latter is not plentiful now. Whites are in good supply, Matchless filling about the whole field.

I HAVE BEEN ASKED

"WHY DYE SWEET PEAS?"

First; there is no real yellow, apricot or burnt orange pea supplied by nature.

Second; people like these colors and shades, and buy them repeatedly, just as they do lavender, pink, etc.

Third; the greater the variety of desirable colors offered the public, the more peas the retailer sells. Try it and see.

Fourth; the cost is almost nil. One quart will dye about 2,500, or one cent per bunch of 25.

Fifth; usually florists need white or very light pink peas in quantity only occasionally, and at other times they may be dyed.

Sixth; in design work, such as the "Eastern Star," one needs yellow flowers that stand up well. At such times yellow carnations are of special service and may be made from white ones over night.

Seventh; try yellow, apricot or burnt orange peas with deep blue or purple in corsage work, etc.

Some, in making trial order, write as if they expect to be "skinned." All such are going to be agreeably surprised. If I were not sure the dye would do just as I claim, so it will bring repeat orders, I should not offer it for sale at all. I think life entirely too short for one to be anything else than "on the square." It it not practicable to offer free samples, and the dollar trial orders will not likely pay expenses while I am convincing you.

Some seem to think the flowers are dipped and the dye on the outside. We fill jelly glasses three-quarters full of the dye solution and stand stems of fresh cut peas in this in the evening, leaving them thus over night. In the morning lift them out, rinse dye off stems and stand them in fresh water as though just cut, and in a few minutes they may be bunched without staining the hands. But should any of this dye get on the hands, a little borax and water, or even soap lather, quickly takes it off.

PRICE, sufficient to make one quart, $1.00, prepaid. Six for $5.00 supply. Some nice long-stemmed forget-me-nots come in and there is an abundance of Gypsophila elegans of variable quality.

Ten weeks' stocks and double feverfew are now coming in freely and, later in the week, all will be eagerly bought at high prices. A good number of callas still come and Easter lilies have been more abundant. The small-flowered gladioli of the Peach Blossom type do not sell particularly well, but the large varieties, like America and Halley, average a good price. Cut lilac is less abundant than usual; the late cold weather seriously damaged it in New England. Some German iris, aquilegias and other outdoor flowers are seen. These include Darwin tulips and Narcissus poeticus, both of which will finish this week.

The hot wave has sent Cattleya Mossiæ along in quantity. The demand for these is not heavy. The demand for asparagus and hardy ferns is strong.

Club Meeting.

In spite of the busy season, there was an attendance of nearly 100 at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, May 17. Resolutions on the late F. C. Green, presented by W. N. Craig, were adopted by a rising vote. The club voted unanimously to hold a ladies' night June 21 and a picnic on or about July 21 in Cunningham park, East Milton. Miss M. R. Case sent a cordial invitation to club members to visit her estate any Wednesday after-Prunus tomentosa, P. triloba, of which latter he considered the single form better than the double.

Of the ornamental cherries Prunus serrulata sachalinensis, P. subhirtella, of low, spreading habit, and P. pendula, a weeping form of P. subhirtella, were the best, according to the speaker. Forsythia intermedia spectabilis, a cross between Fortunei and viridissima, was the best of that popular family. Prinsepia sinensis was a splendid shrub, while, of the early-flowering rhododendrons, R. Schlippenbachii, which needed shade, was beautiful in early May and R. poukhanense, mauve in color and drought-proof, was a fine sort. Later in the season macrophyllum, carolinianum, Vaseyi, arborescens, calendulaceum, nudiflorum, viscosum and roseum were all beautiful. Kaempferi was, however, the finest of all. These are still popularly known as azaleas, but botanists class all these deciduous azaleas as rhododendrons.

The speaker also said that Fothergilla major was a lovely shrub and Laburnum alpinum was the best and hardiest of the golden chains. Coming to ornamental crab apples, he considered Malus Arnoldiana, floribunda, Sieboldii calocarpa, Halliana Parkmanii and Ioensis (Bechtel's), as the best. Of the rose species, everyone should plant R. Hugonis, R. omeiensis, R. multiflora cathayensis and R. spinosissima altaica. The Scotch roses were especially fine. The last named was found all the way from Scotland through northern Europe and Asia as far as Vladivostok, Siberia. It was necessary to expose all rose seeds to cold to hasten germination.

Of the big lilac family the speaker specially commended Marie Legraye, Princess Alexandra, Miss Ellen Wilmott, macrostachya, Volcan, Philemon, Souvenir de L. Spaeth, Mme. Lemoine, Bleuntre, Justi, a fine single blue, and of the species pubescens, persica and rothomagensis. A lovely and sweet-scented shrub was Viburnum Carlesii and V. theiferum, V. Tchanguensis and V. hupehense were other fine sorts not much found. The finest and hardiest of the diervillas (weigelas) was venusta, pink in color. The cotoneasters were now a large family of over forty varieties. The most desirable and hardy were racemiflora, soongarica, multiflora, calocarpa, hupehensis, niteus, Dielsiana and divaricata.

Of the bush honeysuckles more people should plant Maackii podocarpa, a strong grower which fruited abundantly and late and carried foliage and fruit well into the winter, also Morrowii, amœna, Arnoldiana, Heckrottii and syringantha. Three fine little known plants were Halimodendron argenteum, Neillia sinensis and Acanthopanax ricinifolius.

Of the Philadelphus varieties everyone should plant such Lemoinei varieties as Virginale, Manteau d'Hermine and Boule d'Argent, while among the other forms the old grandiflorus, splendens, insignis and latifolius were good. Hydrangea petiolaris was fine for covering walls, boulders, etc. It was at its best in a northern exposure.

Cytisus nigricans, Deutzia hypoglauca, Indigofera amblyantha, Oxydendrum arboreum, Koelreuteria paniculata, Sophora japonica were all fine things. None of the newer spiræas at

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Fullerton, Cal.—T. B. Robertson says that while the flower business has been a bit slow since Mothers' day, it has been well made up for by an abundance of landscape work which keeps all busy. The nursery and greenhouses are attractive now. H. R. R.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Last week was a quiet one generally, although many retailers report a good deal of funeral work. Stock of all kinds was plentiful and of good quality, but bargain sales were necessary to get rid of some of it. The peddlers' wagons bore signs on carnations, "Four dozen for 35 cents," and, although the stock was such as no reputable retailer would use, yet it hurts business when such signs are seen. Roses keep up well and, while the cut is ample for all requirements, few are wasted. Cut Easter lilies are in fair demand for funeral work and there are large numbers on the market. Statice is meeting with a demand that is unprecedented in the history of the business here. Candidum lilies are shown, but are not plentiful. Gladioli, both of the hybrid gandavensis types and the dwarf or baby types, are now in considerable abundance, the price of the latter especially having taken a big drop. Each year sees less of America and more of the larger, more showy types. Shasta daisies are not up to the usual standard either for size or length of stem. Valley, orchids, sweet peas, Cecile Brunners and other corsage flowers are plentiful and prices favor the buyer. With the passing of the smaller bulbous stock, there is a better demand for other small flowers in the line of daisies, cornflowers, stocks and similar kinds. Really good plumosus, fit for long-distance shipping, is not seen everywhere, but there is plenty of second-grade stock that is good enough for rough use. Other greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

At Wright's Flower Shop the usual fine display of water lilies is being made. These came mostly from the veteran Hollywood grower, C. Sturtevant, originally from the east and a pioneer water lily grower in this country. There are many wonderful varieties which attract a great deal of attention at this busy store every summer.

At the Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop, the Mexican "Cape d'Or," Solandra guttata, is being shown. While not commercially of value, this flower always attracts a good deal of attention when exhibited. Its large yellow blossoms are distinct and showy. Harry Morgan has returned to this store, his stay in San Francisco being short. He has purchased a home at 1825 West Forty-third street and has decided to stay in Los Angeles. Among the fine stock shown here this week are some excellent Lilium candidum.

The writer happened to be in the Broadway Florist's store early in the week, when the daily supply of roses was being sorted, and it looked more like the supply for a wholesaler or market than for a retailer. Hundreds of fine flowers of every variety were included. D. Stathatos says he is well pleased with the way business keeps up, especially in funeral work.

Adam Kaspar, head shipper for the E. C. Amling Co., has decided to leave for the middle west early next month and hopes to stay until about September. He expects to visit Salt Lake City, Kansas City, Denver and Chicago en route. At the store a considerable force is kept busy making up wreaths and bouquets of statice and strawflowers, but at that it is found difficult to keep up with the big shipping demand.

July 1, Lichtenberg's will open a new store in the Arnold building, at 913 West Seventh street. A few years ago it would have seemed like going out in the woods to open in this location, but Seventh street has developed more rapidly than any other street west of Broadway and is rapidly becoming one of the busiest spots in the city.

Fred Howard and a party of friends have left for a fishing trip up the Sespe. A week at the hot springs is also planned. F. Hooper, of the Howard & Smith staff, was in the party and, as he has not been in the best of health, the vacation will be of great benefit to him.

Some attractively made up shields along with other work were noted at the Athletic Club Florist store.

A large business has been developed by Albert Goldenson, mailing bouquets of strawflowers and statice. Large loads leave the store several times daily.

C. J. Groen has been successful this season with baby gladioli at his new grounds north of the Whittier road. He is figuring on adding two new greenhouses 60x100 feet to his range at Montebello.

The growers of W. Armacost & Co. have struck it right again for Memorial day, a splendid cut of long-stemmed roses coming in just on time, and, what

SPOKANE FLORISTS ORGANIZE.

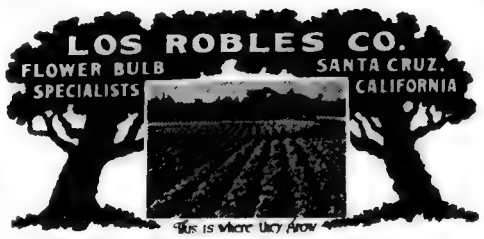
If the early omens of the trip of J. F. Ammann and H. V. Swenson are to hold good, they will have a successful tour, for the meeting at Spokane, Wash., held Wednesday, May 18, was a big success.

In the afternoon there was a meeting of the Advertising Club of Spokane, at the Davenport hotel. The florists were in charge. The decorations were superb. The principal speakers were, of course, Mr. Ammann and Mr. Swenson. While the song, "Say It with Flowers," was sung, the audience was showered with flowers by girls stationed in the balcony. The meeting was an enthusiastic one and gave the florists a big boost.

In the evening there was a meeting of the florists. A committee to make up an advertising board was elected as follows: H. J. Lozier, chairman; John Duncan, secretary and treasurer; C. J. Kipp, E. S. Eugene, F. R. McCormick, A. Rahn, Walter Peters and H. Reimers, as members.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.



The present market is a buyers' market, good flowers being plentiful, especially roses, which are coming in heavily and are of excellent quality. Outdoor roses are now in all their glory in this section of California. Sudden changes of weather helped to boost prices for Mothers' day, but it looks now as if Memorial day would find good stocks in the market. In addition to roses, a wide variety of flowers can be found, including irises, peonies, gladioli, ranunculi, sweet peas, snapdragons, hawthorns and green strawflowers. Good lilies of the valley, gardenias and orchids are on the market.

sources of their city, were surprised to learn of the magnitude of the flower industry from an article written by Angelo Rossi, at the request of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce. His article was published, a few days ago, in Business, the organ of the Chamber of Commerce, a live weekly paper.

George Beban, the actor, is a native of San Francisco, so the Retail Florists' Association resolved to honor him on two accounts, as a fellow citizen and as an artist. The scene of his successful play, "The Sign of the Rose," is laid in a florist's store. When Mr. Beban arrived, a few days ago, he was met by a committee from the association, bearing a big basket of roses. The members of the committee were Fred Bertrand, of the Palace Hotel Flower Shop, who went to school with Mr. Beban, and B. M. Joseph. Every night the downtown florists have supplied flowers for Mr. Beban's stage shop, and one enthusiastic Mission florist designed a huge rose piece. An association luncheon was tendered Mr. Beban at the Palace, those present including Messrs. Podesta and Baldocchi, P. Matraia, B. M. Joseph and Mrs. Joseph, Gilroy Brown, of Brown & Kennedy; F. T. Schlotzhauer, and Albert O. Stein, who was toastmaster. The decorations, by Bertrand, were roses. Mr. Beban, in a speech, confided the news that the scene of his forthcoming play will be laid in a florist's store. On behalf of those present, Mr. Stein presented Mr. Beban with a beautiful rose scarf pin.

James A. Brown, of Brown's Bulb Ranch, Capitola, is in the city with Mrs. Brown, en route from a fishing trip in Humboldt county.

Frank Roach, of the Lynch Nursery, was in town May 18 and said that there is promise of an excellent chrysanthemum crop on the Peninsula.

J. A. Axell recently spent a day motoring to the various nurseries around Colma and the result of his inquiries led him to state that there is supply enough for Memorial day, though he fears that the present crop of peonies may be gone by then.

F. C. Jaeger & Son are surprised at the amount of wholesale business transacted for Mothers' day, since they made effort only for the retail end for that occasion. There are twenty-five employees in the two stores.

Frank D. Pelicano is sufficiently recovered from his recent illness to spend part of his time at the store of Pelicano, Rossi & Co.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has already many orders for Memorial day strawflowers.

Domoto Bros. have had a fine display of potted white rhododendrons.

Enomoto & Co. say that, despite the heavy orders already booked for strawflowers, they will be able to fill all orders for Memorial day.

C. Kooyman & Co. have a number of new designs in Memorial day wreaths.

The Art Floral Co. has a window of striking baskets.

Orders for June wedding decorations are already coming in briskly to Podesta & Baldocchi. Victor L. Podesta said: "Three of our own men in the store are going to get married, which looks as though business is good."

Joseph's has a window, arranged by G. P. Wagner, in which the flowers match in color the bright plumage of Australian finches in an aviary. The crimson of the birds' heads is carried out in Hadley roses; the blue, in a mass of delphiniums.

Table decorations have been keeping the force of Albert O. Stein busy. In spite of the orders for June wedding decorations, members of the staff will begin their vacations within a few weeks.

The three stores of the Thomas Floral Co. were kept busy with decorations for the reception at the Fairmount hotel and tributes to Archbishop Meletios Mitraxakis, of the Greek-Russian church, who recently arrived.

F. Giovannoni, the Central Florist, 501 Columbia avenue, says the Italian quarter loyally kept Mothers' day, with numerous orders for flowers.

Mrs. Mary Ansboro, proprietor of the store at 894 Powell street and of the Royal, on Polk street, finds that the apartment house district is keeping up its demands for cut flowers.

General and Mrs. A. J. Gooch, of Darbee's, have returned from an automobile trip to the Russian river, passing through what they called "Roseland" because of the masses of roses on every hand. Mr. and Mrs. Darbee are leaving shortly for a long automobile trip.

Mr. Cut Flower Grower! Plant Fraser's Strain, they are first in size and otherwise.

CALENDULA King of Kings (Fraser's Production)

We believe this strain of Calendula has a great future before it. A Golden progeny of the famous Double Orange King. Color: Dazzling orange. The flowers are larger and the blue-black disk smaller, with broad overlaid petals. Habit: 2 feet, with fine erect heads and stiff stems, and for these reasons will be in great demand for the flower market. Trade pkt., $1.00; Ounce, $2.50.

NEW MYOSOTIS President Harding Blue: (Fraser's Introduction) Winter-flowering.

This new Winter-flowering Myosotis (Forget-me-not) is the result of a carefully thought-out cross, said by some experts to surpass any other strain yet offered. Color: Harding Blue. Habit: Bold and branching, forming open bushes from 18 to 20 inches high and of equal diameter, extra vigorous sprays of bloom last long as cut flowers. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

COSMOS Extra Early Single Dahlia-Flowered (Fraser's Selection)

A very fine strain, the result of many years' careful selection. Its points for earliness, size, color and productiveness are good all round. Height: 4 feet, with flowers of splendid substance, resembling giant single Dahlia flowers and stiff stems, unusual in the older varieties. The most profitable cutting cosmos in cultivation. We are offering 2 separate colors: Dahlia White, Dahlia Pink, Dahlia Mixed. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

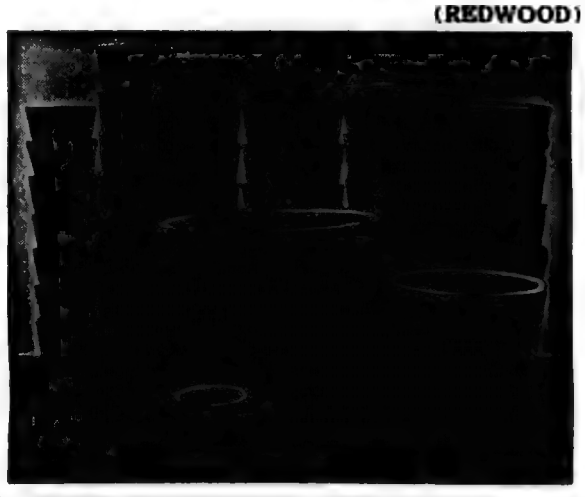
the public has been placing its Memorial day orders early this year. Apparently the trade will be extremely heavy. —— M. M.

A company to be known as the Growers' Floral Co. has been chartered to carry on a general business. The capital stock is $10,000. One hundred shares will be sold at $100 each.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Quieter business was the rule in nearly every trade division last week, but, at the same time, there is no real complaint among the florists over the situation. Funeral work kept up nearer to normal than any other division, and stock deliveries have been enough lighter so that dealers were not forced to accept any large carry-overs of stock.



Outside shipments are still limited almost entirely to California iris, the usual ferns, a few carnations and some roses on special orders. Oregon growers have practically stopped sending in carnations. There are still some fine potted tulips and good examples of the late cut varieties to be seen, but it will be hardly more than a matter of days before this item will be out. Lilac is another flower which is still plentiful, but which does not promise to be offered for any length of time.

Among the short-stemmed, inter-season flowers which are popular with buyers are narcissi, calendulas and marguerites. The longer-stemmed stock presents hardly any novelties, gladioli still being scarce. The cut of snapdragon is all that could be asked at this time.

A more plentiful delivery of valley is noted, and sweet peas show a steady improvement. There has been a falling off in the cut of orchids, but a similar condition was noted in the demand, so that this created no shortage. Carnations are plentiful in white and pink, but the trade could handle some good red stock without difficulty.

Columbia is probably the best rose coming to hand at this time, with Russell more plentiful, and real deliveries of Ulrich Brunners due to start within two weeks. Ophelia is up to standard, while Butterfly is plentiful. Baby roses have been out of the market for several days. Local violas and cut pansies have been used freely in corsage work to good effect.

Bedding stock has been a fast moving item and promises to continue so. Practically everything which can be included under this classification is selling well, with a real shortage to report on Martha Washington geraniums.

The following committee was in charge of the event: Gene Sandahl, of the Burdett Co.; Palermo F. Rosaia, of Rosaia Bros.; David Jones, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, and William Holmes, of the Hollywood Gardens, for the retailers; and William Desmond, Thomas Wylie, Frank Chervenka, of the Woodlawn Park Floral Co., and C. A deal which involves a greater sum than any other business transaction in floral circles of the Pacific northwest and, probably, for the entire Pacific coast, has been closed by the Woodlawn Flower Shop for a lease on new quarters at a consideration of $300,000. For a period starting in February of next year, the Woodlawn Flower Shop will have possession for ten years of the store at Second avenue and Union street, a half block south of its present location, and will be in a position greatly to enlarge its quarters. This marks a further upward step in the progress of this shop, which Harry Crouch started in 1911 as a market stall. A year later quarters were taken in the Clemmer Theater building, and in 1917 the business had grown so that the present location had to be secured. The corner location assures better opportunity to display flowers and is considered one of the best corners in Seattle for a retail establishment, since on two of the opposite corners are large department stores. Generally maintained business, especially in funeral work, was noted at this shop last week.

General satisfaction is expressed among nurserymen and florists over the appointment of R. C. Chapman to the position of city superintendent of parks. Mr. Chapman had previously been handling school gardening work for the city.

At the latest meeting of the Seattle Horticultural Association, held in the city council chambers, two papers were read. One was by Gene Sandahl, of the Burdett Co., on "Making and Care of Lawns," and the other was on "Bulbous Bedding Plants," by Howard Andrews, a local landscape gardener.

L. W. McCoy made a special showing of potted fuchsias in the windows of his store and found that these readily attracted buyers' interest. The stock of roses being delivered is registering a steady improvement.

The first of the local iris seen here this season was grown by A. B. Matthiesen and was shown by Kenney's Home of Flowers. Coloring and strength of stem ranked up to anything seen as yet. William Goldsbary, of this shop, has returned from a business trip to Spokane, where he found general business conditions satisfactory.

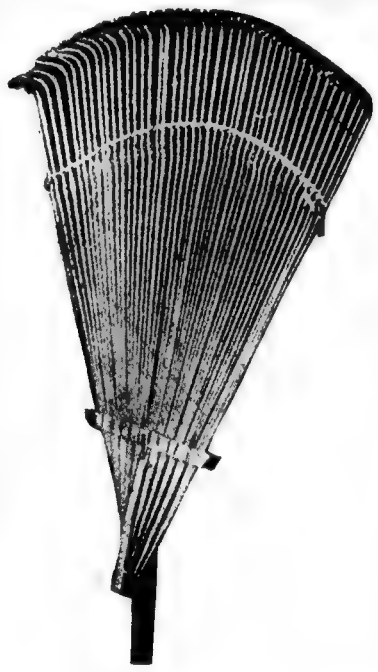
The Hollywood Gardens have been getting successful results from the use of long baskets, containing tulips, snapdragons, calendulas and lilacs. They are getting in some fine long-stemmed flowers from their own greenhouses. Dr. Walter A. Moore is moving his family to the Country Club, on Bainbridge island, for the summer.

"This year's Mothers' day sales total was one of the best proofs florists could ask of the value of advertising, as it affects their business," said William Holmes, of the Hollywood Gardens. "It was only a few years back that the florists started their advertising to encourage the use of bright-colored flowers on this day, and previous to that time the demand had been entirely for white blooms, principally carnations. Effort to eliminate the stock troubles thus caused was the reason for this move in flower advertising, and this year our shop found itself in the situation of having more than enough white flowers, while the colored items were sold out early."

The Pinehurst Floral Co. reports a nice general business and has been featuring some fine deep pink peonies. Small novelty baskets have been popular items with buyers of late. Albert Ramage, of this shop, has been confined to his home for a few days by an infection of the finger.

R. G. Slicker, northwest representative of A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, is away from Seattle on a trip covering western Washington and Oregon. He will call on the trade in Portland, Salem, Vancouver, Aberdeen and other centers.

C. H. Benson is sending in some of the best sweet peas coming to hand at this time; the color is especially good.



H. L. Collier, assistant city treasurer and president of the Seattle Rose Society, has been devoting a part of his office to the display of flowers each day and has been the direct means of securing further newspaper publicity on the value of cut flowers in business men's offices. Among the flowers shown was a Pride of Haarlem tulip carrying a stem thirty-five inches in length.

Rosaia Bros. are showing the last of their tulips and have several novelties. Louis XIV and Massachusetts are among the newer of these; the color combination in the former draws especial comment. Minor changes are being made in the office arrangement at this store. At the greenhouses, propagation of poinsettias is already under way and last year's plantings will be practically doubled. George Rosaia, accompanied by his family and Gino Desidiri, made the trip to Two Rivers over the week-end.

Henry Morgan had the misfortune to wrench his back last week and has been unable to bring his stock in to the trade this week. However, his condition is reported as not serious.

Carl Melby, of Melby's Flower Shop, showed a novelty crossed tulip during last week, grown by Mr. Newell, the tips of each petal being red, backed by a pure white. Difficulty in getting fine bedding stock to care for the late rush is reported.

Felix Rosaia has been showing some of the best potted calceolarias coming into the market. He has also been featuring late narcissi. H. M.

The Market.

Stock was more plentiful last week and, because of the cool weather, was of fine quality. Peonies are arriving in good supply and are of fairly good quality. There should be a good supply of this most useful flower for Memorial day. At this writing, it would look as though, in spite of the fact that all outdoor stock is early this year, there will be a good supply for Memorial day. Wild laurel, which is often a big help for this day, seems now to be at its height; in fact, everything outdoors is from one to two weeks early and there is a short crop of everything.

There is no special preparation made by the growers for Memorial day, for, as a usual thing, there is plenty of shrubbery and outdoor stock to be had; this is just the quality of stock that is most in demand. This is going to be short, but, as indoor stock is holding up well, the outlook is that there will be plenty to be had. Prices may be a little higher, but, as this has been an unusual spring season, we shall have to meet the situation as best we can. Anything will be better than the conditions the trade was obliged to meet on Mothers' day.

Roses are holding up splendidly and are in good supply. Some of the long-stemmed qualities are as good as they were all winter; the short-stemmed grades, for which there is a strong demand for funeral work, are scarce, and the long-stemmed grades have to be used. Carnations are holding their own remarkably well and there is a good demand for them. Cheaper stock cannot be had; so they have to be used

Looking Hard At Your Business

The other day I was talking to Charlie Cash, the fellow who cleaned up a Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars last year, selling nuts.

Ten years ago he was pounding a typewriter at Fifty Dollars a month.

"How in the world did you do it, Charlie?" I asked.
"Have you got a corner on the nut market?"
"Well, I should say not," says Charlie, "and I don't want it. As a matter of fact I help every fellow I know, who is in the business. They come around here every day looking at my windows to see how I do it. I invite 'em in, show 'em round and then I tell 'em if they'll just go back and look at their own shops and business half as hard as they looked at mine, they're made!

"When a fellow looks hard enough at his business, then other people will look at it too, and the cash register will begin to work in proportion."

Which made me think that we florists might do some looking at our own businesses in a way to match Charlie's success.

for funeral work. Sweet peas are not so plentiful; the indoor crop is near the end; the first outdoor stock made its appearance last week, so it will not be long until there will be plenty of these to be had. Smilax is not to be obtained, but asparagus can be had in any quantity desired.

Home Garden Contest.

Never has there been such a heavy enrollment in the Home Garden contest conducted by the Women's Civic League. The Florists' Club, at its last meeting, voted a $2.50 prize for each of the twenty-eight wards of the city. The Evening Sun is also offering prizes. The club, at its next meeting, will appoint a committee to award the prizes. Those who acted on a like committee last year told me they had their eyes opened, for they found flowers in the most unlikely places.

To give an idea of the magnitude of this work, there was sold at the club's booth at the Flower Mart, May 13, $800 worth of small bedding plants. There were fully a dozen other booths from which plants could be procured.

The idea of the Women's Civic League is to educate the public to have more flowers about the home. There is a large foreign population in our city, as there is in every seaport city in the country, and, to use the words of one of the members of the league: "These people land in our city; the majority of them get no farther. For our own protection, if for nothing else, they must be Americanized. In many cases, they are the scum of every nation in Europe; if they have no relatives here, they soon find some of their own nationality. Our idea is for the new arrivals to find their friends or countrymen living in decent surroundings; get them to take an interest in their back yards, for the small prizes that are offered. They do not look upon these prizes as small. The effect is soon noted in the home."

Another thing these ladies are doing is to interest the school children of the city in growing flowers. This is done through window boxes in the schools; the rivalry in this is becoming greater each year. In some of the schools, I am told, growing flowers has almost become a part of the curriculum.

I have heard some adverse criticism of the Flower Mart. The question has been asked, "Why is it held and what is done with the profits?" Well, in answer to the first question, I have been told that part of the scheme is to educate these people to buy their plants intelligently. The members of the home garden committee are going about the city all the time; they get to know these people, many of whom cannot speak our language. These people have confidence in them and they are helped with their purchases at the Flower Mart by them. Now as to the profits, I thought it rather an impertinent question to ask. But, when we consider the scope of the league, it must take a good bit to run it. I don't think it is of so much concern what is done with the profits as that these ladies are teaching the citizens of our city to "Say It with Flowers."

On the York Road.

It is worth a trip at this time to go out to the Towson Nurseries. Mr. Price has built up a nursery business there in a few years that is one of the show places about Baltimore. It is a beautiful run in your car on the York road out to the Normal School; the nurseries are directly opposite. You will think you are in a well kept park instead of

The Market.

A considerable change in the market took place last week. For many months prior to this time, each day found the wholesale houses practically cleaned up. However, during the last week, stock has been more plentiful and, for this reason, there is plenty in the hands of the wholesaler each night.

Peonies made their first appearance in the market last week and they are coming along in large quantities. Prices have been exceptionally good. Some good varieties of peonies are being received and the quality has been exceptionally good. Carnations are still short of the demand and it is still necessary for the wholesaler to divide the production among the retail customers. Roses have been exceptionally plentiful and, in most cases, ample enough to take care of the demand. The varieties on the market last week included Premier, Russell, Columbia, Ophelia, Sunburst, Crusader and White Killarney. American Beauties were also plentiful and were being offered at reduced prices in order to move the supply, as the demand was only normal. Orchids were also plentiful and moved out fairly well. Yellow daisies of a fine quality are being offered and are bringing good prices. Some narcissi are being received on the market and are moving well. The supply of sweet peas continues to be good, although, during last week, the demand was light and sweet peas were moving at only fair prices.

Judging by the weather during last week, flowers should be plentiful for Memorial day; in fact, it is the hope of the wholesaler that peonies will be received in this market in large quantities, and they will be, provided the weather keeps as warm this week as it was last week. The supply departments in the wholesale houses have shown some activity, as the retailers are making preparations for the Memorial day business. A large demand for decorated wreaths has taken place this year, also for the red poppy, which has been adopted by the American Legion posts. From all indications, Memorial day business this year should surpass any other.

Various Notes.

The local wholesale market last week had a different appearance from the previous week. Stock of any kind in season became more plentiful as the week advanced and prices maintained the early part did not hold up toward the end of the week.

The retailers say that the week following Mothers' day, business slumped considerably and that only funeral work, which was plentiful, held the market up. Some retailers bought sparingly, but the heavy shipping orders for cut stock from outside points cleared the market nicely.

There was a large supply of first-class roses consigned to this market daily during the week. This supply consisted of Premier, Columbia, Russell, Milady, Sunburst and White Killarney. Carnations have been somewhat off crop since the heavy cut for Mothers' day and hold up well in price, as the stock coming in at present is of extra fine quality and the demand clears them daily. There is, at present, a heavy crop of sweet peas, one of the largest of the season, and, in order to dispose of it, prices had to suffer somewhat, specially in large lots. Easter lilies and callas are in demand and the market is not overstocked at present. Gladioli clear every day and will until the outdoor stock is ready to cut. Pendleton, King, Chicago White and America are fine in color. Peonies are beginning to come in heavily and there will be plenty for all demands for Memorial day, as the local cut is beginning to arrive.

Publicity Meeting.

The florists' publicity committee held its regular monthly meeting May 18, at publicity headquarters.

Chairman Bourdet called the meeting to order, with seven of the eleven members present. This being the last official meeting of this committee, the year's business transactions were gone over and, as the Florists' Club asked them to hold over for a month longer, the members decided to hold over during the month of June. The financial statements, as presented by the secretary, showed that the committee was in a position to appropriate a sum of money to be used for Memorial day advertisements, and the advertising committee has been given full power to place attractive Memorial day advertisements in the daily papers.

Chairman Bourdet asked the members to come prepared to act and sub-

Cape jasmine is arriving in abundance from Texas. Calendulas, delphiniums, snapdragons, daisies and candytuft are selling well and will be in great demand for Memorial day business. There are plenty of excellent greens to be had, especially asparagus and extra-long smilax. New flat ferns are arriving in fancy and daggers.

The shipping of florists' supplies for Memorial day has greatly increased this year at the establishments of C. A. Kuehn, Windler Wholesale Floral Co. and George H. Angermueller Co., which were kept busy supplying the big demand. At the store of H. G. Berning, advance orders for the shipping of cut flowers to outside points were larger than ever.

Al Gumz, of Windler's Wholesale Floral Co., was "Who's Who" in the St. Louis wholesale market by wearing the first straw hat of the season, while the other member of the firm, Frank Windler, celebrated his thirty-first birthday May 18.

The Market.

Business continues good. There has been a steady demand for cut flowers, while a large number of orders for wreaths were placed last week. Owing to warmer weather the last two or three days, bedding stock has opened and a great many orders are being taken for shrubbery. Porch boxes, baskets and hanging plants are in demand, while bulbs and garden plants are selling well.

There is every indication that Memorial day business will be heavy. To the florists' satisfaction, the peony crop will be in good shape and this will help considerably, as at first the cut flower market looked as though there would be but a slim supply of flowers. Flowering shrubs are coming on the market. Outdoor bulbous stock is practically gone. The good weather has brought the supply of roses up quite heavily and the demand at present is not large enough to take care of all stock. The street men are disposing of a good quantity of roses and other accumulated stock. Lilacs are in profusion and the later varieties are good. Sweet peas are in pretty good supply and move well at 60 cents to $1.50 per hundred. Valley is in excellent shape, but the demand is not large, owing to large quantities growing outside. Orchids are in good supply, but the demand is small. Some fine gypsophila is seen and sells well. There was a heavy supply of carnations last week, which were of good quality even though they were smaller. Some wonderfully good double white German stocks arrive occasionally and move quickly. Good grade blue delphinium is seen and the demand is good. Snapdragons in several shades are seen and quickly disposed of. Large supplies of yellow daisies arrived throughout the week and sold fairly well. Good mignonette is seen. Calla lilies are in fair supply and these have a good demand. Forget-me-nots are in good supply.

The market is well supplied with all kinds of greens.

there are just about enough to go around.

A good business is being done in tulips, potted marguerites and boxwood trees. Some florists are handling bedding stock and are doing a good trade. Seeds are selling well and there has been a big demand for rose bushes this year.

It looks as if there would be a good demand for wedding flowers, judging by the inquiries that are being received. There is a good demand for flowers for the various graduating exercises at the universities and hospitals. Nearly all the florists are sharing in this trade, which is fairly heavy this year.

Various Notes.

Some of the stores have had fine window displays of Darwin and parrot tulips, marguerites, irises, etc. Dunlop's, Ltd., had the big window filled with apple blossoms. This was much and favorably commented upon.

The regular meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association was held Monday night, May 16, with F. D. Clark, president, in the chair. A list of points by which plants will be judged was drawn up and ordered to be printed. H. G. Dillemuth gave an outline of the F. T. D. convention and the president was instructed to get in touch with Mr. Dillemuth and coöperate with him in arranging entertainment. There was a good exhibition of plants, all being in the prize class. The premier exhibit consisted of Darwin tulips of immense size.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address all approached Van Houttei in all-around qualities.

Seen at Framingham.

At the range of William R. Nicholson, Framingham, a house of hybrid delphiniums has been a grand sight of late. Many of the finest are year-old seedlings, some in boxes and others planted directly out in the beds. Spikes six to seven feet in height are common and there are some beautiful colors. The finest spikes made $6 to $8 per dozen at wholesale. None of D. Belladonna is grown, all being hybrids of D. formosum, and the house of these is the finest I have ever seen. Mr. Nicholson plans to continue the indoor forcing of these until others enter the field and render their culture unprofitable, compelling him to take up something else. Another plant grown in quantity here, mostly in flats or in benches containing little soil, is Gypsophila elegans. Of this numerous batches are grown which carry a succession of flowers until early July. Large daily shipments are made to Rochester, N. Y., and other points.

A fine myosotis is grown here, carrying stems up to eighteen inches or more in length, dark blue in color, and this is in great demand. Double feverfew is not grown now as largely as in former years, but wonderful mignonette is produced under glass and antirrhinums are another specialty. Sweet peas ten to twelve feet in height were still carrying a wealth of long-stemmed flowers. Many thousands of chrysanthemums were planted out or were in flats or cutting benches. Of these about seventy varieties are grown and many new ones are tried out each season. Pompons, singles and anemones are given special attention.

One or two houses still contained Ward, Washburn and other carnations in good crop. All young stock was in the field and looking well. About a year ago a terrific hail storm raised havoc here and broke much glass. Marks of the hailstones are still to be seen on trees and shrubs.

William Nicholson, Sr., retired from active business a few years ago, but much of his time is taken up in a large and well kept garden and in caring for a flock of Leghorn and Barred Rock poultry. In the garden, neatness and good culture rule. Here are to be seen numerous clumps or rows of such lilies as Henryi, regale, Sargentiæ, etc., mostly grown from seed; peonies; larkspurs, and many other hardy plants, as well as the newest and best varieties of small fruits and vegetables, all showing that they are in good soil and receiving the best of care from their owner.

At J. T. Butterworth's a large batch of several hundreds of miltonias are now a wonderful sight. As many as twelve spikes, carrying seven to nine flowers each, are seen in 5-inch pots and every plant is the picture of health.

DURO PAPER PRODUCTS CO., 180 N. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO

Hundreds of flowers and buds of Cattleya Mossiæ remain, the variety of outstanding merit being the magnificent gold-medal variety, Mrs. J. T. Butterworth, unbeatable as a Mossiæ, marvelous in size and coloring. Pure white cattleyas and many hybrids were noted in flower.

Splendid batches of C. Trianæ, labiata, Percivaliana, gigas and other varieties, all in vigorous health, were noted. There are plants here 40 years or more old, still in vigorous health, and each year 500 or 1,000 divisions are taken and grown on, rendering the buying of imported stock needless. If all growers cared for their cattleyas as intelligently as Mr. Butterworth, there would be no talk of cattleyas running out and deteriorating.

Cypripediums, vandas, dendrobiums, odontoglossums, cymbidiums, lælias, phalænopsis and other orchid genera are all equally well done and in rugged health.

Various Notes.

Memorial day and its prospects are about the sole topics in trade circles at present. There will undoubtedly be heavier sales of cut flowers and artificial wreaths than ever before. The number of the latter offered for sale is tremendous, but so great is the demand that a week before the great floral festival some are fearful that they cannot fill their orders, which, in response to well placed newspaper advertisements, are pouring in from all parts of New England. A continuance of the present torrid wave will benefit the artificial and work serious harm to natural flowers, as it did in 1914. Good crops of stocks, feverfew, candytuft, snapdragons and gladioli are available under glass, while outdoors it looks as if part of the crop of herbaceous peonies will be open. Lilacs are passing; so is that popular shrub Spiræa Van Houttei, but rhododendrons and azaleas of the calendulacea type, deutzias, pyrethrums, columbines and other open-air flowers will be in season. The peony crop is a splendid one. Up to May 23 all we had was the old officinalis and supplies from south of us.

One of the most interesting items of trade news last week was that Anderson Bros., of Woburn, had taken over and would operate the Waban Rose Conservatories. There are three brothers in the firm and they now have quite a large range in Woburn growing sweet peas, chrysanthemums, calendulas and a large variety of miscellaneous stock. They may continue to grow roses in the newer houses at Natick, but of this more anon.

There should be a large and interesting show of spring flowers at Horticultural hall, May 28 and 29. Miss M. R. Case has added a number of additional

In looking over retailers' displays for the Memorial day trade, one is struck by the fact that practically all have gone into the artificial wreath business, Carbone being a notable exception, though there are one or two others filling orders for such stock, but declining to carry them. The retailers find there is more money in the artificial end of the business, no matter if such creations lack sentiment.

Michigan Cut Flower Exchange

1452 RANDOLPH STREET DETROIT, MICH.

The annual show of rhododendrons, azaleas and hardy iris will be held at Horticultural hall, June 4 and 5. These dates will be too late for iris, most of which are now in flower, but many peonies will be in season. The dates, June 18 and 19, for the show of the American Peony Society, is too late. The season has been so precarious that it has been hard to arrange dates.

The Houghton-Gorney Co. had the decorations at Unity House, Boston, for the annual convention of the American Unitarian Association, Laymen's League and kindred Unitarian bodies.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The Newport Horticultural Society is preparing for an unusually busy year, with several exhibitions to be staged between now and winter. The first exhibition will be held at Music hall on the fourth Thursday in June, and it is evident from the prospectus that the show will be somewhat different from that of last year, as a great many novelties are planned. It will be a one-day exhibition, admission to the public being free. Richard Gardner will have charge of the staging. Sweet peas, roses and carnations will be the chief features.

UTICA, N. Y.

The Utica Floral Co. has recently installed a large modern display refrigerator in its Genesee street store. The slogan "Say It with Flowers" is attractively worked in on a chipped mirror, running the full length of the refrigerator. The A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, had the contract. In the rear of the store, a balcony of artistic design has been built, where the bookkeeping department of the firm is now located. The entire store is large, roomy and handsomely equipped.

John and Basil Brown, owners of the store, say that Mothers' day business was by far the biggest the firm has ever experienced.

Lockport, Ill.—Hal H. Gaines, who operates a department store in Lockport, is starting a department for handling plants, bulbs ar l shrubs.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. B. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

L. W. WHEELER, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Cal., was a visitor in Chicago last week.

CHARLES DICKINSON, retired head of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, was born May 28, 1858.

RETAIL seedsmen have been handicapped by a most abnormal and vagarious season and by a general tendency to economize by curtailing advertising.

PETER HOLLENBACH, Chicago, celebrates his seventy-first birthday this week. He was born May 26, 1871. Mr. Hollenbach is one of the old school of seedsmen. He never has advertised and is rather proud of it.

SEEDSMEN are busy making out their schedules for attending the various seed conventions. With the meeting at Memphis, two conventions at St. Louis and various other district meetings, there are several trips to figure on for June.

THE disposition to withhold contracts from the seed growers is disturbing, not only to the growers themselves, but to dealers who fear surpluses in some lines and shortages in others through the present inability to judge the needed quantities.

PRESENT officers of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association, which will meet at Des Moines June 1, are: President, C. G. Ouren, of the Ouren Seed Co., Council Bluffs; vice-president, W. H. Talbot, of Osceola; secretary, A. M. Eldridge, of the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, and treasurer, John T. Hamilton, of Cedar Rapids.

CLIFFORD CORNELI, of the Schisler-Corneli Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo., is a busy man these days. He is in charge of all arrangements for the annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association, which is to be held in his city next month. All the arrangements for the convention are well under way and will be completed by June 1.

THE sun smiled on the seedsmen of Chicago. There were three beautiful, warm, sunshiny days the latter part of the week that seemed to enliven the interest of the buying public in garden seeds, bulbs, tools, etc. But, as R. B. Howe, president of the W. W. Barnard Co., said: "It hasn't been warm enough long enough to make a lot of difference."

A RADISH eaten in Washington, remarks the Market Reporter published by the Department of Agriculture, may have been produced in Florida from seed purchased from a dealer in Chicago who contracted with a commercial grower in New York state who grew it in California with Japanese labor from seed produced in Michigan that was the progeny of seed grown in France. It may be termed a cosmopolitan vegetable.

FRENCH dealers continue to ship red clover seed, another shipment of 1,000,000 pounds having been received at New York last week. A small shipment of about 20,000 pounds arrived from Great Britain. Approximately 77,000 pounds of red clover were received at Baltimore from Germany. Further imports of white clover from Germany, which amounted to 22,000

ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

The thirty-ninth annual convention of the American Seed Trade Association will be held at St. Louis, Mo., Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 22 to 24. The place of convening will be the banquet room of the Hotel Statler, on the seventeenth floor. The first sessions will be at 10 a. m. each day.

The room rates of the hotel are as follows: Room with shower bath, for one person, $2.50 and $3 per day; for two persons, one double bed, $4.50 per day. Room with tub and shower, for one person, $4, $4.50, $5 and $7 per day; for two persons, one double bed, $6, $6.50, $7 and $9 per day. Same rooms with twin beds, $7, $8 and $10 per day. The reservations for rooms should be made early and direct with R. L. Meyer, the assistant manager of the Statler.

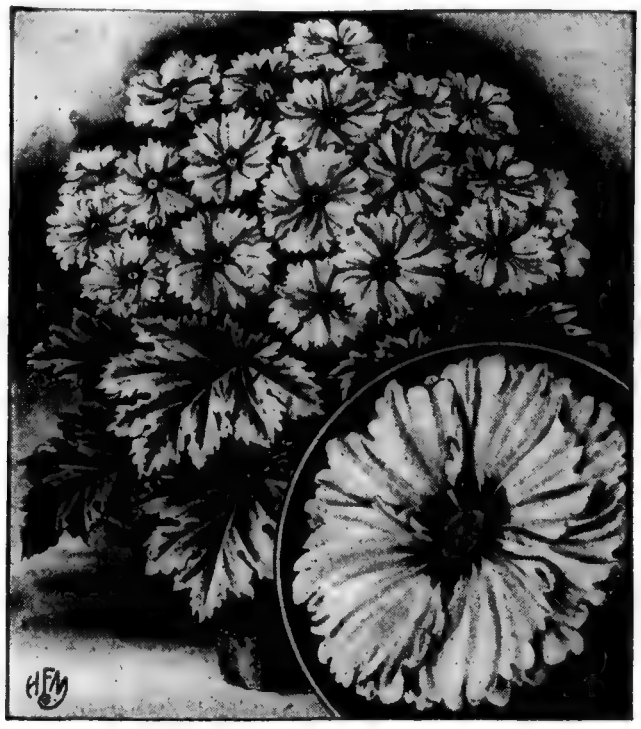
One of the things to be discussed is the list of proposed amendments to the by-laws. These amendments concern article one, section five; article two, section one, and article two, section two.

There will be the first annual 18-hole blind bogey golf tournament for the seed trade, at the Kirkwood Country Club, Tuesday, June 21, the day before the starting of the convention. Everyone, including the ladies, whether or not he or she is a golf enthusiast, is urged to enter. A cup has been donated as the first prize by the St. Louis seedsmen. There will be additional prizes.

The annual banquet will be held Thursday evening, June 23. The program covering the convention proceedings has not as yet been distributed, but will be soon.

The Southern Seedsmen's Association, which will hold its annual convention at Memphis, Tenn., June 20 and 21, plans to join the St. Louis convention after its own adjourns.

C. E. Kendel, Sec'y.



BULB IMPORTERS GET TOGETHER.

At the office of Henry & Lee, New York, a called meeting of American importers of French bulbs was held May 23. The intention on the part of those who inspired the meeting was declared to have been to invite all importers to attend and it is believed the response was unanimous on the part of those reached—they all were present or represented. There seems also to have been unanimity in the view that the recently announced prices of the French growers' syndicate are not justified, either by crop conditions in France or economic conditions in the trade in America. There, however, the unanimity appears to have ended. Not all those present were authorized to pledge the future action of their principals and in the end the advocates of the velvet glove prevailed over those of the big stick, with the result that the cable dispatched to representative exporters at Ollioules was not in the nature of an ultimatum. After the meeting the following was addressed to interested parties:

OFFICIAL STATEMENT FOR INFORMATION.

A meeting was held by the principal American importers of French bulbs to discuss and give their opinions as to the prevailing conditions. After considerable discussion it was decided to cable the French exporters requesting them to so reduce their prices as to meet our present conditions.

There has been some uncertainty as to the attitude of Holland houses operating in French bulbs for export to America. That these dealers take the same view as the American houses is shown by the following cable:

Ample explanation sent to French syndicate. We do not yet buy.

This was dated at Haarlem May 24, the day after the New York meeting, and bore the signature of the Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association.

GRASS SEEDS COMPLAINTS.

At the meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association, in Chicago, January 25, 1921, the committee on grievances was created, consisting of seven members of the association, the association counsel being denominated as chairman. This committee has been duly organized.

The principal duties of the committee are to investigate and, so far as possible, to attempt to eliminate fraud or misrepresentation of quality in the sale of agricultural seeds, whether the offenses complained of are by members of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association or by nonmembers.

The methods of carrying on the work of this committee have been carefully thought out, after negotiations with various government agencies, and may be briefly summarized as follows:

(1) In case of mistake or unintentional misrepresentation of quality, correction by private agreement with the seedsmen.
(2) Report of offender to members of the association.
(3) Expulsion of member from association.
(4) Presentment of complaint to the Federal Trade Commission.
(5) Prosecution under federal or state seed laws.
(6) Prosecution under postal laws.
(7) Criminal prosecution for common fraud.

Any government official, seedsman, purchaser of seeds or other interested party, whether of the United States or of foreign countries, having a bona fide complaint against a seed grower or seed merchant dealing in agricultural seeds and resident in the United States, may file complaint with the undersigned, chairman of the committee, 75 Tremont street, Boston, and such complaint will be fairly, fully and promptly acted upon by said committee without cost. The services of the committee are not perfunctorily offered. The value of the committee's services largely depends on the interest of those having and reporting bona fide complaints.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

REPORT of the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Iris Society appears on page 19 of this issue.

THE official roster of the J. Van Lindley Nursery Co., Pomona, N. C., is: President, Paul C. Lindley; vice-president, Dr. J. P. Turner; secretary and treasurer, A. J. Sykes; sales manager, R. E. Dalton, Jr.

THE proceedings of the 1920 convention of the American Association of Nurserymen have just been sent to members. The discussions of that meeting make this a particularly interesting volume, and the expert editorial hand of the secretary is evident.

BECAUSE of the late frost, about half of the varieties of iris at Peterson Nursery, Chicago, are blooming this season. Absolutely every variety of peony is coming through in fine shape, says W. A. Peterson, and none seems to be injured by the frost.

THE annual convention of the A. A. N., which will be held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, June 22 to 24, will be given up to trade discussion, without special events or speakers during the convention days, as there are plenty of questions for the members to thrash out among themselves, without taking time to listen to some prominent man give his ideas on general topics.

A LETTER THAT PULLS.

If you had Aladdin's lamp in your hands, what would be your first desire? You said it. You would rub that old lamp and within twenty-four hours every account outstanding among your customers would be settled. Because "collecting" is one of our chief difficulties.

The J. Van Lindley Nursery Co., which operates its florists' business as the Van Lindley Co., at Pomona, N. C., has found in the lines of a collection letter a lamp almost as efficacious as the one Aladdin used. Here is the letter that was sent out May 1 to 700 customers, signed by President Paul C. Lindley:

My Dear Friend:

Last year, while the sun was shining bright, we purchased many thousands of dollars' worth of seed and fruit stock for the continuation of our business. Rather than cancel these orders we allowed them to come forward. We now have arrived at the time when we can't "Say It with Flowers."

Our bookkeeper reports your account with us is $——.

He did not give me the date; it may be a very recent purchase, or what we all term "an old account." In either case, I am not going to apologize for writing, but am going to ask you for a little help now, and that you will see us again next month.

In the enclosed self-addressed envelope is a little string. If you find it necessary to look up this account before mailing check, "tie it around your finger." However, I would thank you for a prompt remittance, and much prefer that you don't use the string.

By May 15 the company had received 350 return envelopes by actual count and they were still coming in on each mail. Ninety-five per cent of them have the check enclosed and the others call attention to minor errors, which has enabled the company to straighten its accounts.

N. B.—There really was a little piece of green cord in the return envelope which the Van Lindley Co. enclosed with each letter.

OYSTER SCALE ON LILAC.

Recently considerable attention has been attracted by the presence of a scale on lilac bushes. This pest is what is known as the oyster-shell scale. It is a cosmopolitan insect and is doubtless the commonest and most widespread scale insect known. It infests all kinds of fruit trees and ornamental shrubs.

This scale is readily distinguished from other scale insects by its shape and color, according to C. R. Jones, of the Colorado Agricultural College. It resembles a minute, elongated, curved shell, about one-eighth of an inch in length, and is of a dark brownish color. The eggs of this pest are laid beneath the scale in the fall and, thus protected, they pass the winter.

In early June, depending upon the temperature, the eggs hatch, and the tiny, pale, yellowish young insects crawl from beneath the scale and wander about the twigs and branches, finally settling down on the bark and inserting their long, threadlike beaks in the branch. They secrete a covering of cottony substance which protects them while they develop. The females never move from that spot. They continue to grow and finally secrete the brown scales which attract attention. Sometimes these insects become so numerous that entire branches are covered with scales.

Effective control work can be accomplished against this pest by a thorough application of lime-sulphur, which tends to loosen the scales and allows natural enemies to work upon them, or they may be sprayed with a solution of nicotine extract, one part to 800 parts of water, to which is added about six pounds of soap. This spray should be applied from June 1 to June 15, before the young scales have secreted sufficient scale to protect themselves.

WHAT WE OWE TO FRANK MEYER.

Few people who are not connected with our trade, and probably not many in it, know the hardships involved in the introduction of new and practical species of plants, shrubs and trees from other countries. Especially is this true when the species come from less civilized lands. The story of Frank N. Meyer will help all to understand the difficulties which attend this work.

Mr. Meyer was chosen by the United States Bureau of Plant Industry to explore China for new species. In 1905 he left on his first trip and was gone for three years. He spent a year at home and went back to the Orient again in 1909. He again spent a summer at home and left on his last trip in the autumn of 1916. A year spent in the valley of the upper Yangtze under unfavorable sanitary conditions undermined his health and precipitated an attack of nervous prostration. He never fully recovered, even though he collected some excellent specimens during the ensuing year. June 2, 1918, he disappeared from a steamer on the Yangtze river. It is thought that his disappearance was due to a recurrence of nervous trouble, but it will never be known.

Mr. Meyer had much difficulty while on this exploration trip. He was in a strange country. In his searches he often showed ecstasy over what the natives considered the most common garden plants and trees. He could not explain to them what some of these trees could mean if they were taken over to the other side of the water. He was eyed with suspicion everywhere he went. On one occasion his expertness with a bowie knife was the only thing that kept him from death at the hands of some suspicious natives. On another occasion he narrowly escaped from being shot by the Chinese army, for they thought that he was a spy. At another time his two coolie helpers deserted him, for they were afraid to penetrate the country which Mr. Meyer afterward went through alone. Innumerable other happenings, which would have taken the heart out of any man with less courage, did not at all dampen his ardor or stop him from continuing his search.

Among the specimens that he brought

The Grandest Red Canna in Existence

The President Grandest Red Canna in existence

Height, 4 feet. In color, a rich, glowing scarlet, and the immense, firm, rounded flowers, 7 inches across when open, are produced on strong, erect stalks well above the large, rich green foliage. "The President" is superior to any other red variety in the quantity and also quality of bloom, and the firm flowers resist drought and heat to a remarkable degree. A large bed of this variety was planted on the grounds of the Washington Monument, Washington, D. C. Another "President" bed was on the Boardwalk, Atlantic City, while several more were to be seen in the largest public parks in this country, where the beautiful flowers received the unqualified admiration of every canna lover. Naturally, a tremendous demand has been created. Strong roots ready now.

Extract from Florists' Review, September 28, 1919:

"I have been much impressed with some of the new Cannas that I have tried this summer, and cannot refrain from mentioning two. These are The President and Snow Queen. President is by all odds the best red Canna today, larger and better than Firebird and a free bloomer; the foliage is strong and does not burn, as does that of Firebird. Those who have tried Firebird and lamented that it would not do on account of diseased foliage will rejoice to know that at last we have a Canna that is 'right.'"—Floyd Brallier.

Montgomery's Priscilla

That's the name of the new pink rose! The name will be Priscilla probably after the public has had it a while, but we have had to add the prefix to cover the rules of nomenclature.

In order to get someone who knows more about roses than we do to give an unbiased, honest opinion on the merits of this rose, we have placed 12 plants of it with each of the following rose growers:

BOBBINK & ATKINS, Rutherford, New Jersey

or sent to this country are some that show much promise. The Tamopan persimmon is already a recognized variety in the American markets. The Fei peach promises much as a late producer. The spinach expert of the Department of Agriculture at Washington declares that one variety of spinach found in Korea is the best ever produced. A pear, the wild Ussurian pear, is one that seems to be resistive to fire blight and with some crossing will probably become both resistive and delicious. The Huang Lien Shu, or Chinese pistachio, with its beautiful autumn foliage, is already adding a touch of color to the California hillsides. Rosa xanthina is proving to be a vigorous, free-flowering, hardy, yellow rose. The Tang Taw, or Chinese Actinidia, is doing well in the south. The Pah Koh Poo Chi, an edible bamboo, seems to be destined to become quite popular. Other trees that show much promise are the jujube, the wild chestnut, the family elm and the dwarf lemon trees. It is yet too soon to tell much about some of the new varieties of wheat, alfalfa, barley and other grain seeds which he found. But if only one of the vast number which he discovered growing in the vast regions which he explored proves practical, it will, in all probability, mean far more than enough to this country to repay the cost of all his travels.

Lansing, Kan.—Since last December Mrs. Nellie Asmussen has been the manager of the Pope Greenhouses. She is planting one house with 6,000 chrysanthemums and another with 3,000 asters. She is also planting shrubs outdoors.

Livingston, Mont.—Inasmuch as they established the Yellowstone Floral Co. only four months ago, Thomas Whelan and J. W. Hollow are especially well pleased with the proportions of their Mothers' day business. Telegraph orders, they state, were numerous.

OHIO GROWERS TO MEET.

A state meeting of the Ohio district of the National Flower Growers' Association will be held at Columbus Tuesday, June 21, at 2 p. m. at the Deschler hotel.

This meeting will be held for the purpose of electing permanent officers for the Ohio district and appointing a committee to take up the active work of securing data on cost systems for growers and retailers, the standardizing of the grading of cut flowers and plants, legislative matters, coöperative buying of supplies and other important subjects.

There will be speakers of national importance to address the growers on each of these subjects. This meeting will be one of the most important ever held for the florists of Ohio and should bring a large attendance.

L. C. Vinson, Sec'y.

PAY WITH GOOD CHEER.

When customers pay their bills with good cheer it affords satisfaction to the payee and evidence to any interested that value is being given. Like this:

In sending check to cover your statement we wish to say the results from your good Review were most satisfactory, which is a reason for regret that in the rush we did not pay your bill sooner.—Evansville Nurseries Co., Evansville, Ind., May 17, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Oconto, Wis.—J. Sylvester reports the demand for spring bedding plants as being at least as good as ever. The call for geraniums has been especially strong, as the result of his liner in The Review.

AGERATUM, Fraserii

We feel confident in offering Ageratum "Fraserii" to our customers that we are offering what will be one of the most valuable acquisitions to the bedding plant line in recent years, that is a blue, a decided blue, that would be continually in bloom. In our trial grounds last summer "Fraserii" attracted more attention than any other bedding plant. It only grew about eight to ten inches high and was covered the entire season with what can easily be classed as immense trusses of flowers, as many of them were over 2½ inches across, while the individual flower would be ⅞ of an inch in diameter. The plant spread about 12 to 15 inches across. It can easily be used with Alternantheras as a border plant.

Being an early bloomer and dwarf, compact grower, it makes an excellent pot plant. 2-inch, $1.00 per doz.; $6.00 per 100. 3-inch, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The fact that prices dropped back to normal, following the Mothers' day inflation, failed to stimulate the market enough to move the supply of cut flowers that came to hand last week.

Early outdoor stock is practically a month in advance and there is much apprehension concerning the Memorial day supply. Lilacs are already entirely gone and other spring flowers will be conspicuous by their absence before the end of another week. Artificial designs, principally wreaths and crosses of magnolia leaves and wax flowers, have been made up and the city is flooded with them. Every corner grocery, fruit stand, news dealer and variety store, as well as numerous druggists, have this artificial stock, while the department stores have it in quantity at cut prices.

Tulips, which have been especially good in quality and which have been increasing in popularity this spring, are about done, as is other bulbous stock. Carnations are beginning to slack off, but roses are holding well, although the larger growers are cleaning out their benches for the summer. Valley is moving slowly because of the presence of large quantities of outdoor stock and calendulas are finding some call.

Various Notes.

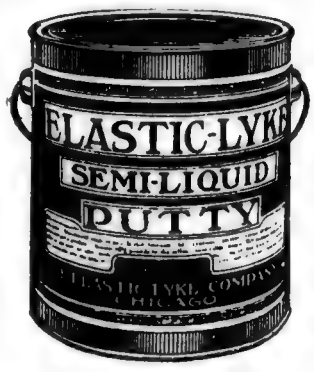
J. J. Kelley, of Pawtucket, whose eyes were recently operated upon, is now convalescing.

T. J. Johnston & Co. will remove to their new store, at 204 Washington street, June 1.

William Sword, of Valley Falls, is receiving congratulations on the recent advent of a daughter into his household.

Carlton Scott, doing business as Scott the Florist, at 777 Broad street, is doing a big outdoor business and now has nearly a dozen men employed.

Cohen Bros., of the Lowell Avenue Greenhouses, has opened a branch store for retail business on Westminster street until over Memorial day.



W. Hawkins, formerly of Attleboro, Mass., who recently opened a retail store at Norwich, Conn., was in this city last week looking for supplies.

Frank E. Saunders, manager of M. B. Saunders & Co., on Public street, has been on the sick list.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

THE COAL MARKET.

Production of bituminous coal continues to show signs of improvement. The output of last week is estimated at 7,296,000 net tons, which represents a gain over that of the week preceding of 326,000 tons, or nearly five per cent. While this tendency is a favorable one, it is not pronounced enough to indicate any building up of large reserves by industrial consumers, stated a leading coal trade paper last week.

Industry is not purchasing coal in large quantities, and most of the activity is in the form of inquiries rather than actual sales. Reports from one section of the country indicating that industry is reviving to some extent are more than offset by others that factories in another section have further reduced their operations—a condition that is causing industrial buying to remain at a low ebb.

Large buyers are not evincing any desire to contract, but are preferring to make their purchases on the open market at prevailing spot prices. It is not unlikely that they will not depart from these tactics for thirty or sixty days, until the differential between spot and contract quotations is more in their favor. The possibility of lower freight rates is also causing the consumers to hold off from large purchases, although it is possible that any reductions that are made will not have their effect until a car shortage has made coal so difficult to move that a reduction in freight will be less than the increase in the cost of the coal at mines.

Considerable apprehension is felt by operators in general over the supply of open-top equipment for transporting coal in sufficient quantity to take care of the demand which will assert itself when large consumers of coal abandon their waiting tactics. Coupled with the normal traffic in building supplies that this type of equipment must handle is that of coal, which promises to be abnormally high. As only sixty per cent of this rolling stock used in the transporting of coal will be available, the shortage may reach serious proportions.

Last week the following prices were quoted on bituminous coal in Chicago:

	Domestic	Mine Run	Screenings
So. Ill.	$3.65	$3.00@3.50	$2.75@3.00
Cen. Ill. ..	3.00	2.25@3.00	2.25@3.00

The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of cast iron sectional boilers—in every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping with less fuel.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have no bulky soot-accumulating surfaces—you avoid the disagreeable work and trouble indispensable to cleaning boilers with complicated and tortuous back and forth fire passages.

No Tubes to Clean

No Brick Work Required

NOT CAST IRON

NOT CAST IRON

READ WHAT THE USERS SAY:

Cast Iron Cannot Be Compared With Kroeschell.

We bought a No. 2 Boiler. It takes care of 5,000 sq. ft. of glass, and we could add 2,000 more. We are very well satisfied. We used a cast iron boiler before we had yours. It cannot be compared with the Kroeschell Boiler. Your boiler has certainly a great capacity for heating water.

——— ———, Canada.

Cast Iron Boilers Break Down.

Have fired greenhouse boilers since 1885, both steam and hot water. Yours suits me best. I have two of your boilers. At one time I had two cast iron boilers working together, and during a blizzard the rear section of one boiler gave out and the front section of the other sprung a crack a couple of months later. No more cast iron boilers for me. I came very close to freezing out in both instances.

——— ———, Mo.

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years.

We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7,000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.

I first had a new cast iron boiler, which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made.

You can refer anyone to us.

Cast Iron Boilers Cause Freeze-out—Kroeschell Boilers No Worry

I bought a No. 2 Boiler. Takes care of 7,000 sq. ft. of glass—would take care of 2,000 more. I have had a cast iron boiler, but it broke down twice in four years, always in the coldest weather. It broke down in December, and I lost all my stock in consequence. I have now two No. 2 and one No. 6 Kroeschell boilers and do not worry about their breaking down.

——— ———, Ia.

Kroeschell Versus Cast Iron.

The No. 7 Boiler I bought from you is heating 14,000 sq. ft. of glass; I think it can take care of 16,000 sq. ft. I do not have any trouble to keep up temperature of 50° in the coldest weather. I fire only once after 12 o'clock midnight. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. I have four cast iron boilers—like the Kroeschell best of all. If anyone wishes to inquire about your boiler, let them write me, for I think your boilers are good ones.

——— ———, Mich.

The Kroeschell Does Our Work Easier Than Cast Iron Boilers and Saves 20 to 25% Fuel.

The No. 4 Boiler is heating 10,000 sq. ft. of glass—it would take care of 13,000 sq. ft. easy. Have no trouble to keep temperatures of 50 and 60 degrees in coldest weather. The boiler has given perfect satisfaction. We had two cast iron boilers, one rated for 1,200 ft. of pipe and one rated for 1,500 ft. These boilers never did the work at their best and when the greenhouses were new. According to our experience with yours, we will save 20 to 25% of fuel.

floor, which is some three feet below the surface. The gables and roof are constructed with double glass, between which there is five-eighths of an inch of dead air space. Would a small oil heater carry the load if the greenhouse were covered with mats on the coldest nights?

C. M. T.—Ill.

There will be no difficulty in heating the greenhouse as proposed with an ordinary oil heating stove in ordinary winter weather, and with the use of mats when the temperature drops below 10 degrees above zero.

It will be desirable to provide some way for carrying off the gases from the combustion of the oil. Serious harm may be done if the heater is permitted to fill the greenhouse with smoke and soot.

HEATING WITH GAS.

My 3,300 feet of glass is not large enough to warrant the services of a night fireman and I am not inclined to do the work myself, since at night it is necessary to get a fire under the boiler every ninety minutes in zero weather, an activity that my daily occupation and health hardly permit. So I have become interested in the matter of heating by gas. I am told that a gas plate can be connected to my boiler in such a way as to eliminate all danger from the escape of gas fumes and that the heating can be handled at a saving of at least one-third of the present cost. This seems logical, as my western hard coal bill for the last three years has averaged $1,800, and more than 100 tons have been consumed. But I hesitate in the matter because I have always heard that gas is highly injurious to plant life. My heating plant is located under the potting and packing room and is divided from the greenhouses proper by a frame partition which is by no means airtight. There is a 30-foot brick stack on my boiler. Can an arrangement be perfected to operate successfully and with no danger to the bedding stock, carnations and other greenhouse stock?

R. A. H.—Neb.

While it is true that coal gas in any appreciable amount is fatal to plant life, there would not be any great danger from its use under the conditions mentioned, provided reasonable precautions are taken. It would be advisable to make the partition as nearly gas-proof as possible by means of building-paper and to provide for the ventilation of the boiler room, as a precaution in case any gas might escape. With everything working right, there should be no danger.

The data given above have been noted, such as the necessity of firing every sixty to ninety minutes, and the use of over 100 tons of coal for heating a greenhouse containing 3,300 square feet of glass for carnations. It would appear that there is something radically wrong with the heating system. We have heated 5,000 square feet of glass to 55 degrees for the seven winter months with twenty tons of Pennsylvania anthracite coal, and although it sometimes dropped to 5 to 8 degrees below zero, the fire was generally left seven or even eight hours at night, and for five or six hours even in zero weather.

We have had no experience with western hard coal, but, with a heating plant of ample capacity and with the radiation properly arranged, it should be possible to reduce materially the amount of coal as well as attendance.

The Market.

The extremely hot weather last week took the life out of the market, also the stock. However, in general, things were going well, and an occasional spurt of heavy funeral work made the totals for the week, if anything, above normal. Sweet peas are rapidly disappearing, but, from present indications, it is sure that the outdoor-grown stock will be in early this year.

Roses, while still good, do not last. Calendula will soon be over with. Memorial day, probably, will not be so heavy as some are inclined to believe. Home-grown peonies will just about be in almost everyone's yard and, with iris and other flowers in bloom, the florists will have worthy competition. This city, perhaps, can show as many new homes in proportion to its population as any other city in the country. Numerous orders for landscape work show that the "home beautiful" idea is spreading rapidly outdoors, as well as indoors.

Bedding stock is unusually fine and, with the exception of vincas, which are scarce, the supply is equal to the demand.

Various Notes.

Scottwood Greenhouses report two large weddings for last week. Business is good, according to the senior T. Magee.

The Century Flower Shop, formerly the store of Mrs. J. B. Freeman, had many nice pieces for the funeral of the superintendent of the state hospital, Wednesday, May 18.

Metz & Bateman received forty-three telegraph orders the Saturday before Mothers' day.

Max Spanner doubled his telegraph orders for Mothers' day over last year.

Helen Patten's store reminds one of Nippon. Rare judgment is shown in the arrangement of the store and the decorations. H. E. K.

The Market.

Last week the market cleared up well. Peonies are arriving in good quantity and the local red variety has made its appearance. Some excellent out-of-town peonies are coming in and are moving nicely. There is not a wide variety of flowers on the market; most of the stock coming in consists of roses, carnations, peonies, calendulas, a few Easter lilies, miniature roses and mignonette. The stock has been of exceptionally good quality, but if the hot weather continues it probably will be less desirable. Carnations are down to more satisfactory prices, and this fact helps to clean them up well every day.

Various Notes.

Richards & Blewett have purchased the business and greenhouses formerly operated by George F. Braybon, at Kent, O. They will do business under the name of the Standing Rock Greenhouses.

There was an important meeting of the committees for the coming national flower show at the Hollenden hotel, Thursday, May 19. The chairmen of the various committees were given their instructions and any questions which they had to ask were answered. John Young and George Asmus were present at the meeting.

Harold S. Lion, of Lion & Co., New York, and Irving Stein were recent visitors in Cleveland. T. B. Stroup, of New Philadelphia, O., and Harry Flickinger, of Barberton, O., dropped in for a few hours last week. Allan Humason, of the Raedlein Basket Co., Chicago, and R. E. Blackshaw, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., were also visitors.

The Market.

A sudden change to warm weather, with temperature close to 90 degrees for several days, has brought a great supply of stock into this market. It has all moved and there is a call for everything that comes in. The peony crop is about a third short of normal, but what there is will be in for Memorial day. The price will be $15 per hundred. Carnations will be $12 per hundred. Roses and carnations are beginning to soften from the heat. Prices have been down as low as $6 for roses and from this to $20, according to variety. Sweet peas were $1 and $2; gladioli, $15, and daisies, $1.

Various Notes.

John Klaus will cut about 50,000 sweet peas and 10,000 roses for Memorial day.

Arthur Newell has received a shipment of statice from California. He is featuring cape flowers and helichrysum wreaths from $5 up.

Work on the addition to the building of the William L. Rock Flower Co. began May 23.

The women's auxiliary to the St. Andrew Society gave a luncheon to Sir Auckland and Lady Geddes in the Muehlebach hotel Monday, May 16. Elaborate table decorations were placed by Samuel Murray. Many beautiful flowers were sent to the visitors at the hotel by the auxiliary.

Mrs. Gertrude Stokes has bought Mrs. E. H. Hedges' flower shop, at Tenth and McGee streets. Mrs. Hedges is corresponding secretary of the Kansas City chapter of American War Mothers, which has a charter membership of eighty-three. She will be one of ten members from here who, in company with representatives from every other state in the Union, will visit the battlefields of Europe. The purpose of the trip will be to view the situation from a mother's standpoint and report on the advisability of a permanent resting place for the boys who fell in battle. At the same time an effort will be made to organize the war mothers of Europe. The date of sailing will be between June 1 and 15 and the delegates will be abroad six or eight weeks.

School commencements and the social affairs that go with them have kept Mrs. T. A. Moseley busy all week. She is preparing on a large scale for Memorial day.

The Rosery is making up cemetery wreaths for Memorial day. Many advance orders for the wreaths are in.

C. T. Rinehardt is fairly well supplied with peonies and has a good crop of snapdragons and carnations for the coming week.

The William L. Rock Flower Co. has made special arrangements with the Western Union Telegraph Co. for the delivery of messages at night. Instead of having night messages delivered on the first regular trip in that neighborhood the next morning, the messages will be left in a box provided for this particular purpose and will be found

RAIN WHEN YOU WANT IT

Luther Burbank Says:

He Would Quit Business If He Could Not Have His Skinner System

Down in Del Valle, Texas, there is a man by the name of E. P. Norwood. He is one of those careful buyers who have to be shown.

We did our best, but he still wanted further convincement. So he sent out a questionnaire, one of which went to Luther Burbank, the Wizard of Plant Development.

Burbank answered every question in such a flat-footed way, reckon you would like to know what he said.

Here are Mr. Norwood's questions, and Burbank's answers. No wonder Norwood promptly bought a Skinner System Installation.

"I am thinking of installing a Skinner System of Irrigation, and would appreciate some information as to its merits and successful operation. Please point out to me, its defects or merits from a user's standpoint."

Answer: "It has no defects; is perfect and has everywhere given satisfaction. I have used it extensively for ten years."

"Have the Systems you know of been a success or not?"

Answer: "Everywhere.

"You will like it. A water and time saver. Think I would quit business if I could not have Skinner System."

(Signed) Luther Burbank,
Santa Rosa, Cal.

Send us the size of your plot and we will make suggestions for how best to water it.

Mrs. C. A. Simonson, of McPherson, Kan., stopped over on her way home from Hillsdale, Mich., where she attended her mother's funeral, May 9. Among the other visitors last week were Robert Bebb, Muskogee, Okla.; Herman Fisher, Maryville, Mo., and Ralph Ward, Lawrence, Kan.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. has had a heavy plant business at the greenhouses here. Two truck loads of plants were sent from Pleasant Hill Saturday, May 21. These were in addition to the regular stock sent up every day.

Ray Blessing, shipping clerk for the T. J. Noll Floral Co., has been laid up for two weeks with blood poisoning.

William Foith's carnation crop will be as good for Memorial day as it was for Christmas. He expects to get top prices. His sweet peas beat anything he has ever had at this time of year.

Miss J. E. Murray attended the opening of James Hays' new store at Topeka, Kan., May 16. The store is an attractive place and was crowded the opening day. An orchestra played all afternoon and evening and 8,000 roses were given away. J. E. K.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Stock is plentiful now, but the crops are shortening up and the supply will not be as large for Memorial day as it was for Mothers' day. The indications are that there will be a heavy demand for cut flowers as well as plants at that time. "Old Sol" has been working hard this week and has given us a pretty hot time for a few days, which has helped to develop the peonies. Now the florists are afraid that they will all be gone before Memorial day.

Various Notes.

Ralph Tinkham, of the House of Flowers, reports that he has had several large floral decorations, which, with the usual run of work, have kept him pretty busy.

The Flick Floral Co. has just installed a large cooler in the shipping room, which will accommodate thousands of flowers.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are wrecking two of their small houses and intend replacing them with one large house, in which they expect to grow orchids. Born to Mr. and Mrs. David S. Vesey, a girl. Mr. Vesey is the vice-president of the firm of W. J. & M. S. Vesey.

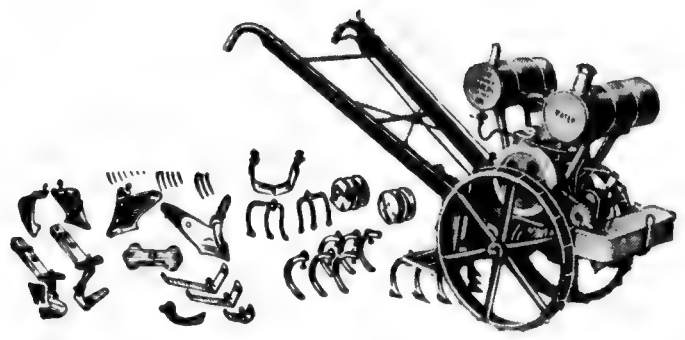
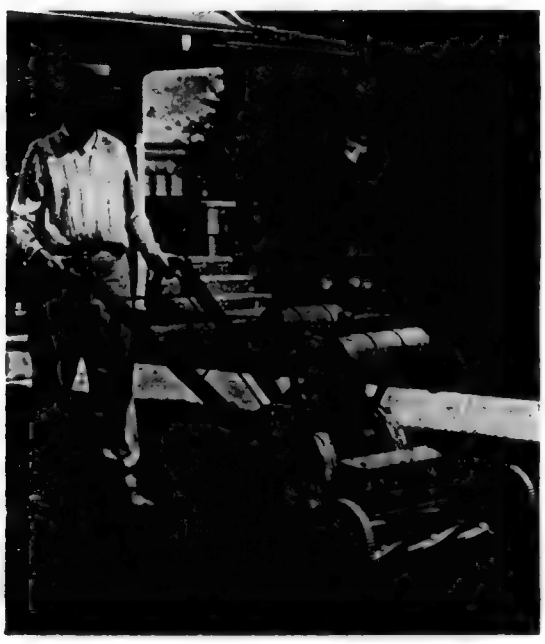
Saves You Time And Money
Solves The Hired Help Problem



It has been proved that one man with the Merry Garden can do as much work as four men with hand cultivators. Or, one man with the Merry Garden can do the same amount of work as a man with a hand implement in one-fourth the time and do it easier and better.



A simple mathematical calculation will show you the great saving that can be effected by replacing three men with the Merry Garden or by cultivating your field in one-fourth the time. In this saving on hired help alone the Merry Garden pays for itself in one month's time.

Figure out this problem for yourself and you will admit that you too can use

The Merry Garden Auto-Cultivator

Because of the frequency and thoroughness with which you can cultivate, the Merry Garden insures bigger, better plants, matured in less time. This means getting the jump on your competitor and getting the highest market prices for your plants. Frequent cultivation also enables you to raise bigger, sturdier and healthier plants. The big, healthy plants always command the fancy prices.

The Merry Garden cultivates, harrows and weeds; operates a 30-inch lawnmower; with the power pulley frame will pump water, run the grindstone, feed cutter, saw and washing machine. The many uses—the low cost—ease of operation—saving of time and labor—its simplicity and durability—all these features make the Merry Garden a paying investment for florists, gardeners and nurserymen.

Improved 1921 model. Equipped with Bosch magneto, improved cooling and lubricating systems, improved bearings and Atma Air Cleaner. Gears fully protected to give long life.

Try It for Five Days

Try the Merry Garden on your own place for five days. Give it a thorough trial. If it doesn't do all we claim for it, you can have your money back. The price is $230.00 f. o. b. Cleveland. With Lawnmower, $305.00 f. o. b. Cleveland. That's our guarantee and we stand firmly back of it. We have a very interesting folder which we will gladly send you without obligation. Write for it today.

ASTERS

100,000 TRANSPLANTED ASTERS.
In order to be reasonable and fair, I will reduce price, which belongs to me, but never quality, which belongs to you.
"QUALITY" seeds were germinated and later each one transplanted from the strongest in 7½ cu. ins. of sterilized soil as a sure preventive against disease that works havoc in the plant's future life.
They are as good as from 2-in. pots, stocky, clean and healthy and are ready for either benching or field planting.

GET LINED UP FOR NEXT THANKSGIVING AND CHRISTMAS, for they will be hummers.

3-INCH CYCLAMEN.
In the best commercial colors, consisting of light and dark salmon, wine red, Xmas red, Daybreak, lavender, white with pink eye.
The best strain on the market.

In shipping out our transplanted seedlings, we surely pleased our trade, as one customer at Reading, Pennsylvania, who ordered 1000 wrote back: "Well, I can only say they are wonderful, never expected plants like these."
One at Columbia, South Carolina, wrote: "I want 200 more like the ones sent." Another at Baltimore, Maryland: "Cyclamen just arrived and they are surely fine."
This stock will be shipped during June and July, and you must expect to get selected plants as fine in every respect as you have ever received in 3-in. Cyclamen, for some plants now run as high as 18 to 21 leaves and they will be strong for 4-in. pots the day you receive them.
$20.00 per 100,

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Conditions in this market are much the same as last week. The weather is extremely hot and unseasonable and consequently stock that is to be had arrives in a soft condition.

It was generally thought that peonies would not be in for Memorial day, but the thermometer registered 90 degrees May 22, bringing in plenty of peonies and other outdoor stock.

Roses are, as usual, plentiful and the same can be said of carnations, especially white carnations.

Gladioli are now arriving in large quantities and moving well at $8 to $10 per hundred. Some of the leading varieties are Halley, Mrs. Francis King, America, Panama and Chicago White.

Indoor sweet peas are now showing the effects of the boiling sun, but the outdoor ones are picking up where the others left off.

Snapdragon, a quite popular flower here, is arriving in large numbers, but quick sales move them out readily.

The first delphiniums of the season were seen last week and they surely were welcomed by all the florists, because of their colors and good qualities for basket work.

Miscellaneous stock, including calendulas, cornflowers, double narcissi, gardenias, valley and pansies, move well.

The general outlook is for a banner Memorial day, which will be the last of the season's holidays and welcomed by all the florists.

Various Notes.

The Wm. Murphy Co. has been receiving some choice Spanish iris and gladioli from R. H. Wittersaetter and Wm. Taylor, both of Price Hill.

P. J. Olinger reports a big week in snapdragon and carnation sales.

H. W. Sheppard has had a busy week in weddings, including a large one at the Church of the Advent, in Walnut Hills, when Miss Martha Shipley and James Monroe were married.

Julius Baer reports the biggest week in May just past.

C. E. Critchell has been receiving some excellent peonies and delphiniums from C. Federle, of Hamilton, O.

We regret to report the illness of Nick Weber, of Mohawk; Fred Rupp, of Lawrenceburg, and Miss E. F. Kyrk, of Avondale.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange is receiving some good lilies and valley from Wm. Schumann, of the Highlands.

Among visitors last week were Mrs. T. J. Burns, of Huntington, W. Va.; Karl Heiser, of Hamilton, O.; J. T. Herdegen, of Aurora, Ind., and T. J. Price, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.

G. H. K.

CAN'T CARRY OVER NARCISSUS.

We have several hundred bulbs of Narcissus Paper White that were used for forcing in the greenhouse last winter. After blooming, they were allowed to ripen by gradual drying off. These bulbs are now plump and solid, and some have young bulbs attached. Can these be planted outside for one year to bloom, and then be forced the third year? If they can be so used, please advise as to when to plant them. What is the proper way to secure results?

E. B. E.—Mich.

Paper White narcissi are of absolutely no value to carry over a second season. If planted outdoors, all the bulbs will die the first winter, this narcissus being a tender variety and of no use outdoors.

LIGHT HYDRANGEA LEAVES.

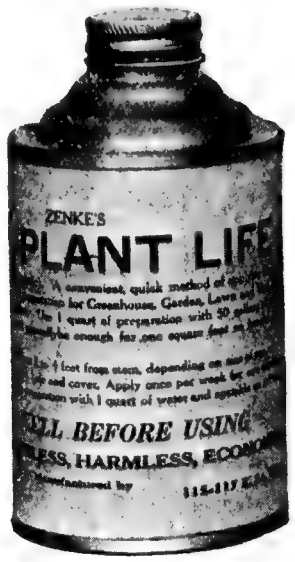
The leaves on our hydrangea plants are light in color instead of the usuai dark, healthy color. The plants are doing well, but the foliage is not perfect. Can you tell what is wrong with them? Also will you please tell us what to do in order to remedy this defect?

K. & S.—Wis.

When the leaves on hydrangea plants commence to turn light in color, it is the sign of stagnant soil. The best way to remedy it is to be more sparing with the water at the plants' roots. It is also a good plan to examine the drainage of the pots to make sure that the water drains freely through the soil at each watering.

M. P.

BEGONIAS THAT SHRIVEL.



I am sending a Mrs. Patten begonia plant which is affected either with insects or some fungous disease. The plants branch freely, but about the time the new shoots are ready to bloom, the center shrivels up and turns black.

W. S. H.—Ia.

Throw away any stock thus affected. What you describe not infrequently happens with this class of fibrous-rooted begonias, especially in a low temperature. Keep moisture from the leaves, and give the plants a nice, sunny bench for best results.

Don't Fool Yourself on the Cost of Glass

The most interesting thing to you about glass, right now, is: that it's down in price.

But after all is said and done, when you get out your pencil and do some real figuring, the difference of even a dollar a box doesn't really amount to so much on the total cost of your house.

Putting off putting up another house, because of the price of glass, is quite as reasonable as refusing to buy a suit of clothes because the price of the silk thread the seams are sewed with is higher than it used to be.

Now let's get down to the real facts and see what the actual truth is. Take a house, say 200 feet long and 60 wide. Leaving out the cost of benching and heating, the cost of the glass is but 16⅔ per cent of the entire cost of house erected, glazed and painted complete.

If glass were a dollar a box lower than it is now, it would only make 2¾ per cent difference on the cost of your house.

So don't make the mistake of letting the price of glass be the deciding point in your building now.

The only point that should influence your decision is: can you make money if you have the house?

If you can, then you can easily make up the possible difference in building costs between this year and next.

Not only make it up, but make money besides.

If such was not the case, do you suppose a sound-sensed hard-headed buyer like F. B. Abrams, of Blue Point, L. I., would be building one of our Iron Framers over 60 feet wide and 400 long?

Do you suppose that keen, shrewd man, Fallon, leader among the florists of Roanoke, Va., would be building? Do you suppose that cautious, far-seeing Yankee, Mr. Charles Strout, would now be putting his carnation money in one of our big houses?

If these careful, straight thinking, sure figuring men can see there is money in building now, then there is money in it for you. Let's get together and figure out present costs and see how it looks to you.

Counting cost of labor, materials, paints, liners, etc., it would seem impossible to produce a basket to sell for

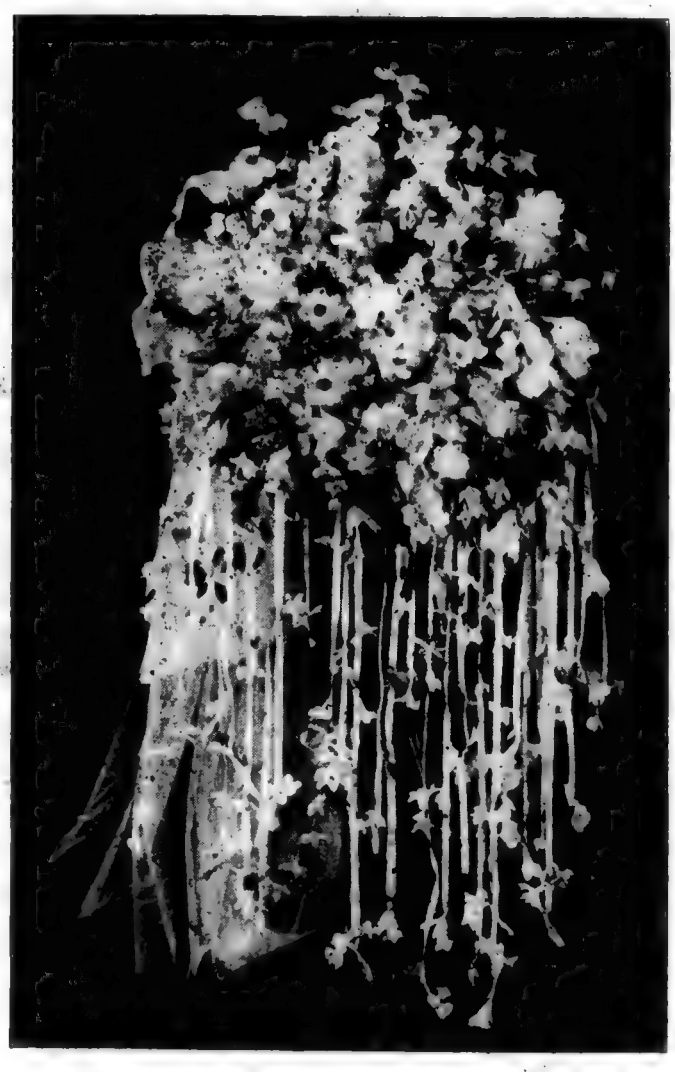
BRIDES' BOUQUETS OF MANY KINDS

Not only as the spice of life, but also as a matter of profit and artistic achievement for the florist, variety is to be recommended. And in June, what more natural than the bride's bouquet, in its course from valley to variety, for the subject of discussion?

JUNE is the month of brides, in popular estimation at least, although many florists report having had during some months this spring as heavy a business as they expect to enjoy in the reputed nuptial period. Observing both the tradition of belief and the actuality of practice, in point of view of time, this article in the month of June tells of brides' bouquets for various times of year.

When brides used to look upon June as the only month for weddings, florists used to regard roses and lilies of the valley as the only flowers for the bridal party. Nowadays brides choose their wedding dates from among the other eleven months of the year as well as June, and florists have come to use many other flowers besides the traditional staples. The bouquets which illustrate this article are none of them of those flowers. Not that roses and valley are not much used today, for they are. The purpose of showing these and suggesting other bouquets not of the customary flowers is to acquaint all florists with the possibilities of pleasing their customers by suggesting something out of the ordinary for the bride and her bridesmaids to carry.

From Valley to Variety.



There is sound reason in this and profit for the florist.

In the old days, when valley invariably composed the bride's bouquet, the florist who wished to achieve something better or more distinctive, either for his own satisfaction or to meet the demand of the customer for "something better than So-and-so's bouquet," could do but two things; he must either exercise a vast amount of time and thought in the arrangement—and perhaps effect but slight variation apparent to the untutored eye—or he must add to it still more valley, making the bouquet a bulky affair.

To meet the request for "something different," some florists tried other flowers, first for the bridesmaids' bouquets and eventually for the bride's precious burden itself. Sweet peas were one of the first substitutes. When the war came and the importation of valley pips was gradually shut off, so that blooms of this flower became worth their weight in silver if not in gold, urgent necessity became the mother of invention in florists' brains, and many departures were made from the time-honored flowers in wedding bouquets. Today the variety is wide.

The florist's own ingenuity and taste govern more than tradition in the best flower shops nowadays. The use of the blooms of each season, instead of monotonous repetition of year-around staples, has become more and more general. Nor is anything lost in dignity and beauty thereby. Consider the two bouquets in the illustrations on the preceding page. No bride could ask better. Indeed, they were, in fact, carried by two brides in New York's best families, to whom they were furnished by Max Schling, whose ability in achieving distinctive floral effects is well and widely known. These bouquets are both of spring flowers, and each florist may ask himself if he had brides' bouquets of spring flowers in the last three months or if he failed to see the opportunity for them.

Sweet Peas Are Often Used for the Bride's Bouquet.

Many Opportunities.

In addition to the flowers shown in these illustrations, many others have been employed in the brides' bouquets by some of the leading florists of the country. Snapdragons have been used to splendid effect. Gladiolus blooms admit of many effects, because of the numerous dainty shades and markings. The spikes may be shortened, or the florets may be pulled off the spike and wired in place in the midst of accompanying blooms.

In the fall of the year swainsona has come to be deservedly popular. It makes a charming shower bouquet. Some of the baby pompon chrysanthemums can be used; they are more generally employed in the bridesmaids' bouquets. In the latter, indeed, anything and everything is now being used—cosmos, dahlias and many flowers scarcely used at all a few years ago. The list might be much prolonged, to include, indeed, nearly everything the florist uses. The results depend upon the individual florist's ability. But you will be surprised at what you can do and what praise customers will return if you try something new for the bouquets of the brides of June and of the other eleven months of the year, not to speak of their bridesmaids.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

After a dull period preceding Memorial day, it was expected that the holiday would materially change conditions, but, as far as the cut flower business was concerned, the results of the Friday, Saturday and Sunday business were rather disappointing. There was no dearth of stock in any line, but it could not be said that the market was crowded. The peony supply was large, but not so large as in some previous years, and much of the stock arriving was too tight in bud, with prospective opening a future from the holiday. Herbaceous flowers arrived in large quantity, and, in the face of a three-day holiday, clearances were forced, but, nevertheless, returns were satisfactory. Oriental poppies, in red, sold well, and stood handling and shipping satisfactorily. There was a good demand for green material for making up, and plant sales were good. Several of the wholesalers had stocky, well-flowered plants of Hydrangea otaksa.

Roses of all staple varieties were in good supply, but prices did not soar, as the demand was quiet. American Beauty moved at summer figures, and the supply was liberal. Red roses were stronger in values, with a better demand.

Carnations met with good sales up to Saturday night. It would be interesting to know how many shipments some growers made within two days.

Orchids were not in particular demand, and the supply was in accordance with the demand. Spray orchids were hardly a commodity in the market.

White lilies were in ordinary supply. There was plenty of lily of the valley, which met a moderate demand. Sweet peas were in somewhat of an oversupply, but their movement was fair.

The market Monday, May 30, was dull and uninteresting. Arrivals were larger than might have been expected, and the demand was almost too small to make a market. Arrivals of roses would intimate that the cut was exhausted in previous shipments, and carnations were to be given a rest at least twenty-four hours. Memorial day business was really ended at an early hour.

Various Notes.

The death of William H. Fierabend, carnation grower of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is reported as of the evening of May 28, through blood poisoning, resulting from a decayed tooth.

At a meeting of the Associated Retail Florists of New York, held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, Wednesday evening, May 25, the matter of the assessment of one-half of one per cent on all purchases of flowers at wholesale was fully discussed, and it was agreed that it should go into effect. A committee was appointed to interview the trade, with the idea of making the assessment a custom. Most of the prominent retailers have already allowed their favorable action in the circumstances to be made public.

The custom of using flowers on Memorial day lost nothing of its significance this year, flowers being used at all the important functions of the day. A notable occurrence was the hanging of a wreath on the Statue of Liberty, at the entrance to the harbor of New York, by the United American War Veterans. The wreath, which was twenty-seven feet in diameter, was made by Le Moult and was composed of hemlock, gilded cycas leaves, artificial poppies and a loop and streamers of bunting of the national colors. The wreath was too big for transportation, so was assembled from prepared sections at Bedloe's island. Electrical illumination, about 200 bulbs, was provided for, and the lighting is to be continued for a week, with search lights in addition. As a part of the ceremony of decoration, flowers, provided by the florists of New York, with credit for the donation given by the local papers, were cast upon the waters in memory of the departed who gave their lives to their country.

Arrangements have been completed for the traveling to the Washington convention of the S. A. F. The transportation committee of the New York Florists' Club announces that the party train will leave the Pennsylvania railroad terminal at 11:08 a. m., daylight time, arriving in Washington at 4:30 p. m., Monday, August 15. This schedule insures that the party will be in Washington in ample time to attend the first session of the convention, which opens at 10 a. m. the morning of the first day of the convention, instead of in the afternoon, as has previously been the custom. WILL IMPROVE C. O. D. SERVICE.

"Retention of funds collected on account of C. O. D. parcels is a violation of the regulations and may render the employee responsible liable to prosecution for embezzlement," is a section of the postal laws and regulations which has been called to the attention of employees of the postal service by Third Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover.

There has been some complaint that parcel post C. O. D. service has not been satisfactory because of delayed returns. Business men have taken the problem up with the postmaster-general and it is believed that a notice just sent out by Mr. Glover is the result. This notice quotes the various sections of the postal regulations dealing with the subject, including the requirement stating, "Money orders must be issued and mailed to senders on the same date that C. O. D. parcels are delivered, if possible. If not, they should be issued without fail on the following business day. Delay in making remittances will not be tolerated."

Of interest to florists are the references to undeliverable matter, the postmasters being cautioned to use every effort to make deliveries and, failing of that, to immediately notify the sender. T. N. S.

Sweet Peas Are Often Used for the Bride's Bouquet.

Many Opportunities.

In addition to the flowers shown in these illustrations, many others have been employed in the brides' bouquets by some of the leading florists of the country. Snapdragons have been used to splendid effect. Gladiolus blooms admit of many effects, because of the numerous dainty shades and markings. The spikes may be shortened, or the florets may be pulled off the spike and wired in place in the midst of accompanying blooms.

In the fall of the year swainsona has come to be deservedly popular. It makes a charming shower bouquet. Some of the baby pompon chrysanthemums can be used; they are more generally employed in the bridesmaids' bouquets. In the latter, indeed, anything and everything is now being used—cosmos, dahlias and many flowers scarcely used at all a few years ago. The list might be much prolonged, to include, indeed, nearly everything the florist uses. The results depend upon the individual florist's ability. But you will be surprised at what you can do and what praise customers will return if you try something new for the bouquets of the brides of June and of the other eleven months of the year, not to speak of their bridesmaids.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

After a dull period preceding Memorial day, it was expected that the holiday would materially change conditions, but, as far as the cut flower business was concerned, the results of the Friday, Saturday and Sunday business were rather disappointing. There was no dearth of stock in any line, but it could not be said that the market was crowded. The peony supply was large, but not so large as in some previous years, and much of the stock arriving was too tight in bud, with prospective opening a future from the holiday. Herbaceous flowers arrived in large quantity, and, in the face of a three-day holiday, clearances were forced, but, nevertheless, returns were satisfactory. Oriental poppies, in red, sold well, and stood handling and shipping satisfactorily. There was a good demand for green material for making up, and plant sales were good. Several of the wholesalers had stocky, well-flowered plants of Hydrangea otaksa.

Roses of all staple varieties were in good supply, but prices did not soar, as the demand was quiet. American Beauty moved at summer figures, and the supply was liberal. Red roses were stronger in values, with a better demand.

Carnations met with good sales up to Saturday night. It would be interesting to know how many shipments some growers made within two days.

Orchids were not in particular demand, and the supply was in accordance with the demand. Spray orchids were hardly a commodity in the market.

White lilies were in ordinary supply. There was plenty of lily of the valley, which met a moderate demand. Sweet peas were in somewhat of an oversupply, but their movement was fair.

The market Monday, May 30, was dull and uninteresting. Arrivals were larger than might have been expected, and the demand was almost too small to make a market. Arrivals of roses would intimate that the cut was exhausted in previous shipments, and carnations were to be given a rest at least twenty-four hours. Memorial day business was really ended at an early hour.

Various Notes.

The death of William H. Fierabend, carnation grower of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is reported as of the evening of May 28, through blood poisoning, resulting from a decayed tooth.

At a meeting of the Associated Retail Florists of New York, held at the Hotel Pennsylvania, Wednesday evening, May 25, the matter of the assessment of one-half of one per cent on all purchases of flowers at wholesale was fully discussed, and it was agreed that it should go into effect. A committee was appointed to interview the trade, with the idea of making the assessment a custom. Most of the prominent retailers have already allowed their favorable action in the circumstances to be made public.

The custom of using flowers on Memorial day lost nothing of its significance this year, flowers being used at all the important functions of the day. A notable occurrence was the hanging of a wreath on the Statue of Liberty, at the entrance to the harbor of New York, by the United American War Veterans. The wreath, which was twenty-seven feet in diameter, was made by Le Moult and was composed of hemlock, gilded cycas leaves, artificial poppies and a loop and streamers of bunting of the national colors. The wreath was too big for transportation, so was assembled from prepared sections at Bedloe's island. Electrical illumination, about 200 bulbs, was provided for, and the lighting is to be continued for a week, with search lights in addition. As a part of the ceremony of decoration, flowers, provided by the florists of New York, with credit for the donation given by the local papers, were cast upon the waters in memory of the departed who gave their lives to their country.

Arrangements have been completed for the traveling to the Washington convention of the S. A. F. The transportation committee of the New York Florists' Club announces that the party train will leave the Pennsylvania railroad terminal at 11:08 a. m., daylight time, arriving in Washington at 4:30 p. m., Monday, August 15. This schedule insures that the party will be in Washington in ample time to attend the first session of the convention, which opens at 10 a. m. the morning of the first day of the convention, instead of in the afternoon, as has previously been the custom. Daisies Are Adaptable to the Shower Bouquet.

WILL IMPROVE C. O. D. SERVICE.

"Retention of funds collected on account of C. O. D. parcels is a violation of the regulations and may render the employee responsible liable to prosecution for embezzlement," is a section of the postal laws and regulations which has been called to the attention of employees of the postal service by Third Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover.

There has been some complaint that parcel post C. O. D. service has not been satisfactory because of delayed returns. Business men have taken the problem up with the postmaster-general and it is believed that a notice just sent out by Mr. Glover is the result. This notice quotes the various sections of the postal regulations dealing with the subject, including the requirement stating, "Money orders must be issued and mailed to senders on the same date that C. O. D. parcels are delivered, if possible. If not, they should be issued without fail on the following business day. Delay in making remittances will not be tolerated."

Of interest to florists are the references to undeliverable matter, the postmasters being cautioned to use every effort to make deliveries and, failing of that, to immediately notify the sender. T. N. S.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

W. E. Peters, Burlington, Vt., reports a banner Memorial day business, in which the natural product took first place, while there was a good sale of artificial goods.

• • • •

The Gove Flower Shop, Burlington, Vt., sold out all salable stock for Memorial day. Since the firm possesses greenhouses, a great variety of stock is carried and that left over is usually cleaned up in later plantings.

• • • •

The Montpelier Greenhouses, Montpelier, Vt., sold out all salable stock some time before Memorial day, which was the best ever, according to Proprietor George Emslie, who stated that his brother, at the Barre Greenhouses, met with the same satisfactory experience.

• • • •

"No kick coming," commented F. J. Bixby, Manchester, N. H., while assisting in loading several trucks with tubs filled with geraniums grown through the winter and now selling for $5 and up apiece. "Worth it every time, but 'tis quite an ad for other stock," thinks our farsighted contemporary, and he stated that Memorial day business overtopped former years.

• • • •

"Pleased to see you, but awfully busy," observed Herman C. Stache, Manchester, N. H.; "in fact, no rest this week, day or night. I believe we are doing larger business for Memorial day and after than ever before. I cannot say positively, yet our stock, which was never better, is going fast at good prices."

• • • •

"It surely pays," observed H. M. Totman, of the H. M. Totman Co., Randolph, Vt., in commenting upon the company's superfine stock of bedding plants, particularly geraniums, attributing it to the fact of continuing fire heat late, with open ventilators. It is conceded that geraniums can be grown at a profit if wholesaled at $20 per hundred for 3½-inch stock. The strain of S. A. Nutt is fine. Carefully selected to type, it heads the list. Carnations are also of top grade. White Benora is a favorite. Commenting upon the increase in wholesale shipping and local retail business, Mr. Totman stated that this season has surpassed all its predecessors and warrants expansion.

What is described as a sight-seeing tour was recently made by W. W. Hannell, of W. W. Hannell & Son, Watervliet, N. Y. In speaking of a visit to the leading eastern growers, on which he was accompanied by Mrs. Hannell, he said, "It is essential that growers, both of plants and cut flowers, come together in closer contact to help one another by the interchange of ideas."

Fred Goldring, Slingerlands, N. Y., reported everything salable cleaned out for Memorial day, something unknown before the advent of the automobile.

• • • •

Ed Tracey, of the Rosery, Albany, N. Y., commented upon the setback given city trade by the strike of the traction employees. Out-of-town business has helped to some extent to make what would, but for the strike, be a fine season.

• • • •

Christian Dehn, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., pointed with pardonable pride to a gates-ajar costing an even $100 and two wreaths at $50 apiece among other work for Memorial day. For several days previous special sales of plants were advertised with excellent results.

"Fine Memorial day business," is the report from Henry Schrade & Sons, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., "with contracts for summer planting equal to, if not surpassing, former seasons."

• • • •

The John Ralph Estate, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., is doing a flourishing business under the able management of the two Ralph sisters. Among the big planting contracts is the laying out of the grounds of the new country club.

• • • •

Henry Bensel, manager of the Schaeffer Estate Greenhouses, Ballston Spa, N. Y., had a fine crop of carnations for Memorial day, in which Laddie headed the list.

• • • •

The Crandell Flower Shop, Glens Falls, N. Y., reports big business for Memorial day and in planting the grounds of summer residents at Lake George, who have returned to the pre-war desire for elaborate plantings.

• • • •

A. J. Binley, Glens Falls, N. Y., scoured the surrounding country for blooming plants to help out their large sales around Memorial day.

• • • •

J. L. Watkins & Son, Hudson Falls, N. Y., had all they could attend to with Memorial day orders. Myron J. Watkins, a graduate of the floricultural department at Cornell University, is an active addition to the firm. He will specialize in landscape work. George M. Watkins has charge of the greenhouses.

While the traction strike must have affected the total volume of business done around Memorial day, F. A. Danker, of Albany; A. D. Carpenter, Cohoes; J. G. Barrett and Sambrook Bros., Troy, and Henkes Bros., of Watervliet, N. Y., each experienced surprise at the volume shown, evidence that the demand for good stock is increasing and that, under normal conditions, it would have been away ahead of any previous season.

WHICH SOIL IS BETTER?

This is in regard to this year's planting of carnations and chrysanthemums. I have had a large piece of good sod turned under this spring. Will this sod rot enough this spring to be used in the carnation and chrysanthemum benches?

I also have had some good rotted cow manure put on another piece of ground, on which sweet corn was grown last year. There was enough manure put in to make a mixture of about one-third manure to two-thirds soil when it was turned under. Do you think that this ground will be all right to use for carnations and mums? The manure was well rotted and the ground each year has had good, heavy coatings of manure. Which do you think is the better soil to use?

W. B. V.—Mich.

We should prefer to use this year the soil on which you grew sweet corn last year and into which you plowed a heavy coat of cattle manure this spring. This soil should grow high-grade mums and carnations. The sod which you turned under this spring would, undoubtedly, grow good mums, but we prefer it more thoroughly rotted for carnations than it would be by midsummer. Spread a good coat of cattle or stable manure over it and let it lie until fall, at which time it should be plowed again and left to lie until spring and then plowed again. Should weeds spring up during the summer, disk it before the weeds get too large or, if you have no disk, turn it with your plow. There is no danger of turning it too often, if you do not handle it too wet. Turn it as late as possible this fall and leave it as rough as possible.

A. F. J. B.

WHY NO BLOOMS?

I have about 500 White Enchantress plants which did not yield more than 100 blooms this season. These plants had fine growth and looked as though they were doing well, but they did not make buds. The other varieties did well under the same conditions. Can you tell me the cause? G. G.—Tex.

Your White Enchantress plants made what we know as "wild growth." If you propagated these plants yourself, you will probably recall that you took the cuttings from plants that were full of thrifty-looking cuttings. They were scattered through the bench and you did not notice that these particular plants had not made many blooms at the time you took the cuttings.

This is not a new thing. We have seen varieties practically go out of cultivation for this reason and as far back as we know carnation history. Probably you did not propagate from these plants this year, but if you did, throw them out and buy stock from some reliable grower.

THE RETAIL STORE

A PAGE OF HINTS AND HELPS FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

TOPEKA'S NEW STORE.

Hayes Makes Another Move.

That competition and coöperation can go hand in hand was plainly shown at the opening of the new store of James Hayes, Jr., at Topeka, Kan. At the right of the illustration of the interior of the store, shown on this page, there is seen a large and beautiful basket filled with Premier roses. This was sent to Mr. Hayes, with the compliments and good wishes of the Topeka retail florists and growers, at the time of his opening the store. Quite a contrast to the days, not so long ago either, when the florist on one block thought that the florist on the next block was his sworn enemy, and acted accordingly.

And Mr. Hayes did open a real store. Located as it is in a town of about 50,000, it is a store that would rank with the best of them in a large metropolis. In order properly to describe the well-chosen equipment of the store, the thing to do is to start in at the front windows and proceed to the rear. The show windows are nine feet deep, with a trellised mirror effect and opening wide into the store. The floors are of glazed, jet-black tile. The floor in the store is of tile, easy to clean, but bad to slip and fall on. The walls of the store are of tapestry brick, built eight feet in height, and of cream color. Above this brick wall is a painted surface. The lighting fixtures are of hand-wrought bronze in quaint style. At intervals in the brick wall are piers which will be capped with large urns of hedge plants. The interior, when it is set with flowers, looks like a garden. The display tables are topped with jet-black opal glass.

At the rear of the room is a stairway leading up to the well-equipped rest room for the weary or waiting customers. This stairway is cream-colored and carpeted. On the main floor, under the balcony and behind the brick wall, is the workroom and a new department of the store, handling bulbs. The whole interior of the store is remarkably well done and is a pretty sight.

Third Store.

This is the third move of the company. Thirty-five years ago, James Hayes, Sr., established a greenhouse at Seventeenth and Strong avenues. His sales and deliveries were all handled direct from the greenhouse. In 1890 he branched out with a downtown store, on West Eighth avenue, in an old building which occupied the site of the present Orpheum theater. The room was twenty-five feet square. The downtown branch was considered a decided venture at that time. In 1913 the West Eighth avenue store was abandoned, and another "gamble" was taken in the moving to 819 Kansas avenue, where half of the store was leased. Now comes the third move, to their present location, where there is 2,500 square feet of space for the display and workrooms.

While James Hayes, Sr., was establishing a reputation for his flowers, James, Jr., was growing up in the greenhouses. After spending five years in the growing of plants and flowers, the young man was given an interest in the business. Seven years ago, the son bought out the father's share. The senior, who is now 74 years of age, retired from the business at the time that his son took over the whole thing.

Opening Day.

May 17, the opening day, is a day that will long be remembered, not only by the Hayes family, but also by the general public. Everyone who stepped into the store was given a rose. Over 7,000 roses were given away. Men, women and children were all there. A crowd of over 200 was waiting at the door when the store was opened. A band was playing catchy strains and everybody was happy. In the line waiting to get a flower was the wife of one of Topeka's wealthiest oil producers, and just behind her were two little pickaninnies. They all got flowers.

James Hayes, Jr., was unable to be present on account of illness, but the many wishes of success and the numerous congratulations, which almost everyone in Topeka wanted to extend to the popular proprietor, were well taken by his father, whose many friends were glad to see him on active duty once more, even though it were only for a day.

ONE DAY'S BUSINESS.

One of those florists who are enthusiasts about telegraph business was talking, in his shop in Pasadena last week, about the florists' business in the summer months in that wonderful city, filled to overflowing with wealthy travelers every day during the winter months.

"We are busy every day, thanks largely to telegraph orders," he said; "you would be surprised how many telegrams we send from the transients to the home folks, each greeting 'Saying It with Flowers.' We have received as many as twenty telegraph orders in a day. Mothers' day was a sure indication of the continuance and the value of this service to the retail florists of the country.

"But apart from the travelers, our home trade is booming even now. Take today as an example: Early this morning we sent a handsome basket of roses to the daughter of 'Lucky' Baldwin in honor of the advent of his first grandchild. At 2 p. m. we decorated for a large dinner at the Flint Ridge Country Club; at 3 p. m. we filled a large family order for the funeral of a prominent citizen and at 7 p. m. furnished an elaborate wedding decoration at the hotel.

"Never before have we had the experience of all four happening in one day — the inception of life, the pleasures of life, the passing on and the beginning of a home life again to pass through the preceding stages. Many times two or three will occur, but the four rarely. Have you heard of it?''

''Shall I tell your name?'' the writer asked the florist, and he replied, ''They all know it.''

Can you guess it? It is a name familiar to Fifth avenue, New York, for over half a century.

THE BEST AD

SATISFYING OUR CUSTOMERS.

Opportunities for Salesmanship.

To me the greatest advertising value is to be found in personal salesmanship. No salesman's talent is worth anything if it does not center its attention in the real needs and desires of a customer. To satisfy a customer beyond his own expectations is really accomplishing the greatest task, leading to results that the most expensive advertising effort cannot surpass. How to do that, you may wish to know. The answer in a nutshell would be to master salesmanship.

This, of course, is a science as unlimited as the study of our own profession. But a few of the main pointers will act as guides toward success, though my limited notes can only cover a few of the ideas we must have in mind when transacting business.

Most of our customers have but little idea of flowers, their requirements, their value, their usefulness, their influence on mind, and we ought to be in a position to give information; that is, to know by heart the stock we sell. Furthermore, we must ourselves know, as much as possible, the charms possessed by flowers which attract the buyer and lead him to the conclusion that to spend his money for our stock is to secure a certain satisfaction worth the price charged. When a customer's wants are once known to us we must take every precaution that he will receive entire satisfaction from his purchase.

The Ultimate Profit.

Just to obtain the purchase price should never be a salesman's final aim or goal, as the advertising value of a sale is completely lost if the customer does not feel proud or pleased with his purchase. Nine times out of ten the advertising value of a satisfactory sale to a customer is worth more, much more, than the amount of money involved in the transaction. If we only could and would bear this point everlastingly in our minds, there would have to be little money spent for a publicity campaign. Our goods possess such appealing qualities to the human mind that there are few persons who would not patronize us if they realized they would get their money's worth from every purchase. But how few of our patrons really realize the nature and value of our goods and who is to blame if they are disappointed when our stock fails to satisfy? Is it not your duty to give patrons the information which may lead to sales such as result in patrons that act as your advertising agents, often enthusiastic over your service that they have paid for? Enthusiastic patrons wield a publicity force of inestimable value. The public will listen to the disinterested booster of your business and place faith in his judgment wholeheartedly and without suspicion, while your loudest and costliest advertisements will barely be given grudging attention. How often can one notice what an interest is taken in reading matter when the same subject as advertising matter is not given any consideration!

Automobiles or Flowers?

The matter of price and value of our stock merits a little observation. You are familiar with it, but you may be interested in comparisons with other lines of merchandise the public buys. Take a glance at the automobile industry. You may think the automobile is a necessity, but, upon close examination, I find that there is more than ten times as much money spent for the needless luxury in the automotive industry as there is spent for flowers and garden luxuries.

Almost anyone knows that $1,000 invested in an automobile will secure all the transportation needed for a person to get along these days. Less money will do it for most of us. I consider this a basic value, above which the additional price secures only a passing luxury that soon loses its purchase value. Does this sure and certain loss of value deter the public from buying more expensive automobiles? No, not by a long way; the more a person pays for his machine, the prouder he is of it and he willingly deprives himself of real necessities he ought to have for his health and well being.

Why is it that this selfsame individual, who may be happy to squander $1,000 or $1,500 for something he knows he will lose within two or three years, is absolutely opposed to spending $100 or $200 on plants or shrubs for his yard and home, which, at less than half the expense of upkeep of an automobile, will increase in value year by year and often return their cost many times over in the final sales-price of the home? Meanwhile they are the pride and joy of their owner and every passer-by will take notice of them with pleasure. The whole valuation of a city is greatly influenced by the beauty of home grounds and reflects like a mirror the character of its citizens, for no city of slouchy people would maintain beautiful home grounds. The buyer of real estate quickly judges the value and desirability by the appearance of the surroundings. Why, then, do we see so many luxuries, costly and fleeting by nature, when our line of goods—flowers and plants—is a real investment?

Correct Presentation.

I think we fail to present to the public the proper information on our stock and we are not making enough effort to assure our customers complete satisfaction and we undervalue the advertising value of a satisfied buyer. Cheap flowers must not be sold for more than they are worth and the nature of a plant must be explained when it is sold, so that the buyer may know whether it answers his wants or not. Never forget that the purchase price is of less consideration and importance than the satisfaction derived therefrom. Failure to receive satisfaction discourages timid people from trying, while success encourages everyone and leads to greatly increased use of our stock in trade. This holds good in all lines, but is most important in ours.

USES OF LIME IN SOIL

ANTIDOTING ACID SOIL.

By DR. P. A. LEHENBAUER.

Lime Does the Work.

Soils which contain an excess of organic material or which are poorly drained are frequently acid in reaction. This acidity may be detected by means of the litmus paper test, as indicated in the article in The Review of May 26. In order to correct soil acidity, lime is applied to the soil. Lime has the power to neutralize acids and substitute instead a compound which is harmless to plant growth.

There often is confusion in the minds of growers in regard to the different forms of lime. The many terms applied frequently are not understood and yet an understanding of different forms of lime is essential in the proper use of this material in soils. We have such terms as limestone, magnesian limestone, dolomitic limestone, oxide of lime, burned lime, ground lime, hydrated lime, waste lime, and several others less frequently used. What is the meaning of these terms and how do these forms of lime differ in their use?

What Is Limestone?

Limestone is a common rock found in nature, consisting largely of calcium carbonate. The calcium carbonate, of course, is the compound which is desired, for it is this compound which neutralizes soil acidity. Whatever else there is in limestone is of little or no importance. The amount of calcium carbonate in limestone is variable; good limestone contains ninty-five per cent of this compound, while the poorer grades contain but from sixty to eighty per cent. It is quite evident that, since the impurities have no value, it does not pay as a rule to purchase the lower grades of limestone.

Magnesian limestone is similar to the limestone discussed above except that it contains, in addition to calcium carbonate, a compound known as magnesium carbonate. This additional compound does not decrease the value or efficiency, but as a fertilizer magnesian limestone is usually considered equal to the ordinary limestone. Dolomite is but another name for magnesian limestone. Dolomite is less soluble in water than calcium limestone and for this reason, in order to get immediate results, the latter is sometimes preferred. Dolomite also leaches from soils more slowly than does the calcium form of limestone.

Preparing for Use.

Limestone, both the calcium limestone and the magnesian limestone, is prepared for use in soils by grinding or pulverizing. The value of the limestone, so far as its immediate activity in the soil is concerned, depends upon the extent to which it is pulverized. The finer it is pulverized the more readily it goes into solution and it is only in solution that chemical compounds are effective. The usual specification is that a large percentage of the lime shall pass through a 60-mesh sieve (sixty meshes to the linear inch); some recommend that at least eighty per cent should pass through a 100-mesh sieve.

Oxide of lime is the product obtained when limestone is burned. The calcium carbonate of the limestone loses carbonic acid during the heating process and the oxide of lime remains. This oxide of lime is the product commonly called quicklime. If it occurs in lump form it is usually referred to as "lump lime" and when "lump lime" has been finely ground, without any other treatment, it is known as "ground lime."

When oxide of lime, or quicklime, is treated with water it becomes hot and crumbles to a fine powder. The process is known as slaking, and the product of slaking is hydrated lime, also known as slaked lime, calcium hydroxide, lime hydroxide, and hydrated lime. Waste lime is the term applied to waste products containing lime in some form, obtained from gas works, paper mills, iron works, etc. In addition to the lime, other substances may be present in these waste products, some of which may be injurious to plants. The value of waste lime as a fertilizer depends upon these additional substances as well as the content of lime oxide or carbonate of lime present.

As a remedy for acid soils, lime is used by growers under glass and outdoors. It has value for other purposes as well. In using it, the grower is surer of getting the results he desires if he understands the effects and the comparative strength of the various forms of lime. These are stated in clear and definite terms in this article.

More Values Than One.

When we think of lime we have in mind, as a rule, only its value in making the soil sweet; that is, its use in correcting acidity. This, however, is not the only use of lime; in fact, this function is of second importance. Practically all plants require calcium, one of the elements contained in lime, as a food material and all soils, therefore, must contain this element. The amount of calcium required in this way, however, is small and it is probably true that the great majority of soils contain sufficient lime to meet the direct requirements of the plant. However, lime has also an indirect value in plant nutrition and plays a part which is of first importance in the growth of plants.

One of the essentials of a good soil is the organic material. By organic material we mean the manures which are put into soils and all cover crops and other plants which are plowed under. This organic material furnishes the food necessary for the growth of useful bacteria and it is the bacteria which render nitrogen in the soil available to plants. In other words, the decomposition of organic materials is essential for good growth. Lime is of value in that it stimulates the decomposition of organic matter and in that it produces conditions which are favorable to a decomposition that will be most beneficial to the growing plant. The bacteria which make the nitrogen available thrive only in a soil which contains lime and, consequently, when lime is added to the soil the decay processes of organic materials will be carried out and the nitrogen will be liberated in a form needed by the growing plant.

It should be added also, that the addition of lime to heavy soils improves their physical condition. It makes heavy soils more porous, so that both air and water will circulate more freely and thus chemical changes take place more readily. Again, in sandy soils the addition of lime often leads to a markedly greater water-holding capacity and this again is favorable to better chemical conditions in such soils.

Fineness and Quality Count.

If ground to the same degree of fineness and if the purity is the same, all forms of ground limestone are approximately alike. Of two samples of the same purity but one pulverized to a finer degree, the one more finely pulverized is the more active; on the other hand, if the two samples are of equal degree of fineness but one of purer quality than the other, the sample of the greater purity is the more efficient.

All forms of burned lime are approximately of the same degree of fineness when slaked, so that the efficiency of burned lime depends only on the purity or content of calcium, or of calcium and magnesium in the case of dolomitic limestone. In comparing, therefore, limestone with burned lime as to immediate efficiency, we must consider the fineness to which the limestone has been prepared. In order to secure immediate results, the fineness of the limestone should be such that the larger part will pass through a 100-mesh sieve. We must also compare the equivalent value of the limestone, when calculated, to the burned lime or the oxide, as it is called. This relative value of the two is in the ratio of 56 to 100; or, in other words, 100 pounds of carbonate must be used to produce the same chemical effect as fifty-six pounds of oxide. On this basis, also, a grade of limestone which is fairly pure is worth only about half as much per ton as a high grade of burned lime.

As to the relative effects on plant growth of these two forms of lime compounds, the consensus may be expressed in quoting from an Ohio Station bulletin: "In actual practice the experiments made by the Ohio Experiment Station have shown no practical superiority of one form of lime over the other, provided the limestone has been so ground that eighty per cent of it will pass through a sieve having 100 meshes to the linear inch and provided, of course, that the two materials have been used on the basis of the actual calcium contained." In other words, either limestone or burned lime may be used, provided the limestone is reasonably pure and is finely ground, and provided it is kept in mind that 100 pounds of limestone equal fifty-six pounds of lime oxide.

Slaked lime also may be used. As said above, slaked lime is formed when water combines with the lime oxide. Air-slaked lime is formed when the oxide is exposed to air. In the case of air-slaked lime, the product has been formed more slowly, for the water was taken from the air and, consequently, the heat generated in the process is not apparent, but the product is the same as when the oxide is slaked by adding water. Compared with the oxide, its value, however, is less. The relation between the two is as 100 to 75.7. In other words, two parts of oxide are equal to three of slaked lime. The relation between the carbonate (limestone), the oxide (burned or quicklime), and hydrated lime (slaked lime), then, is as follows: 100 pounds of carbonate are equal to seventy-six pounds of hydrate or fifty-six pounds of oxide.

How to Use Lime.

When contemplating the use of lime, certain facts should be kept in mind. In the first place, lime in any form should not be applied to soils which are deficient in organic matter. Lime in such soils would do only harm. The first essential, perhaps, of a soil is that it must contain organic matter in order to support plant growth. Organic matter is supplied by means of natural manures and such commercial fertilizers as dried blood and tankage. If sufficient manure is not at hand, the plowing under of green crops, such as clovers, cowpeas and other plants, is the only other method of supplying soils with organic matter. Lime will hasten the decomposition of this organic matter and make the nitrogen-containing materials soluble and, hence, available. Quicklime or lime oxide will bring about decomposition more rapidly than will limestone. It is, therefore, more effective in producing available nitrogen quickly. However, since its action is rapid, quicklime must be used with caution. It should not be mixed with manure or other organic fertilizers, such as dried blood or tankage, for the nitrogen in these substances is liberated rapidly, as a result of the action of the quicklime, and thus it may be lost before the plant can use it. The effects of overfeeding with nitrogen may also naturally follow. The same rule applies also if ammonium sulphate is used as a fertilizer. In order to hasten decomposition of manure, quicklime may be used in small quantities, but in this case the lime should be added before the plants are put in the soil and precautions should be taken to prevent the loss of the nitrogen.

What to Avoid.

Lime in any form should not be mixed with or applied at the same time with acid phosphate. This is because the lime tends to change the water-soluble phosphoric acid to an insoluble form, so that the plant cannot use it. Aside from this fact, limestone may be applied at any time. The oxide form, especially if the unslaked form is used, should, however, not be applied at a time when it will come in contact with seeds or young roots of plants. As stated above, the oxide form of lime should not be mixed with stable manure.

The quantity of lime to apply depends upon the soil, and on the form of lime used. Large quantities of limestone seem to do no harm, but the results are not necessarily better than when smaller quantities are applied. From one to three tons per acre every few years is in most cases ample for field soils. In case burned lime is used, half the amount is used. For soils in greenhouses a sprinkling of from ten to twenty pounds of limestone, or less than half that amount of burned lime, to each 100 square feet is ample.

GUDE AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

The illustration on this page shows the Washington representative of the S. A. F. photographed with President Harding on the White House lawn on the occasion of the Rotary Club's presentation of the statue, "Spirit of Rotary," which the president holds in his left hand.

The statue, "Spirit of Rotary," was brought from Honolulu by Charles W. Brown, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, immediately on the president's right, and Mr. Burnham, the sculptor, who stands next to William F. Gude.

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

The heavy rains throughout last week were in marked contrast to the record-breaking heat wave of the previous week. As a result, outdoor flowers of all kinds, especially peonies, were just about ready for Memorial day. However, the rains did much to ruin the flowers, and a great many people resorted to bedding stock in place of flowers.

The demand for plants for decorative purposes has been heavier than last year, and geraniums have been almost cleaned up. There will be plenty for everyone, however, as a number of the growers have stock that will bloom soon.

The cut flower market showed a marked drop in wholesale prices, when they are compared with those of Mothers' day. Roses were plentiful. Carnations were soft, but held their price well. Sweet peas are showing the effect of the heat wave and will soon be done indoors. Wild daisies, which have been given cultivation, are good stock now, helping considerably for making bouquets, etc., for inexpensive work. Cornflowers from coldframes are in good demand.

Various Notes.

John Lambert, formerly with Mrs. J. B. Freeman and now with the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., spent a few days' vacation in Toledo. His good friend, Tim Magee, of the Scottwood Greenhouses, commandeered his services over Memorial day. Business at the Scottwood Greenhouses is constantly on the upward trend.

W. F. Krueger, who had an optical operation in January, is able to withstand the glare of the greenhouse light by using black glasses.

Schramm Bros. report the call for bedding stock heavier than it was last year. Business in general is far ahead of that up to this time last year.

Metz & Bateman have had an unusually heavy call in funeral work.

SOWING SWEET PEAS IN POTS.

Advised by William Gray.

It is a well known fact that, if conditions are favorable, sweet peas sown in the fall give much earlier and finer blooms than those sown in the open in the spring, but few localities are favored with climatic conditions suitable for fall sowings in the open to winter successfully, and the practice is a hit-or-miss one even with the most expert growers. Spring sowing in the open has been the general practice followed. This also has its faults, inasmuch as it does not allow sufficient time for the young plants to become thoroughly established before warm weather sets in and, in consequence, inferior blooms are the result, states William Gray in the American Sweet Pea Society Bulletin.

The pot method, he says, overcomes all these uncertainties, the seed being sown either in the fall or during January or February and wintered in coldframes or a cool greenhouse. If sown in the fall, it is best to sow not later than October, so that the young plants may become established in the pots before the short days of the year arrive; later sowings will be inclined to weakness, owing to the absence of the sunny conditions necessary to build up vigor in plant life, and much better results will be had by waiting until the middle of January, when under the influence of longer days with increasing sunlight, strong, vigorous plants can be grown.

Sowing the Seed.

The seed may be sown directly in the pots, one seed to each pot or several, according to the size of the pots, or the seed may be sown in pans or flats and afterwards transplanted to the pots. If the highest culture is aimed at, it is preferable to grow a single plant in each pot, plants grown from fall sowings being carried up to the end of January in 3-inch or 3½-inch pots, and then given a shift into 5-inch or 6-inch pots, which will carry them through nicely until planting time in the open ground. On shifting, stick short brush in the pots to keep the plants upright. January and February sowings can be carried through in 3-inch or 3½-inch pots until planting time in the open ground.

Plants from fall sowings will bloom earlier and be at their best over a much longer period than January sowings, for the advantage gained lies in the earlier start, which brings them into bloom the end of May, and they are at their best throughout June, a period more suitable to the sweet pea. January and February sowings come into bloom about the middle of June, being at their best at the end of the same month and early July, after which, owing to hot weather conditions, stems shorten up and flowers get smaller quickly.

Florists Can Supply Plants.

No one, not even the amateur grower, need feel that the growing of plants is a difficult operation. Fine plants can be grown in a well protected coldframe in a sheltered position on the south side of a house or other structure that will break the cold winds. A 3x6-foot sash will cover sufficient plants to plant a considerable length of row and will give a wealth of bloom.

Local florists could find ready sale for plants grown from January-sown seed, once their customers tried them out and were delighted with the results from planting plants instead of seed in their gardens.

CONCRETE IN GREENHOUSES.

The publicity organ of the Alpha Portland Cement Co., called Alpha Aids, devotes its latest issue chiefly to the use of concrete in the greenhouse. The cover illustration, a handsome one, shows the greenhouses on the estate of A. F. Luke, Beverly Farms, Mass., built by Hitchings & Co., Elizabeth, N. J. The feature article of the number describes the Ready-Set concrete bench of the Mead-Suydam Co., Newark, N. J., with profuse illustrations. The back cover reproduces blueprint service sheets prepared by the Alpha Portland Cement Co. for the use of those using concrete in the construction of greenhouses, flower boxes and garden seats.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Cleveland, O.—George Bate, receiver for the Smith & Fetters Co., reports that an appraisal of the assets of the company has been made by H. P. Knoble, Charles Graham and Albert Barber, a summary of which is as follows: Cash, $3,000; accounts receivable, $4,500; merchandise, $900; furniture and fixtures, $1,800.

The receiver has endeavored to make a sale of the property as a going concern, as he feels in that way the best price can be secured, and the best offer he has to date is $2,000 for the furniture, fixtures and merchandise. In view of the fact that the receiver at the present time is operating the business at a loss, he thinks it for the best interest of creditors to accept this offer and to liquidate the company as soon as possible. If no one comes forward with a better offer the application to sell the property mentioned above will be on for hearing in the Common Pleas court Friday, June 3. This sale will include the transfer to the purchaser of all the good will that is left in the company.

FLORIDA FERN CATERPILLAR.

The Florida fern caterpillar, Callopistra floridensis, found in Florida as long ago as 1852, has since caused much damage to ferns grown under glass. Boston, Whitmanii and Scottii are frequently subject to its attacks. The caterpillar is an active feeder and when several occur on a single plant they soon effect serious damage. The young and tender leaves are, of course, preferred.

The adult of the Florida fern caterpillar is a beautiful moth about one and one-half inches wide when the wings are expanded. The wings are marked with various shades of brown and pinkish white. Females deposit pale greenish eggs on the under surface of new leaves. The caterpillar hatches in from five to seven days. In the early stages the larvæ are green, but in the last stage, in addition to green individuals, a number are reddish or brownish, some with conspicuous white bands. All forms, however, have a black band across the body just behind the head and this should serve as a characteristic mark to determine the species. When fully fed they leave the plants to make earthen cocoons on the surface of the soil. Transformation to the moth state is complete in about two weeks.

In addressing the last convention of Canadian florists, Arthur Gibson, of the Dominion department of agriculture, at Ottawa, Ont., stated that among the methods of control which have been adopted for destroyinig these caterpillars, the following spray has proved successful:

Fresh pyrethrum insect powder, 1 ounce.
Common laundry soap, ½ ounce.
Water, 1 gallon.

The soap should be dissolved in a small quantity of warm water, after which the insect powder and water should be added to make up one gallon of mixture. Apply once a week for five or six weeks or until control is obtained.

In a house infested by this insect excellent control was secured by simply dusting fresh pyrethrum insect powder over the infested plants by means of a blower. Two applications a week were made until the caterpillars were all destroyed.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

IF anyone else has a flower holiday to propose, he should pick a date in June.

COURTESY is necessary before a sale is made. It flatters after the order is taken.

THERE are, as usual, a good many geraniums which will not be in bloom until the middle or latter part of June.

GOOD growers still are scarce. It will be years before the trade can have a sufficient body of experienced and capable help.

IT is a conservative statement of fact that the arrival of June never saw the trade more closely sold out on bedding stock.

THE spring business of 1921 gives the trade every encouragement to go ahead and work up a big supply of bedding stock for 1922.

AS a trade we have every reason to congratulate ourselves on our spring season. In no other line of business has trade held up better and in few so well.

NOW that the warm days are here, put in the cool windows that have brought florists in many cities so much notice. The Review has frequently told how.

YOUR deliveryman can be a means of transportation and nothing more, or he may be a salesman, collector and complaint-man in one. It's worth a few extra dollars to have one of the latter type.

WAR profits seldom are permanent profits. In the case of the seed trade war profits are pretty much gone, but nurserymen have held theirs thus far and most florists still are in the accretion stage.

BE sure that if you send out poor stock today, you will never have the chance of filling a second order from the recipient. Present conditions allow florists to pick and choose with whom they will deal.

COLLECTIONS seldom are good in the summer. The florist who does not get after his money in June probably will have to wait until autumn before he can collect a good many of his accounts. There are lots of people who will use their ready cash for summer pleasures and let the florist wait for the pay for flowers long since dead and gone.

DON'T be satisfied to regard flowers as so much merchandise to be sold. Know enough about them to arouse your customers' enthusiasm.

IT is interesting to note that some of the growers who specialize on geraniums for the trade have not been caught up with orders in many months.

IF you show a fellow florist how to get more business in his neighborhood and he shows you how to get more in yours, both of you have acquired something and lost nothing. Do not hesitate to give the trade the advantage of your ideas.

PLAN to propagate as much as you can for next season, but see to it the stock is good. If the season now closing is an indication of what may be expected in 1922, there cannot be too much good spring stock, but there is sure to be too much that is poor.

ANOTHER BANNER HOLIDAY.

Each succeeding holiday this season has appeared to be even better than its predecessor by comparison with the same occasion in previous years. The last one of them, Memorial day, has run true to the form of the rest. The prediction in The Review that the various factors of interest in this May 30 promised to make it one of the best Memorial days, for florists the country over, proved quite accurate.

Reasonably priced goods sold best. Wreaths of all sorts were made up by retailers in large quantities in advance, and all sold well. Baskets of annuals of moderate price proved popular. Bedding plants, none too plentiful as the result of a short supply and previous brisk demand, were in strong request at the greenhouses of those florists located near cemeteries.

The army of the A. E. F. and its dead, in this country, has renewed the waning interest in Memorial day. The silk poppies of the French orphans, so widely commented on in the newspapers, were of great value in turning the public's thoughts towards flowers for this day. The florists assisted in the poppy propaganda, in many cases, by window decorations. The public became interested in the poppies and bought, not just poppies, but what the florist had best to offer. Such is the power of a bit of sentiment for advertising purposes.

The quickened interest in Memorial day florists should strive to maintain and increase. The holiday is not alone a soldiers' day, but an occasion of respect for all departed. All graves should be decorated that day.

JUNE IS HERE.

June is termed the month of brides, and florists will feature wedding windows, advertise their brides' bouquets and circularize those whose nuptials are announced in the local newspapers.

Do not forget that commencement time is here, too, and though there may be a ban on flowers at the public school graduation exercises in your city, there are many private schools, where the rule is the opposite. In either case, you should suggest and advertise that this notable occasion in each young life should be celebrated by a gift of flowers sent to the home.

And, moreover, let your efforts be undiminished in pushing business in general. Though the holidays—so far as florists are concerned—are past till autumn, the cash register still works and expenses cut the regular hole in the bank account. Let your store force go away on vacation one at a time—don't let them all vacation at once in your store during the summer. Let's all keep busy. The trade needs it; the times demand it.

FLORISTS MUST KEEP MOVING.

A half-million-dollar advertising campaign as a means of booming the candy business was discussed at the annual convention of the National Confectioners' Association at Atlantic City last week. A committee of advertising managers from four of the largest candy concerns in the country was appointed to act finally on the ideas and report back at an early date. It is proposed to use the newspapers and national periodicals as mediums.

NEXT WINTER'S COAL.

Coal men and transportation men agree that the coal trade is flat on its back. Mines are closed down and gondola cars are standing empty on the sidings because there is no market outlet.

This buyers' strike is a natural sequence to the period of profiteering on the part of the producers and dealers when they had the whip hand. That coal consumers are not as yet relenting indicates that they believe the bottom price of fuel has not been reached or that the excessive shipping rate will be reduced by congressional action.

But there is such a thing as intelligent self-interest. Freight rates will not drop overnight nor probably for several months. Coal may be cheaper, but, on the other hand, if everybody waits until the last moment before going into the market it will take a jump skyward. Common prudence and foresight would suggest that greenhouse men lay in a portion of their next winter's supply now. They may gain a little or lose a little by doing it, but the latter is better than facing empty bins and a coal famine when cold weather arrives.

BEST BY TEST.

J. H. Alexander is the son of J. K. Alexander, the widely known dahlia grower at East Bridgewater, Mass. Father and son, they are a pair of hustlers and have built up what is, perhaps, the world's largest business in dahlia roots. They have advertised widely, in trade papers and to the public. They have kept close account of expenditures and results, cutting off the non-productive advertising and employing the funds thus saved in enlarged advertising in the publications showing the best records. For several years the Alexander account with The Review has shown an annual increase. This tells why:

Sales have already depleted our surplus and we start planting May 31, so must discontinue advertising until fall. The Review is the best paying of the florists' papers.—J. K. Alexander (dictated by J. H. A.), East Bridgewater, Mass., May 23, 1921.

It is interesting to note that New England advertisers as well as those nearer home get the bulk of their sales through The Review, but whenever you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

James F. M. Farquhar.

General regret was felt in Boston horticultural circles when it became known that James F. M. Farquhar, one of the firm of R. & J. Farquhar Co., and its vice-president, had passed away May 23. He was born at Fyvie, Scotland, in 1853, his father being for many years head gardener at Fyvie Castle, where the son imbibed much of his love for and knowledge of his chosen profession. Coming to the United States in 1870, Mr. Farquhar secured employment at Providence, R. I. A few years later he went to Boston to assume charge of Forest Hills cemetery, which he beautified greatly and placed in the front rank of great American cemeteries.

In 1882 Mr. Farquhar started the seed business of R. & J. Farquhar & Co., on South Market street, Boston, with his brother, Robert. A third brother, John K. M. L. Farquhar, later joined the firm and became its president when Robert retired. While actively engaged in business, James Farquhar showed not only a keen knowledge of the seed and bulb business, but, being a broad horticulturist, he instituted a landscape department and built up a large and lucrative business, laying out some noted public grounds and private estates with great skill and taste. He was also one of the sumptuous decoration at the Copley Plaza hotel for the debut of Miss Webster, as well as some of the unique and charming Farquhar displays at shows in Horticultural hall, showed him to be a born leader in his craft.

Hard work, unfortunately, brought on an apoplectic shock in 1913, from which he made only partial recoveries and his long illness, borne with exemplary fortitude and patience, ended at the Boston City hospital, where he had been taken a fortnight before he passed away. The deceased was greatly esteemed among gardeners, florists and horticulturists generally, and his memory will be a precious one for many years to come.

Among the societies to which Mr. Farquhar belonged were the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, S. A. F., New England Seed Trade Association, Horticultural Club and Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston. He was an active member of the last named body for more than thirty years, being elected to honorary membership over two years ago. He served as one of the executive committee as far back as 1893.

Surviving Mr. Farquhar are his widow, formerly Miss Jennie Hunt, of Providence; three brothers, John K. M. L., ex-president of the S. A. F., Robert, at one time a member of the firm, and Dr. William Farquhar, of Aberdeen, Scotland; two sisters, Mrs. George Murison, of New York, and Mrs. James Henderson, of Scotland.

Funeral services were held at Forest Hill cemetery, the last resting place having been selected by the deceased many years ago. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, which filled the chapel, many seedsmen, florists, private gardeners and nurserymen being included. There were numerous beautiful floral tokens. The seed stores and nurseries of R. & J. Farquhar Co. were closed during the afternoon of the services. W. N. C.

Mrs. Teresa A. Budlong.

May 26 Mrs. Teresa A. Budlong, wife of the late Joseph A. Budlong and mother of Albert H. Budlong and Mrs. Florence B. Schupp, died at her home, 2418 Foster avenue, Chicago.

Mrs. Budlong was a member of a family well known to the trade and her passing away will recall to many of us the noteworthy career of three brothers, two of whom, Joseph A. and Lyman A. Budlong, removed to Chicago in the early sixties, leaving in Providence, R. I., the third brother, William H., who gained much fame in that city and nationally.

Lyman A., it will be recalled, occupied himself with market gardening and before his death in 1909 was cultivating more than 700 acres of land, was widely engaged in the pickle industry and was actively connected with the onion set trade. At his death the business was being conducted by his son, Joseph J., who is today additionally well known as president of the Lake View Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago.

Doubtless Mrs. Budlong was a great aid and inspiration to her husband, Joseph A., who built up a greenhouse and a wholesale cut flower business that had reached large proportions at the time of his death in 1906, when already Mr. Budlong had put the greenhouse management in the hands of his son, Albert H. Budlong, and the wholesale cut flower business under the management of his son-in-law, Philip C. Schupp, to whom their respective departments were later transferred.

The services for Mrs. Budlong were held in Rosehill chapel, Chicago, Saturday, May 28, when many friends gathered to do honor to the memory of their beloved friend. There were many flowers.

Mrs. M. E. Hollcraft.

Mrs. M. E. Hollcraft, for twenty years in the retail business at Topeka, Kan., died Monday evening, May 30. She had been in ill health for several years, but death came unexpectedly. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. May Bennor. During the time of the funeral, Thursday afternoon, June 2, all the Topeka flower shops were closed.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The week preceding Memorial day was the first one that afforded practically an entire week of pleasant weather in several months and, following six or seven rainy Saturdays, business with the seedsmen and florists was lively and kept everybody on the jump.

The closing days were especially busy ones in preparation for Memorial day and potted plants cleaned up well; cut flowers, made-up baskets and designs were also in demand, but the number of wreaths, crosses and other designs in magnolia leaves and artificial flowers was enormous, every corner store throughout the city handling these wares, while hawkers on the street displayed large numbers. The prices on these ranged from 98 cents in the department stores for small-sized wreaths, having half a dozen flowers, to more pretentious pieces that brought $5 to $8.

The clear, warm weather of several days was reflected in the larger supply of cut blooms than were available for Mothers' day, and there was not the almost prohibitive increase in prices that ruled on that occasion. Carnations ranged from $8 to $12 per hundred; roses, $6 to $25 per hundred; stocks, $4 to $6; marguerites, $1.50 to $4; callas and Easter lilies, $2 and $3 per dozen.

Various Notes.

Parker H. Nelson was granted a marriage license last week. The bride-to-be is Miss Lucy F. Simms.

Burke & Burns have removed from 99 Washington street to 136 Washington street, over the retail flower store of William A. Bowers.

Abe Kroll had a temporary stand for the sale of designs at 417 Westminster street.

The Tom Thumb Greenhouse, 29 Calla street, had a special line of potted plants.

The case of Cohen Bros. vs. R. Lineburg was heard by Presiding Justice Tanner in the Superior court May 28 and the nonsuit removed, defendant to pay costs. W. H. M.

After June 1, T. J. Johnston & Co. will be located at 204 Washington street, opposite the Schubert Majestic theater.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Here is the record of the number of boxes of flowers taken by the express company out of the Chicago cut flower market in four days last week:

Date	Boxes
Wednesday, May 25	3,570
Thursday, May 26	3,720
Friday, May 27	4,820
Saturday, May 28	2,772
Total	14,882

This is the count of pieces; the records show the average Memorial day shipment consisted of three boxes, so that the number of shipments figure out at about 5,000.

It is the consensus that in bulk, if not in value, the shipments of Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, May 25 to 30, set up a new record for this market. "Red" Gannon, in charge of the express company's crew, says the 4,820 boxes taken off the market before 5 p. m. May 27 constitute the greatest amount of "freight" the wholesale cut flower section ever has given the carrier in one day. And "Red" should know, as he is a veteran of fifteen years' continuous service. He had forty-two men in his brigade last week and hauled away thirty big truck loads of flowers on the big day, most of the shipments going long distances, as the overnight runs did not go out until Saturday or Sunday.

In considering the 4,820 boxes, big boxes, mostly of the largest size, taken off the market May 27, it should be remembered that this was the count up to 5 p. m., when pick-up service ceased for the day. But many of the wholesale houses were by no means through, their crews of packers working far into the night before the last order was out. These boxes do not show in the express company's count, having been sent to the stations as best might be, by private truck, by touring car, or by hired only thoroughly satisfactory feature of the week. All calculations had been upset by the heat wave of May 19 to 24. Early in the month a severe shortage had been feared for Memorial day, but it turned out that the greatest demand ever known was insufficient to clean up the huge quantities of stock received. The market was never clean. The heat wave not only brought in two or three times as many flowers as had been expected, but it made them of midsummer quality. Before the hot days stock averaged of unusually good quality; the heat quickly turned the other way, much of each day's receipts being too poor to ship, while as for stock which had been held in iceboxes or cellars, it simply went to the dump. The condition of the stock greatly increased the work of the wholesalers and consumed much time, in the attempt to select flowers which would satisfy the customer.

Under such conditions prices naturally varied widely; they no doubt will seem high to the buyers and they most certainly and positively will seem low to the growers. The little really good stock was in such strong demand that anything asked for it was easily obtained; the ordinary grade was sold below the prices it had been expected to charge for it and huge quantities were so poor that they were a loss or nearly so, being moved outside the trade. The result was a general average of prices considerably lower than was obtained last year. Complaints are sure to be numerous, buyers complaining over the quality and consignors complaining over the returns.

It is superfluous to go over the list of flowers to tell the holiday story of each. It was the same story with all. The heat forced in flowers which otherwise would not have been cut until days later; it made the roses small and open, the carnations small and soft. The sweet peas were badly scalded, many houses being brought to a sudden end. Lilies intended for June came in. Snapdragons were rushed toward their finish for the season. The greatest effect, perhaps, was on peonies. These came on in large quantities and in poor quality. The buds were forced too fast for proper development and the stock was the poorest handled in years. Still, the trade took peonies in quantity, because under any conditions the peony is the big, showy flower of its season, appearing to afford more value than any other flower for cemetery use. The unexpected overabundance of peonies unquestionably hurt the market for all other flowers, but especially for cape jasmines, considerable quantities of which had been drawn here by the reported shortage of other flowers.

Since Memorial day it has, of course, been comparatively quiet in the market.

Demand continues all that could be expected and the supply of stock is much reduced, though peonies are so abundant as to require cold storage. It looks as though the heat has rushed the rose crops past their peak and that the supply will decrease rapidly. The same probably is true of carnations.

Memorial Day with the Retailers.

There is wide variation in what the retailers report of the Memorial day trade. Some of the downtown retailers who depend principally on transient trade say they had practically no extra demand, while those in the residence districts generally report excellent business. The cemetery florists in most cases had all the trade they could handle, but many of them complain bitterly of the fakers who appeared at the cemetery gates with wagon-loads of flowers, which they sold out at such low prices it made the real florists' prices look out of line to those who did not note qualities. The wagon peddlers always afford an outlet for the culls left at Memorial day, but it is asserted that this time they obtained more flowers than in any previous year, that they paid less, gave poorer value and hurt the regular florists more than usual.

Various Notes.

F. M. Johnson states it as his belief that the second half of 1921 will be better than the first half of the year from a business point of view. Mr. Johnson says the Randall salesmen, who go almost everywhere, report that merchants of all classes are steadily reducing stocks of goods and that many are approaching the point at which they must resume buying. He believes an increase in orders will be followed by the reopening of factories, the reëmployment of labor and renewed activity in all lines of business. Mr. Johnson says there are many evidences that florists have fared much better than most trades in the last year and he thinks any resumption of activity in general business will be reflected in our trade, in which the season of 1921-22 may well develop as the best yet.

The death of Mrs. J. A. Budlong, widow of the pioneer grower, is reported in this week's obituary column.

The year 1920 was the largest in point of sales in the history of the E. Wienhoeber Co., on Elm street. William Wienhoeber says that each month thus far in 1921 has hung up a sales record above the corresponding month in 1920.

Mrs. John Gunterberg, mother of Martha Gunterberg, died May 28, at the family home, 2335 South Millard avenue. The funeral was held June 1, from St. Paul's church, burial at St. Boniface cemetery. There were many flowers.

Buyers in this market are hunting chrysanthemum cuttings, Premier rose plants, 4-inch geraniums in flower and vincas. For none of these has the demand been satisfied.

Matt Mann likes holidays. He comes to the store of Zech & Mann and works early and late, with more enthusiasm than we can keep up for our everyday tasks.

When last heard from, A. M. Anderson was in Berlin.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., having planted 210,000 young roses already this year, is preparing for a big summer cut. New ways of cutting and handling the stock are being planned in anticipation of a good market for good stock.

E. C. Amling and Mrs. Amling plan to conclude their visit here and to return to their new home near Los Angeles early in June.

Mrs. C. L. Washburn spent three days last week in the store of Bassett & Washburn. She enjoys helping out in the rush and has become an efficient worker.

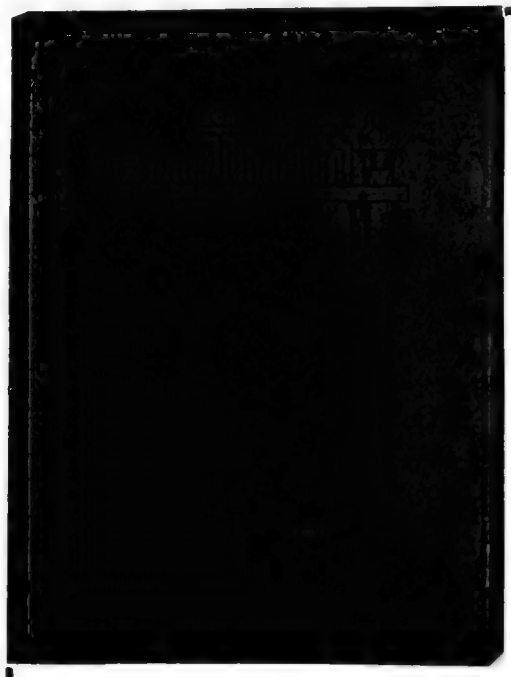
who has ten acres of peonies, stock bought by the late Peter Reinberg when the two were in partnership, reports that the April frost did serious injury to festiva maxima, but that other varieties seem not to have been hurt. He shipped most of crop this year to John Kruchten Co. and the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

John A. Healy has done so well as Healy's Flower Shop, at 343 North Austin avenue, that, after only a little more than two months there, he is preparing to move to a better store, at 428 North Austin avenue. Although only a short distance apart, the former location is in Chicago and the new one in Oak Park. Mr. Healy will be doing business at the new address by June 10.

Bassett & Washburn's greenhouses now are at Westmont, Ill. No. They haven't moved, but a new town is being laid out and Greggs Station was not "flossy" enough for the real estaters, who have renamed the place, the railroad and postoffice acquiescing.

Charles Grabig, 1483 Irving Park boulevard, had so much business for Mothers' day that he has been ill ever since. It is a general breakdown from overwork and he will be some time in getting back on the job.



W. J. Nissen, who for several years has had charge of the clerical force of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, has become seriously ill. He has made a brave attempt to stay at his post, but several times recently has had to be taken home.

C. J. Michelsen says this was the largest Memorial day in the history of the E. C. Amling Co.; largest in dollars and of course much the largest in the quantity of stock handled, as prices averaged considerably below those of a year ago.

The A. L. Randall Co. has a first-class ball team this year, made up principally from the factory force. A game is played each Saturday afternoon.

John P. Degnan notes this difference in the retail business in seeds and plants at Henderson's Seed Store: Last year May was the big month, but this year April was ahead of May. As a whole the spring business to date is almost the same as in 1920.

The express company designates florists' supplies as "dry freight" and has declined to give them the same serv-

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

All through the last week the local wholesale market was clogged with stock of everything seasonable, as the demand the early part of the week was slow. The retailers said the hot weather caused them to buy sparingly, as there was little doing outside of funeral work.

The latter part of the week the demand increased somewhat, and stock moved with more satisfaction to the wholesaler. There were a number of advance orders placed for Memorial day, for both local delivery and shipping.

The wholesale cut flower market had plenty of peonies in all grades, although all expected them to be over long before this time. Local and outside shipments ran into many thousands.

Roses were in large supply and only few had quality, as the hot weather is telling on them, and many shipments came in wide open. Premier and Columbia are among the best, while Killarney, Ophelia and Milady do not hold in bud like the first two mentioned.

Carnations are fine, and while there is no overproduction at present, there were plenty all week. Enchantress varieties, Ward and Nebraska are among the best and in greatest demand.

Shipments of cape jasmines from Texas were in abundance, and Memorial day demands cleaned them up. Sweet peas were a glut the early part of the week and many were dumped; the bulk of the stock was short-stemmed.

In the miscellaneous stock we find plenty of lilies, callas, daisies, snapdragons, irises, delphiniums and calendulas, all of which had a splendid Memorial day demand.

In greens, flat, fancy ferns are somewhat scarce and daggers are being used. Asparagus, both plumosus and Sprengeri, clean up daily, and smilax, adiantum and galax sell well.

The plantsmen about cleaned up their surplus stock in all lines for Memorial day.

Various Notes.

An Allied Florists' Trade Association was put in operation Wednesday afternoon, June 1, when the members of the publicity committee met at publicity headquarters. The action of this committee will be presented at the Florists' Club meeting for endorsement. The growers are 100 per cent in favor of the plan, while the retailers and wholesalers will not commit themselves as yet.

It is still early to talk about the S. A. F. convention at Washington, D. C., and who's going from here, but it is going to be a large party, from what can be learned this early. August H. Hummert, state vice-president for eastern Missouri, will have charge of the transportation and the selection of the route.

Otto Klinger, window display artist for Grimm & Gorly, exhibited two of the most attractive Memorial day window displays ever seen here. They held the attention of the crowds along busy Washington avenue all through the last week. Frank Gorly says it is remarkable the way the business keeps up.

S. A. Kost, inventor of the soil pulverizer, spent a few days in this city last week, representing the William F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y. While here Mr. Kost arranged to place one of his pulverizers on exhibition with the Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. Mr. Kost travels in a Dodge automobile.

Michel Reiter, 24 years old, son of John M. Reiter, gardener for the United States Public Health Service hospital, on Arsenal street, was killed by lightning at 2:30 p. m., May 25. Mr. Reiter is well known among the local gardeners, who extended their sympathy.

The Bourdet Floral Co. will start wrecking the old houses, facing Tower Grove avenue, next week and will replace them with new show houses. Other improvements, too, are contemplated. The plant business this year has been the best since the company was established.

W. H. Kruse, the Arsenal street florist, says he has had more business Mothers' day and since than he could handle. Several large weddings featured last month's business. His range of glass, at Kirkwood, produced a fine lot of pot plants and bedding stock.

The old St. Clair Floral Co., at Belleville, Ill., which has been out of business since the houses were broken by a wind and hail storm several years ago, has decided to rebuild. The work has already begun. Kester Halstead, son of A. S. Halstead, will head the new company.

Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, Mo., and Henry Blixen, of Edwardsville, Ill., were in the local wholesale market May 27, buying Memorial day supplies.

George H. Pring is preparing himself to be ready when called upon to do the bowling for the local cricket club. He is an expert at this, as he played the game in England when a boy.

The officers of the Florists' Club met June 2, at Vice-president William Osseck's home, on Bayard avenue. Arrangements were made for an interesting program for next week's club meeting.

Messrs. Baumann, Ruff and Bourdet, trustees of the Florists' Club, say that the florists' picnic will be one of the best ever given. They have been given full power to act and spare no expense in order to make the day one of enjoyment for all florists and their families.

Park Commissioner Fred Pape reports that last year's expense for the maintenance of the public parks was $147,348.63, and the appropriation for this year is only $121,000, and it is up to him to cut down the expense. Ernest Strehle, superintendent of parks, moved into the keeper's quarters in Forest park last week.

All of the west end retailers, among them Sanders, F. C. Weber, Joseph Witek, F. H. Weber and the George Waldbart Floral Co., report splendid trade for Memorial day and a number of advance orders for weddings for this month.

Haun & Wies, East St. Louis florists, are sporting a new Dodge automobile for delivering. It replaces the old Ford, which was recently burned.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fillmore, Sr., celebrated their forty-first wedding anniversary at their home, on Nebraska avenue, with a dinner May 26.

John Nyflot, F. H. Meinhardt, John Shields and the Koenig Floral Co. did a rushing business for Memorial day. They are all opposite the two largest cemeteries in the north end.

All of the local growers in St. Louis county will have a heavy supply of gladioli this season. W. A. Rowe Co., C. E. DeWever, Philip Goebel, Jr., Oscar May, Thomas Kirkwood, Alois Kopp and George and Joseph Deutschmann have at least 500,000 bulbs planted out this year, and there are plenty of smaller establishments, which also planted a few thousand.

In the floral departments at Vandervoort's and Famous-Barr, the heads say that, in spite of the fact that their places were closed May 29 and 30, advance orders kept them busy filling Memorial day orders behind closed doors.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will celebrate its thirty-fifth anniversary at the greenhouse establishment of W. J. Pilcher, at Kirkwood, Mo., Thursday afternoon, June 9, with a meeting of great importance, a lunch and a smoker. President Rowe requests every member to attend and join in the celebration. Automobiles will leave the wholesale district at 1 o'clock, in order to open the meeting at 2 o'clock, after which there will be plenty of time to celebrate the occasion. J. J. B.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The week opened badly. There was a large supply of flowers, many of them of rather poor quality; they accumulated in spite of all the efforts of the wholesalers, business being light. Then came a change. A number of street men from the up-state towns came into the market. They bought heavily of low-grade stock at prices that, of course, were of their own dictation and gradually cleared up the surplus. The regular Memorial day business commenced on Thursday with the houses that ship; by Friday the market assumed a healthier tone. About 11 o'clock Friday morning a good many florists from up the state came into the market in person; they bought freely of everything that suited them. These sales, combined with the already large number of mail and telegraphic orders, made a decided impression. Stock shortened; prices advanced; the wholesalers called in their reserves. By Saturday the market was extremely brisk. At the close of business on that day, there was every indication that the volume of business for Memorial day would be large, possibly the largest in history.

The quality of the flowers was not all that was desired; there was some fine stock, much of it, but there was also a great deal of stock that required apology.

The demand for Cut Flowers during June will be largely for Peonies, the principal flowers at Memorial day, were, mirabile dictu, ahead of time. A large number went into cold storage for a week; many of them did not come out of cold storage in condition fit to ship. The supply of peonies was so small that there was no surplus. Some wholesalers said there was a shortage. The price ranged from $8 to $12 per hundred. Really fine carnations, except white, were short of the demand. There were a good many poor ones, owing to the warm weather. The best brought $10 to $12, the poorer ones $4, $6 and $8. Roses, classed as the third flower in importance at this holiday, were scarcer than either of the other two. Some judges said that the supply was short. It seems probable that the fine roses sent out from this city have had an effect in making the buyers believe them better value than other flowers at present prices. Roses brought from $6 to $15 per hundred; the medium grades were preferred.

Lilies were plentiful. There was a moderate supply of good sweet peas from outdoors, which usually means from coldframes or started indoors, at this season. The fancy flowers, Beauties, orchids and valley, had no special support. There was a good demand for ferns. In closing it should be clearly understood that the entire strength of the market came from out-of-town orders; most of it from the battle towns up the state. The local demand was light.

Baseball.

Now that Memorial day is over, it is time to decide whether we are going to have baseball this season. A committee has been appointed, a cup has been offered. Are there going to be any entries? It is hoped that there will be teams from Burton's, Dreer's, Craig's, Michell's, Niessen's, Pennock's, the retailers and the wholesalers, making an 8-club league. "To be or not to be? That is the question."

He is not a gentleman of the road. Jimmy is also a gentleman of color. Jimmy was busily engaged last Saturday afternoon in making up little bouquets of cape jasmine. It was hot and he was on the shady side of the street just outside a great wholesale cut flower house. Jimmy showed taste in the arrangement of his flowers. He talked cheerfully while he worked, but the moment he spoke of business he grew bitter. He could not get anything but these white flowers. His customers demanded color and variety. When the manager of the great house was told about Jimmy and asked whether there was not something that he could have besides cape jasmines, he said very kindly that he was afraid not, adding that the market had tightened and that Jimmy would not pay the price.

An Encouraging Outlook.

Thoughtful men are becoming convinced that our business is enjoying greater prosperity than many others. Arthur Niessen sounded this keynote in his address before the Lancaster county florists when he said that while we had not reached the altitude of some other businesses, we had not suffered their decline. Raymond Brunswick's idea that flowers are necessary in the principal events of life has sound sense. To this he adds that the addition of Mothers' day and the fresh interest given to Memorial day continues the floral activity forward from Easter until June. These are facts for which there is every reason to feel encouragement.

Various Notes.

There were a great many up-state buyers in the city May 27.

Considerable interest has been aroused by advertisements of rose bushes in the local dailies from Frenchtown. There are twenty greenhouses at Frenchtown.

Paul Berkowitz says flower days like Mothers' day and Fathers' day have done much to help business. When interrogated about the latter, Mr. Berkowitz smilingly replied, "Perhaps you call it Poppies day."

H. H. Battles had a fine window display of oriental poppies. The Ritz also displayed them.

Fearless driving of her Peerless brought Mrs. Emil H. Geschick to her husband the other evening.

Geraniums advanced to 20 and 25 cents for 4-inch pots for Memorial day. They had to be in bloom, though. The price earlier was 15 to 18 cents, and they didn't even have to be in flower.

The daylight saving which goes into effect in Philadelphia June 5 is considered an advantage by many florists.

I HAVE BEEN ASKED

"WHY DYE SWEET PEAS?"

First; there is no real yellow, apricot or burnt orange pea supplied by nature.

Second; people like these colors and shades, and buy them repeatedly, just as they do lavender, pink, etc.

Third; the greater the variety of desirable colors offered the public, the more peas the retailer sells. Try it and see.

Fourth; the cost is almost nil. One quart will dye about 2,500, or one cent per bunch of 25.

Fifth; usually florists need white or very light pink peas in quantity only occasionally, and at other times they may be dyed.

Sixth; in design work, such as the "Eastern Star," one needs yellow flowers that stand up well. At such times yellow carnations are of special service and may be made from white ones over night.

Seventh; try yellow, apricot or burnt orange peas with deep blue or purple in corsage work, etc.

Some, in making trial order, write as if they expect to be "skinned." All such are going to be agreeably surprised. If I were not sure the dye would do just as I claim, so it will bring repeat orders, I should not offer it for sale at all. I think life entirely too short for one to be anything else than "on the square." It it not practicable to offer free samples, and the dollar trial orders will not likely pay expenses while I am convincing you.

Some seem to think the flowers are dipped and the dye on the outside. We fill jelly glasses three-quarters full of the dye solution and stand stems of fresh cut peas in this in the evening, leaving them thus over night. In the morning lift them out, rinse dye off stems and stand them in fresh water as though just cut, and in a few minutes they may be lunched without staining the hands. But should any of this dye get on the hands, a little borax and water, or even soap lather, quickly takes it off.

PRICE, sufficient to make one quart, $1.00, prepaid. Six for $5.00

The Market.

Everyone seems well pleased with Memorial day trade. Everything in the nature of a flower was sold and prices were quite good, although a little lower than they were a year ago. The weather, which was extremely hot at the start of last week, was normal after May 27, although just before that it was extremely cold, with light frosts on low lands. Each year it would seem as though growers had bigger home calls for Memorial day flowers, as market receipts were not particularly large.

Roses cleaned up easily. The demand for long-stemmed flowers is never great and these made but little advance, except in the case of reds, which, as usual, were in active demand. Growers, as a rule, insist on buyers taking so many white and light pink flowers along with the reds in the case of both roses and carnations. There was a fair lot of American Beauties and these sold well. The available supply of carnations cleaned up quickly. At noon, May 28, the wholesale markets were cleaned out of everything and only a few shipments came in later in the day.

There were a great many sweet peas. Large numbers of white and yellow marguerites were sold. The supply of gladioli was far smaller than expected and all cleaned up quickly. For ten weeks' stocks, double feverfew, gypsophila and candytuft average prices were good. Most of the snapdragon offered was short-stemmed, but realized good prices, as did bachelor's buttons and other miscellaneous flowers.

The supply of callas and Easter lilies was not large. Little outdoor material was offered, lilac, valley and other material being over. Deutzia sold well and some Iris germanica, Hemerocallis flava and other flowers were offered. Hardy ferns and asparagus sold well. In plants, geraniums, pansies, forget-me-nots, hydrangeas and baby rambler roses were in greatest quantity. All sold well. Some fine pink, white and lavender spiræas were also offered.

The feature of the present Memorial day business was the immense number of artificial wreaths offered. The wholesalers cleaned out on these, but some of the retailers were left with considerable on their hands. The retailers advertising in the daily papers made little reference to natural flowers, and they filled their stores and special additional salesrooms with the artificial, which also were offered in quantity on street stands and also at dry goods, grocery, hardware, meat and other stores, at a wide range of prices. Considerable commotion followed action by the American Legion favoring a boycott on artificial flowers made in Germany. There were denials that more than a small number were imported from there, but rumors persisted and certain stores accused of handling them, no doubt, suffered.

There was a small market on Memorial day morning, and supplies were speedily absorbed. No peonies of local growing came in, but a fair number from south of us were handled by wholesalers. May 31 business was quiet, with a considerable recession in prices, but June business prospects are good, with a considerable number of wedding decorations included.

WINDLER WHOLESALE FLORAL CO., All Phones 1310 Pine Street, ST. LOUIS MO.

Horticultural Society, May 28 and 29, attracted a large attendance each day. The date came a few days late for lilacs, narcissi and tulips, but there were good showings of miniature rock gardens, herbaceous plants, native flowers, orchids, calceolarias and rhododendrons.

The great feature of the show was the beautiful bank of 200 odontoglossums and odontiodas from A. C. Burrage, Douglas Eccleston, superintendent. This was staged in the lecture hall, in the form of a sloping bank with a background of palms, the front being of cork bark. The following varieties of odontoglossums showed splendid culture: Pescatorei, Urania (exceedingly fine), Bolivar, eximium, Hyeanum, Dora, ardentissium, warnhamensis, excellens, crispum and Thompsonianum. Among odontiodas which carried long, well branched, arching spikes were rosefeldense, Cortez, Vuylstekeæ, Madeline, Hiawatha, Lutetia, Lambeauiana, Brackenhurst, Cooksonias, Wilsonii, Iona, Papilio, Charlesworthii and others. A gold medal was awarded this group, and an Appleton gold medal, in addition, was given George I'Anson, the former for superior culture of odontoglossums and odontiodas.

A cultural certificate went to A. C. Burrage for a fine specimen of Brassia verrucosa and a first-class certificate for Læliocattleya Stevenson, Odontoglossum Aztec and O. Wilsonii. Well flowered plants were also shown of Oncidium leucochilum, Cattleya Mossiæ Wagneri, Epidendrum memorale and Habenaria orbiculata.

For the best miniature rock garden of native plants there were four entries, prizes going to Thomas Little, H. L. F. Naber and R. S. Sturtevant. For collection of wild flowers, the winners were H. L. F. Naber, Mrs. F. C. Upham and Mrs. N. P. Catter.

For the American Iris Society's prizes for twelve vases of these flowers, Miss Grace Sturtevant won with Sarpedon, Hope, White Knight, Empire, Splendor, Souvenir de M. Gaudiehau, Queen Catherine, Shekinah, Iris King, Magnate, Crinoline and Prince Lohengrin. Second went to George N. Smith. A silver medal was awarded to H. F. Chase for the mammoth and beautiful new iris, Lord of June, which easily outclassed all other varieties.

Julius Heurlin received a first-class certificate for Trollius europæus Elinor. W. N. Craig was first for Aquilegia canadensis, A. chrysantha and any other aquilegia, also for hardy lupines. Miss M. R. Case had a fine collection of flowering shrubs, and Walter Hunnewell, T. D. Hatfield, superintendent, rhododendrons and vases of Flanders poppies, which latter attracted a lot of attention.

George F. Stewart, of Waltham, showed half a dozen large and well flowered specimens of calceolarias, such as Stewartii and Lymanii, all varieties of his own raising.

Lectures on native plants each day of the show, by Kenneth W. Gillett, Southwick, Mass., attracted large audiences and many questions were asked of the lecturer.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society has appropriated $3,000 for a special exhibition of native and exotic ferns, to open September 25. Bromelias, selaginellas and orchids will also be featured. W. P. Rich, secretary of the society, has recently visited prominent trade and private growers in the east and secured offers of support for this show. The sum of $3,000 has also been appropriated for a spring show of bulbs, to be held in 1922. Bulb gardens covering 300 feet, for private growers, and 500 feet, for commercial growers, will be included. At the fall show of ferns, etc., eight large gold, twenty small gold and twenty-six silver medals, in addition to cash prizes, will be offered.

The annual show of rhododendrons, azaleas and iris comes June 4 and 5. These dates will be late for iris, but will suit the other flowers.

Various Notes.

General sympathy is felt for Louis Smith, of Tewksbury, in the loss of his 9-year-old son by drowning in a lake near his home May 22. Mr. Smith had just secured a new boat and placed it in the lake. His boy and three other children found it and, getting in, paddled out into the depths of the lake, where the boat sank and all were drowned. The children's cries attracted two men on the opposite shore, who, however, reached the scene of the sad tragedy too late to save the children. Mr. Smith lost two other boys some time ago and is now left with one little girl.

gel, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and will add them to his Nahant collection. Mr. Roland is noted for the successful culture of difficult subjects and at Nahant, where the nights are cool and atmospheric conditions suitable, he hopes to find a congenial home for these beautiful orchids.

Harry Spero has opened another flower store, this time in Scollay square. This makes three stores he is now operating and he is making a success of each.

Rhododendrons are flowering remarkably well here this season, and there are now gorgeous displays of these beautiful evergreens in the Arnold Arboretum, in parkways and on the various private estates. There was no winter-killing of these last season at all. Wistarias are also flowering in wonderful profusion here at present, especially the white forms.

James Wheeler is now president of the Commercial Club of Natick and had the pleasure of entertaining Governor Channing Cox and one or two other notables at dinner at his home last week, prior to a large public gathering where they spoke.

Recent visitors included C. Zandbergen, of Zandbergen Bros., Holland, with his wife. They are now located at Oyster Bay, L. I., where they planted over 500 varieties of tulips last fall. Anthony Waterer, of Philadelphia, was another visitor.

Frosts in Massachusetts have destroyed a large proportion of the apple, peach, plum and strawberry crops recently. Asparagus, cranberries and both evergreen and deciduous trees and shrubs also sustained much damage.

Henry Penn was unfortunate enough to sprain one of his legs May 21, necessitating his absence for several days just before the busy Memorial day rush. He is now able to be back on deck again. Business at Penn's was, as usual, of immense proportions. They advertised heavily and had to hire several additional stores to handle artificial wreaths, which went to all parts of New England.

John Eisemann, the Beacon Florist, did an enormous business in artificial wreaths, of which he had a grand assortment. Up to May 19, his sales had trebled those of a year ago, which is going some.

F. E. Palmer, of Brookline, reports a heavy Memorial day trade. He is one of the few retailers who refuse to handle artificial flowers and wreaths in any form.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club is preparing a fine entertainment for ladies' night, June 21. The annual picnic will be held at Cunningham park, East Milton, July 21. W. N. C.

Samuel Marksman has leased for a term of years the store at 16 Tremont street, in the Hemenway building, owned by Alonzo W. Perry. The lessee will conduct on these premises a florist's store.

A contract for $48,910 has been awarded to Hitchings & Co. for the construction of greenhouses at Franklin park.

FREEPORT, ILL.

Louis Bauscher, vice-president and manager of the Freeport Floral Co., reviews the season thus: "Last Thanksgiving, business was good. Christmas business was better. New Year's trade held its own. Easter business was the greatest ever. Mothers' day was phenomenal. And now Memorial day business—I can't think of a name big enough for it. Oh, yes! I have it now. It is just like a merry-go-round that doesn't seem to want to stop."

Wilson, N. C.—Miss Daisy Herring, who has been selling flowers here for some time, is now planning to build a greenhouse.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SAWTELLE, CAL.

C. E. Moore, fifteen years in the trade at Valley City, N. D., and for the last year engaged in growing carnation and chrysanthemum cuttings at Santa Ana, Cal., has taken over the Los Angeles Geranium Co., of which J. D. Burks was the manager, at Sawtelle, Cal. Mr. Moore will have entire charge of the place, and while carnations and chrysanthemums will still be grown at Santa Ana, all propagating and shipping will be from the pelargonium and geranium farm at Sawtelle. Mr. Moore has seven acres devoted to the growing of plants for propagating cuttings.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Three days of almost constant rain has broken all records for May here and has insured a good season. Seed growers are elated and fruit growers also, the only people that suffered being those who had alfalfa hay down, and the growers of strawberries. While it prevented flower gathering for a day or two, causing a temporary shortage in the market, it has done a great deal of good to the growing plants of all kinds and saved much time that would have been spent irrigating. During the week preceding Memorial day there was a great shortage of outdoor flowers, the market on some mornings being cleaned up by 7:30 o'clock of everything except statice and strawflowers. There is a good supply of roses, but, in sharp contrast to last week, outdoor carnations are scarce and high in price, $3 and $3.50 per hundred being asked and freely paid for good stock. This shortage of fresh stock boosted the price of pink strawflowers and similar stock. A fair supply of gladioli was on the market, but many more could have been used. Shasta and yellow daisies were in great demand and sweet peas that had not been washed out by the rain sold well. Callas are about over in the south. Valley and orchids are about even with the demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Fred Francis, of the Francis Floral Co., says he is well satisfied with the business done at the company's store at 2603 North Broadway. Funeral work is especially in demand.

Miss Eileen Low, representing Stuart Low & Co., of Bush Hill Park, near London, England, was in the city for a few days calling on the trade, but her stay was brief. Miss Low is particularly interested in hybrid orchids and is an authority on them, having studied them closely in her company's collection, which is probably the largest in the British trade. The extra fine varieties of cyclamens grown by this firm are in considerable demand all over the country. Miss Low's stay in California was cut short owing to the date of her sailing being changed, but she found time to visit the famous Huntington place and the concern of Walter Armacost & Co., the Arthur Letts place and the majority of the seed trade. Miss Low returns by way of Vancouver, B. C., and the Canadian Rockies, sailing from Montreal June 12.

John Bodger, Jr., is piloting David Burpee around this week, and will accompany him to the Burpee ranch at Lompoc towards the week-end. Mr. Bodger says they have had between three and four inches of rain at the El Monte seed grounds, which will be a great help, as the soil here never bakes after rain as do some others, but always maintains a natural dust mulch in summer.

James Taylor, superintendent at Laughlin park, has built himself a fine new dwelling house at Hollywood.

F. Royston, of Walter Armacost & Co., has returned from his northern trip, which he says was a most pleasant one.

Herbert Bateman, long known in this city as a first-class florist, will open a high-class store at 647 South Grand avenue, right in the heart of the shopping district, as soon as the building is finished. Mr. Bateman has taken a double store and the elevation and interior will be built according to his own idea of what a high-class flower store should be. No one who is acquainted with Mr. Bateman's work and following, doubts for a minute his success, for everything points to it. While it will probably be the early part of September before the store will be ready for occupation, Mr. Bateman has resigned his position with the Athletic Club Florist, so as to be able to put all his time in preparation for the opening.

Edward Rust, of South Pasadena, is out with a new automobile. Fine rhododendrons from his nursery are being sold at the American Florists' Exchange. H. R. R.

than they were a week ago. Roses, though good and plentiful, are holding up well in price. Statice is in great demand, and so are most of the straw-flowers. The rush of shipping orders kept the wholesalers working overtime most of last week. A great variety of flowers can now be found in the market, including Japanese and calla lilies, gladioli, peonies, lilies of the valley, carnations, gardenias, orchids, quantities of sweet peas and other early summer flowers.

Various Notes.

Satisfactory progress is being made toward leasing a desirable site for a market for the Retail Florists' Association of San Francisco, according to a statement made by P. Vincent Matraia, of the Art Floral Co. Several meetings of the committee have been held during the last few days, but Mr. Matraia, who is a prominent member of the committee, says that he is unable to give out any definite statement until the deeds are actually signed. The plan for purchasing the former Poodle Dog restaurant has been abandoned, but it is understood that the site now under consideration is equally advantageous.

San Francisco, as well as other cities on the bay, made May 25 look almost like Mothers' day, so widespread was the wearing of white carnations. This was because the California Congress of Mothers began its three days' working sessions at Oakland, Cal., May 25.

Frank D. Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., who has been ill for some time, has now apparently completely recovered his health and is working at the store, as usual, to the great satisfaction of his many friends.

L. J. Capurro, who was manager of the Powell street store of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. when that firm sold it recently to F. C. Jaeger & Son, has now gone to Avansino Bros. & Co., on Geary street. G. E. Taylor, of the MacRorie-McLaren staff, is now with Fred Bertrand, of the Palace hotel flower store.

C. Kooyman & Co. state that business has been much stimulated along retail lines by people who have given orders for the shipment of flowers to far-away cemeteries, where they have deceased friends. The Kooyman bulb farm, in Alameda county, is doing well, and a new price list has just been issued for July and August deliveries.

Mr. Cut Flower Grower! Plant Fraser's Strain, they are first in size and otherwise.

CALENDULA King of Kings (Fraser's Production)

We believe this strain of Calendula has a great future before it. A Golden progeny of the famous Double Orange King. Color: Dazzling orange. The flowers are larger and the blue-black disk smaller, with broad overlaid petals. Habit: 2 feet, with fine erect heads and stiff stems, and for these reasons will be in great demand for the flower market. Trade pkt., $1.00; Ounce, $2.50.

NEW MYOSOTIS President Harding Blue: (Fraser's Introduction) Winter-flowering.

This new Winter-flowering Myosotis (Forget-me-not) is the result of a carefully thought-out cross, said by some experts to surpass any other strain yet offered. Color: Harding Blue. Habit: Bold and branching, forming open bushes from 18 to 20 inches high and of equal diameter, extra vigorous sprays of bloom last long as cut flowers. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

COSMOS Extra Early Single Dahlia-Flowered (Fraser's Selection)

A very fine strain, the result of many years' careful selection. Its points for earliness, size, color and productiveness are good all round. Height: 4 feet, with flowers of splendid substance, resembling giant single Dahlia flowers and stiff stems, unusual in the older varieties. The most profitable cutting cosmos in cultivation. We are offering 2 separate colors: Dahlia White, Dahlia Pink, Dahlia Mixed. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

swamped with work. Everybody else is in the same fix, so everybody's happy."

The United Flower & Supply Co. stated: "We're doing all we can to keep up with orders and, with the exception of a few flowers, we are able to meet all demands. The flowers that are too scarce to go around are calla lilies and gladioli especially."

Domoto Bros. reported, "Lilies move fast at present. Business is rushing, especially in roses, gladioli, peonies and carnations."

Enomoto & Co. were gratified that, for the first time, they have been able to fill all Memorial day orders in evergreens.

The Misses Hannon store sees promise of a June rich in weddings, judging from the wedding decoration orders that are coming in.

Victor Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, said: "People talk of business being bad, but that does not seem to apply to florists, for we find business to be good." The firm has been busy with social affairs and funerals, a carload of roses having just gone to the Goodale funeral, at Berkeley.

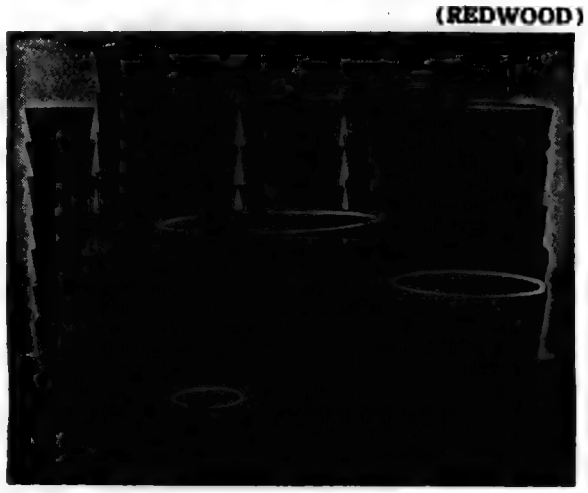
Julius Eppstein, of the St. Francis, has had a number of teas and dinners with costly floral decorations. One entertainment had the decorations all in orchids and gardenias.

F. C. Jaeger has recovered from his recent illness and is able to work as actively as ever in managing the store on Powell street.

Fred Bertrand, of the Palace hotel flower store, has had extensive decorations for women's clubs recently, especially the Corona Club and the Burlingame Club. M. M.

SPOKANE, WASH.

Stock in almost every line of seasonable flowers is about normal. Bedding stock is moving well and good stock is offered in that line.



The Ad Club luncheon of May 18 was turned over to the florists of the city, who presented one of the best programs offered at an Ad Club luncheon this year. The banquet room was a bower of roses, and there were roses on all the tables and a rose at each plate. During the program the song, "Say It with Flowers," was sung and six young ladies showered the crowd with sweet peas. The speakers were J. F. Ammann and H. V. Swenson, both of whom gave able talks and, no doubt, did considerable good in advertising the florists' business in general.

The evening of May 18 was devoted to a business meeting of all the florists of the city and vicinity, some forty-five being present. H. Lozier, chairman of the Florists' Club, turned the meeting over to Mr. Ammann and Mr. Swenson. Stereopticon views of posters and advertisements used by the Chicago florists were shown. Resolutions were passed to adopt the percentage plan for coöperative advertising. The board of directors is composed of A. Rahn, F. R. McCormick, H. E. Reimers, W. Peters, C. T. Kipp and E. S. Eugene. A rising vote of thanks was given the visitors, along with best wishes for a successful trip.

Some good windows were to be seen last week in most of the florists' stores, the occasion being the opening of the Elks' Temple. Thousands of visitors were here and the whole city displayed the Elks' colors.

The Spokane Florist Co. had a fine float in the parade that was held, and their window display was also striking.

M. Lewis and H. Saunders, of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, were recent visitors in town.

W. S. Hoyt, of Hoyt Bros., spent the week-end with his brother at Usk, Wash. H. H.

The Market.

Trade last week was quiet as a whole, with funeral work running nearer to normal than any other single division of the sales.

Stock additions for the week included the first of the red oriental poppies, while deliveries of Ulrich Brunner roses have also begun in earnest. The cut of peonies is increasing steadily and this is fast becoming one of the most popular items offered at present. Iris is another flower which is common and, from the rate the cut of daisies has been increasing, there is likely to be a glut before long. Another novelty was the first maple leaves of the season, these being used freely in shop decorations.

Lilacs are plentiful and the white variety has been popular. In contrast with the situation of a few weeks ago, there is a big demand for the few daffodils being cut at this time, and those shops having them on hand are able to clean up their stock quickly. Calendulas, anemones and yellow marguerites have proved a colorful combination among the made-up baskets featured in some shops.

The local cut of roses is increasing steadily and some excellent stock is coming to hand. Columbia, Ward and Ophelia are in heavy supply. Cecile Brunners are increasing. Ulrich Brunner is beginning to figure, and one shop made a special feature of some fine Russells last week.

There has been a decline in the cuts of orchids lately, but the demand has fallen off to a corresponding degree, so that no hardship has been worked. Lily of the valley is in ample supply and sweet peas are profuse and colorful. The cut of carnations being sent in by local growers is showing regular improvement and, from present indications, several local growers will this year have Laddie to offer which will equal anything grown in the northwest.

Snapdragon and gladioli are both more plentiful. The sale of potted stock, outside of ferns, has been light, due almost entirely to a scarcity of stock. A few late hydrangeas, some fuchsias and calceolarias about complete the offerings at present.

Various Notes.

Bedding stock sales have been much better of late, weather conditions being entirely favorable. There is a scarcity of certain items and, with the usual perversity of the buying public, these are demanded by nearly every customer. Retailers who handle bedding stock advise that there has been more interest shown in these plants this season than in previous years, this being especially true of stock for window boxes.

Late street visitors included William Langhout, bulb salesman, and Mrs. Langhout, who is making this trip with him; J. F. Ammann, ex-president of the S. A. F., and H. V. Swenson, secretary of the Allied Florists' Association of Chicago. In addition, a large number of Tacoma retailers have been in the city.

A feature of last week's activities at the Hollywood Gardens was an out-of-town church wedding, the first to be held in a new edifice. The interior was finished all in white, Easter lilies and greens being used for decorations. The bride's bouquet was made of orchids and lily of the valley, while the attendants were supplied with basket hats of Columbia and Ward roses and sweet peas, tied with orange and purple ribbons.

Kenney's Home of Flowers has been showing a distinct novelty in the form of some fine late daffodils. The stock of ferns and palms on hand now is much above the average.

Some fine roses are being sent in by the Beall Greenhouses, and a profuse crop of all varieties is reported for this time.

Some of the best of the potted hydrangeas now being shown in this market are being handled by the City

Flower Shop, which also offers some fine fuchsias. This store reports that decorations have been holding up well, and the demand for bedding stock has been excellent.

Rosaia Bros. have been delivering the first heavy cuts of Ulrich Brunner roses seen on this market and advise that a heavy crop is in prospect. George Rosaia visited Spokane recently, spending several days on the eastern Washington market.

The Pinehurst Floral Shop received much publicity through the use of its shop for some recent motion pictures. A local paper and a Hollywood film concern combined in a campaign to secure a new movie actress, and before sending the winner south, she was outfitted in local shops. Pictures for use in local theaters were taken, and this shop was used for her floral needs.

One of the most elaborate of the late wedding decorations handled locally was made by McCoy's. Lilies of the valley were used for the bride, Cecile Brunners and pink sweet peas for one of the attendants, and Cattleya Schrœderæ for the other four. Large double white lilacs, lavender, yellow and purple iris, purple lilacs, snapdragon, red anemones and Columbia roses were used in various combinations for the interior decorations.

The Orpheum Floral Co. showed the first of the oriental poppies seen on this market for the new season and has also been offering some fine Siberian iris. The poppies were grown by Henry Morgan and were excellent, both as to color and stem.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop reports a generally satisfactory business of late, with smaller decorations the rule. This can be traced to the fact that many families are closing their town houses and are entertaining more informally at the different women's clubhouses.

Melby's Flower Shop was fortunate in getting in a good supply of the scarce Martha Washington geraniums and moved all of this stock to good advantage. A number of commissions for stocking office and store window boxes have been secured of late. H. M.

TACOMA, WASH.

Club Meeting.

More enthusiasm cropped out at the May meeting of the Tacoma Florists' and Gardeners' Association than at any meeting for some time. The thirty or more members present were on their toes from the start to adjournment at 11 p. m. "Get Coöperation" was discussed, and when President Sheovimnkee announced that J. F. Ammann and H. V. Swenson, of the S. A. F., were to be here with good cheer, advice and instruction, augmented with lantern slides, it took just an hour to work off the enthusiasm, for everyone had a plan for their reception and entertainment. The association decided on a banquet in the Stone room of the Tacoma hotel.

Walter Hinz suggested that the question box be opened. Fifteen were read, from how to kill white fly, by one of the newly initiated, to how many carnations one plant will produce in one year.

Various Notes.

Geraniums are retailing at regular flower stores and at greenhouses for 35 cents each, $3.50 per dozen. A cigar-candy-peanut store bought geraniums from one of our large wholesale growers and is selling them for 25 cents each. News went around of the cut in price. The grower who sold the geraniums was found. His explanation was, "My stock is big and the retail flower store trade is limited; my customers have been supplied. I did not ask the man what he was going to sell them for. Now, should I have sold them to this man or thrown the surplus stock on the compost heap?"

The florists' dance, held a short time ago, was a decided success, both as to visitors from Seattle and the invited Tacomans, who turned out in such numbers that the florists were lost in the whirl.

A. A. Hinz, Sixth avenue florist, recently built a new retail store at his greenhouses. This is an added attraction in that part of the city and one has only to peep inside to know that Mr. Hinz has artistic ideas on what a retail store should look like. It is all in white and gold, with a built-in cabinet, a convenient counter and a great, fine show window. The trade here is interested in a new variety of double petunia which Mr. Hinz has developed.

TATE'S TIPS

REVIEWING THE HOLIDAYS.

A Successful Season.

With Memorial day, the last special flower day of the present season, past, let us at this time review these holidays, without considering general business at all. Everyone will recall the fact that, from Thanksgiving to Memorial day, there was not a single instance of a special flower day when the supply was equal to the demand for either plants or cut flowers. Prices had to be advanced, as is always the case with any commodity when there is a short supply.

Why are these days flower days? Many of us can remember when Christmas and Easter were the only occasions when the florist looked for any increased sales. There is hardly a month now in which there is not some day when the sale of flowers is increased beyond normal. What is the reason for this? Were these days just marked on the calendar as flower days? No. Florists have made such holidays profitable occasions by teaching the public that the proper way to observe these days is by the use of flowers. Spasmodic though this education has been, it had its effect. To verify this, we will cite one instance that is fresh in our memory.

TO OUR BROTHER FLORISTS:
FLOWERS AND CO-OPERATION

Let us learn from the flowers the lesson of co-operation. A single flower, growing alone, makes no great show. Many flowers, growing in harmony, will transfigure even a desert.

Take Mothers' day; in ten years it

A Cube From Cuba

Telling you, personally, a thing, is one thing: Printing that thing and sending it broadcast is quite another.

Still, there are things happening every once in a while in the business of all of us, that sure would be a lot of help to most of us. Most of such comes from unexpected sources.

We, recently, had a letter from a man in Cuba, that certainly did start all of us thinking and doing. Knowing how punctilious the Spanish are, it would be a breach to tell it to you in this Ad, but entirely permissible if you will drop in some day.

No matter whether you have ever sent me a dollar's worth of F. T. D. business or not, you are just as welcome to the idea. I'd tell it just as quickly to my neighbor florist, Max Schling, Charley Thorley or anybody else.

The more it helps them, the more it helps all of us; and what helps all of us, certainly helps me. Therefore—has been worked up into a day that almost equals Easter. I firmly believe that with a systematic publicity campaign this day could be made to surpass Easter. Mothers' day belongs to the florists, and they can make of it just what they want. This year's May 8 fully demonstrated the fact that white carnations are fast being forgotten. If publicity were pushed as it should be, there is no sound reason why every mother in this country should not have, on the second Sunday in May, as many flowers as the debutante at her first party. Blooming plants would be more appreciated than cut flowers by these mothers. Then the original idea was to wear a white carnation if mother was dead. How easy, with the proper sort of publicity, this could be changed to remembering mothers' graves. This is all sentiment, we will admit, but, in the advertising of flowers as in nothing else, sentiment is the strong point. Feature this side of Mothers' day in your advertisements, get sons and daughters to think of the mother that has gone, and many a mound in a far-off cemetery will be remembered. Don't fail to tell them of the telegraph service, whether mother be living or dead.

As I went about, last Mothers' day, and heard the wonderful reports of business and considered that absolutely no preparation had been made by the growers except, perhaps, cutting a few white carnations before they were properly opened and holding them in the icebox, I could not but feel how shortsighted the florist was. Here was opportunity knocking loudly at his door and no preparation for its reception. Is there another industry in the country, with the experience of the second Sunday of last May in mind, that would not make proper preparation to go after this business with the right sort of publicity in a systematic way? So much for Mothers' day; the man who does not see the possibilities that are in it is blind, indeed.

In the next ten years, the florists' industry can be doubled in this country. This seems like a rash statement, but I only ask you to go back to that memorable Good Friday in 1917, when war was declared, and think of the progress it has made since then. Many a time I listened to the calamity howlers at that time tell of the dire things that were going to happen to the industry. Flowers were a luxury, they said, and would be the first thing to be cut out. Then, when more flowers were being used than ever, these persons offered the alibi that it was because of the high government wages that were being paid, and I am ready to admit that the florists got a share of these. But there are no emergency wages now. Let a special flower day come along—and often a special day is not necessary—and not enough flowers can be had to meet the demand, at prices not much changed from those of war times. At present not enough bedding plants can be had to meet the demand, because more greenhouse space has been devoted to cut flowers. Surely the trade has abundant opportunity. Our industry is today in a position where it can stand still—this means going back—or it can go on to heights that were never dreamed of before. Tate.

Roland appointed John K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, Mass., national councilor, who will serve as a connecting link between the society and the national chamber at Washington. Hereafter when policies affecting business are under discussion by the federal authorities, the Society of American Florists will have a chance to express itself, inasmuch as one of the chief functions of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States is to voice the business sentiment of the country. From time to time referenda are sent out by the national chamber for the purpose of ascertaining for the benefit of Congress and the government departments opinions prevailing throughout the country on questions of importance.

The views and opinions of the nation's business men, expressed through the national chamber, are listened to with respect. In fact, the views of the chamber on important legislative matters affecting business are sought. Never before in the history of the United States have business interests been so efficiently represented at the national capital, toward which there seems to be an increasing business centralization all the time.

The national chamber will soon have a home of its own, just across Lafayette square from the White House. A $2,500,000 fund for this building has practically been all subscribed. It will be an elaborate workshop for American business, in the study and solution of its national problems.

In order to be of greater service to its members and the business men of the nation generally, the business organization of the national chamber was recently departmentized, the various departments being foreign trade, insurance, transportation and communication, domestic distribution, fabricated production, natural resources and civic development. The aim of these departments is to help the business man solve his problems and gain new markets for American trade. Members have the privilege of utilizing them, which virtually amounts to the Society of American Florists having a special Washington representative.

Membership in the national chamber entitles the Society of American Florists to receive a weekly general bulletin containing news of commercial interests, a weekly legislative bulletin while Congress is in session, which follows the progress and gives a digest of legislation having relation to the conduct of business. The society also will

The heat has been so intense for nearly two weeks that peonies all burst into bloom at one time. To save them, many had to be cut and held in storage from three days to a week. The crop was a surprise. So many of the late varieties were believed to have been killed by freezing that a short supply of blooms was looked for, but even some of the early varieties came in. All the blooms were soft and extremely hard to handle, but it was a condition over which the growers had no control. Roses were likewise overplentiful and in about the same shape as peonies. Carnation growers whose crops were in cut thousands. It was like Christmas time with these growers. The difficulty of handling stock was what made things so unpleasant for wholesalers and retailers, and the holiday's falling on Monday added to the discomfiture in shipping orders. Judging from the buying in the retail stores Saturday, May 28, and the appearance of the shipping rooms in the commission houses on that day, the sales surpassed all previous records.

Department stores and seed houses sold peonies and other flowers Saturday, May 28, and the city market had more florists' wagons and trucks parked around it than ever before.

Various Notes.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. sent in a heavy cut of roses every day last week. That was the only crop left after the first few days, as carnations, peonies and potted plants were cleaned up early. Some peonies and carnations were sold on consignment.

The T. J. Noll Floral Co. was sold out on decorations and artificial stuff the first of the week before Memorial day. Orders for flowers were packed and sent to the express office as fast as the shipping force could work, from 7 o'clock until late at night, the entire week.

By noon Friday, May 27, A. Newell's sales were as great as the entire Memorial day business a year ago. Mr. Newell and his assistants had made 600 wreaths. Mr. Newell preferred to offer

J. C. Kempf, 59 years old, died May 24 at his home, 2431 Elmwood avenue, after a lingering illness. Mr. Kempf had been bookkeeper for H. Kusik & Co. for four years. He gave up work January 1, owing to ill health. Funeral services were held at the home May 26. Surviving are his wife, three sons and one daughter, three sisters and a brother.

Some fine Mrs. Francis King gladioli were displayed in the store of the W. L. Rock Flower Co. last week. The flowers were grown in the Rock greenhouses.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley had more advance orders for Memorial day than usual. General business has been good all the month.

The Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co. last week had a big supply of fresh cut peonies and long-stemmed roses, besides a quantity of other stock, and they all moved.

James Musso sold 40,000 peonies May 28 at $1.50 and $2 a dozen. He had twenty-five employees working that day.

have been. However, quantities of peonies have been received in this market for Memorial day and have moved out rapidly at good prices. The demand for carnations all week far exceeded the supply and, in some instances, it was necessary to divide the product among the customers. Gladioli were much in demand and the quality was exceptionally good. Some of the finest orchids that have ever been received in this market were offered last week. Sweet peas are coming into the market, but the warm weather has impaired the quality. The demand for yellow daisies was exceptionally good and they moved out at a fair price. The supply of roses has been heavy, and the quality has been exceptionally good. American Beauties were also on the market and moved at good prices.

Various Notes.

A. Krongold, the proprietor of the Victoria Flower Shop, is able to resume his duties. The operation performed on his eye was a success, and it will be but a short time until Mr. Krongold will have regained normal eyesight.

The A. W. Smith Co. is making a notable display of willow porch furniture. The company has some attractive furniture to offer at the present time.

Edward Galavan, sales manager of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, stopped in Pittsburgh on his way east.

The Retail Florists' Association has distributed a circular letter among the members showing the achievements of this association since its reörganization. The letter expressed the desire that, before all things can be accomplished, every florist in the Pittsburgh district should be a member. It also requested that every member make an effort to be present at the next meeting, to be held at the Hotel Chatham, Thursday evening, June 9, at 6:30 p. m. The topic for discussion is, "What has been accomplished through other trade organizations and how can we improve our trade through association?" The leader in discussion will be Gilbert B. Weaklen. The Market.

There was much good stock on the market last week. It moved slowly. This was caused by an influx of peonies; other lines of stock had to give way to them. The flower business is much the same as other lines of business; the public wants things as they come in season. Then, on top of the peonies, there were heavy shipments of southern gladioli on the market. While the spikes of these were good, the colors were poor; still they make good stock for Memorial day.

It was at first thought there would be no peonies for this day, but cold storage boxes were well stocked up with flowers in fine condition. While the crop of peonies was not as large as in former years, there were enough for the demand; prices were not forced down, and there was not the glut to contend with that there is when the crop is normal.

Roses are holding up well, both in price and quality; all varieties are to be had in almost any quantity and grade desired. The same thing can be said of carnations; some stock on the market the day this was written was as fine as any the writer has seen this season. Sweet peas are only fair and there is not much demand for them; the season for indoor peas is almost over. Easter lilies were in fine supply and sold well. There are some callas of good quality to be had and, as they are always in demand for funeral work, they cleaned up well.

Smilax is still on the short side; it does not get a chance to make any sort of strings before it has to be cut. There is plenty of asparagus to be had, both southern and local; a great deal is being used for palls, but many insist upon smilax for this work. In many cases the retailer is willing to take half-grown strings at full-sized prices.

Orchids, valley and Beauties are not much of a factor, yet orders for each are being filled every day.

The bedding plant question continues to be acute; there is simply not enough stock to meet the demand, and there is nothing that can be substituted in this case.

Proposed Flower Show.

The "Say It with Fowers" week committee held a meeting in the store of Mary Johnston Monday, May 30. As it has been decided that a gigantic flower show is to be the principal feature of the week next fall, the committee has determined to get down to actual work. Lehman's hall has been secured for this purpose. Some of the finest shows ever held in the city have been held in this hall, and, as it has been entirely remodeled since the last show was held there, it is in better condition than ever for a flower show. It has been a number of years since a show has been held in this city. That the public is ripe for a show was fully demonstrated at the little rose show that was held in conjunction with E. Gurney Hill's lecture in April, at the Southern hotel; the people were actually asking for it.

In the past few years much new blood has been steadily forging to the front, anxious to cross swords with the older boys, both in design work and decorating. It is only fair to give them a chance in competition with the older firms, and let the public see what they can do. There is not an old exhibitor that is not a dead-game sport. The writer has known most of them for more years than he cares to admit; they play the game squarely and will be glad to welcome any newcomers. They will be the first to take their hats off to the younger men if they beat them.

Now, boys, we young fellows have got to stand together on this show; this is your first attempt; you can't afford to fall down on the job. But who ever heard of such fellows as Joseph Merritt, William Ekas, Robert Johnston, young Robert Graham, William Bauer, George Eberle, Clay Primrose, Claymore Sieck and Harry Wagner, with Isaac Moss to steady them and John J. Perry to give advice, falling down on anything they tried? Why, this crowd can tell you the definition of any word in the English language quicker than "failure." They

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Memorial day business in Washington was most satisfactory. There was a shortage of stock, due to the failure of the outdoor supply as a result of frosts, although there was not any material advancement in prices. Peonies, the best selling flower at this time, were in bad shape. The frost had hit the first buds and the later blooms

Peonies retailed at $3 and $4 per dozen. This is a slight increase over last year's averages, but that was the best the retailers could do with a wholesale cost of $15 per hundred. Large importations were had from the north and the dealers cleaned up well in the course of the three days' trade.

The retailers missed much of the large stock of rambler roses of previous years, for these are prime favorites here for cemetery use. These were short in supply and, as in the case of peonies, all available stock found a ready market. Sweet william sold well, as did coreopsis, daisies and other flowers of that class. Candytuft sold well at 50 cents per bunch wholesale and cornflower brought 35 cents.

The sale of roses during the week was slow, and cloudy weather had its effect upon quality, but the next few weeks promise to be good ones from the standpoint of rose sales, for large orders are being booked for roses, lily of the valley and orchids for June weddings and commencements.

Various Notes.

"We had a regular flower holiday business," said William F. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., in commenting on the results of the three days' rush, "and you know what I mean by flower holiday. Of course, it wasn't like Easter or Christmas, but I am sure no one can complain. The peonies were not so good as usual, because of adverse weather conditions, but at the same time the market was not glutted, and fair returns were obtained from all stock offered."

care of our Memorial day business," said George C. Shaffer. "We had a lot of good stock and we were able to take care of our customers in fine shape. By ordering early we got all we wanted of first-class flowers."

"I am sure our business this year went ahead of last year," said J. Harper Hetherington, of the Washington Floral Co. "That is saying a good deal when one considers the weather we have been having and the shortage of some varieties of flowers. However, in the absence of a glut of stock we were able to clean up much better and the market held well."

The florists conducting stalls in the Center Market reported good business in outdoor stock, the demand for fancy roses being light. In anticipation of a shortage of flowers for Memorial day, there was a stocking up of artificial flowers for wreaths.

Professor E. I. Wilde, of Pennsylvania State College, is doing some special work in the department of floriculture of Cornell University, under the direction of Professor E. A. White and Dr. E. C. Beal.

A. W. W. Sand, who is working on the genus iris, spent a week in New York and Philadelphia, where he made a special study of the varieties in flower at the present time. He was given valuable assistance by John C. Wister, president of the American Iris Society.

The rose test garden at Cornell University is in excellent condition, and the material came through with a much smaller percentage of injury than usual. The peonies, irises and phloxes are also in fine shape for this season of Harold A. Pratt, who is temporarily in charge of the greenhouses at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, will return to Ithaca sometime next month to resume his duties in the department of floriculture at Cornell University.

Arthur Bool, who is in charge of the growing for the Bool Floral Co., has a wonderful collection of bedding stock for the spring trade. He also has a fine lot of Cincinnati begonias ready for shipment. Ralph Roskelly, who is in charge of the store, reports a considerable increase in the Mothers' day business over previous years. The average run of business also shows an improvement.

Professor E. A. White, head of the department of floriculture of Cornell University, will leave for Europe in the near future. He expects to spend some time at the Kew Gardens and from there he will go on to Holland, Belgium and France.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. B. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

EXPORTS of onion seed from the Canary islands to the United States in 1920 amounted to 63,014 pounds, valued at $103,360.

CITY seed houses have not been able to secure enough bedding plants to meet the strong demand. Last week saw a shortage in many stores.

IT is reported that many farmers in the northwest are inclined to plow under or cut their sweet clover for hay instead of harvesting it for seed.

STOCKS of red clover were further increased by the arrival at New York of 560,000 pounds from France and 95,000 pounds from Germany last week.

THE members of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, who will attend the meeting of the Southern Seedsmen's Association at Memphis, Tenn., June 20 and 21, are R. B. Howe, the president, and H. A. Dertoli.

WARM weather last week increased the briskness of trade in Chicago stores. At the store of the W. W. Barnard Co. the available boys and girls were brought from the stockroom and office to help out with counter trade.

GARDEN seed planting need not end with the spring days. A great many seeds can be planted after the summer sets in. This fact should be told emphatically and often to the public. It will help to enliven the summer slow spell.

WHEN seedsmen were in greatest need of strong sales effort, there has been this spring a marked shrinkage in their advertising. Puzzled by the weather, the public needed the seedsmen's urging when planting time came, and, receiving it not, neglected the garden.

THE officers of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, which will meet at Memphis June 20 and 21, are: President, E. A. Martin, Jacksonville, Fla.; first vice-president, R. B. Buchanan, Memphis, Tenn.; second vice-president, Dick O'Bannon, Claremore, Okla.; secretary-treasurer, Frank S. Love, Montgomery, Ala.

NEW CROP domestic crimson clover seed will be a small factor in the commercial supply again this year, according to reports submitted to the United States Bureau of Markets. The production in south central Tennessee, the heaviest producing section during the last four years, is expected to be even less than last year because of the reduced acreage to be harvested for seed. The yield per acre, however, will probably be more nearly normal and in some instances greater than in 1920. Harvesting of the seed crop begins this week and local shippers are prepared to offer $7 to $8.25 per hundred pounds for country-run seed.

RAIN AIDS LOS ANGELES.

Since May 19 there has been an almost continual rainfall in and around Los Angeles, the rain gauge showing from two to four inches in the various parts of this county. during the early part of the year, which was detrimental to growth in general, and consequently all seed plantings are late. This recent storm, however, has given everything a good start and will be beneficial, especially to flower seeds. On the other hand, it has been bad for the larger portion of the hay crop which is now being harvested.

The sweet peas are badly affected with aphis, reports John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, and it is feared the rain and cloudy weather will have a tendency to increase this pest. A shortage in named varieties is anticipated and there will be no noticeable surplus in mixtures.

Asters and zinnias, reports the same firm, show a good stand and promise a normal yield. A few varieties, however, show a poor stand. These the company hopes to be able to replant and get a fair yield.

CAN GROW SUGAR BEET SEED.

From present indications the acreage devoted to growing sugar beet seed in the United States this season will be somewhat less than last year, in the opinion of specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The causes are: First, the drop in the price of sugar has caused some sugar companies which grow beet seed to curtail their expenses, and one way is to eliminate or reduce the production of sugar beet seed; second, the seed has become more abundant and more easily obtainable from European countries than it was during the war and immediately thereafter; third, while the price of imported seed is still from two to three times as high as the prewar price, it is greatly reduced as compared with the price of this commodity during the war; fourth, the cost of producing American sugar beet seed under normal conditions is higher than the cost of seed imported from European countries.

However, the experience of American growers the last few years, the specialists say, has demonstrated that sugar beet seed can be produced in this country comparable, in regard to quality, with imported seed and in some respects, especially with reference to germinating qualities, the American-grown seed has generally surpassed the best imported seed.

Importations of sugar beet seed the last several months have indicated an even lower grade, from the standpoint of germination, than in previous years, some testing fifty per cent or less.

Such seed is expensive at 25 cents per pound, as compared with American-grown seed testing eighty to ninety per cent germination, even if it cost that sum to produce.

The only argument against the production of sugar beet seed in this country is its cost when compared with that of an equal amount of imported seed. This difference in cost is more imaginary than real, because of the better germinating quality of the American-grown seed, as well as its freedom from stock-beet seed. Furthermore, the cost of production will be reduced with longer experience and more highly developed labor-saving implements.

One of the objects which the Department of Agriculture has in mind in this breeding work is the development of strains of seed beets which will ripen their seed at the same time. This accomplished, it will be possible to harvest the seed by machinery, making the cost of production correspondingly lower.

inary than real, because of the better germinating quality of the American-grown seed, as well as its freedom from stock-beet seed. Furthermore, the cost of production will be reduced with longer experience and more highly developed labor-saving implements.

One of the objects which the Department of Agriculture has in mind in this breeding work is the development of strains of seed beets which will ripen their seed at the same time. This accomplished, it will be possible to harvest the seed by machinery, making the cost of production correspondingly lower.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

"IT is just as easy unintentionally to mislabel plants as it is to get babies mixed in a hospital." But the nurseryman's mistake is always caught, while the nurse's blunder may never be discovered.

ANOTHER nursery has been added to the group at Painesville, O. Felix Dianni and N. Chriss are the proprietors and the firm name will be the Chriss & Dianni Co. They will specialize in roses and shrubs, and at present are growing these, together with some peach trees.

FRANK WEBER, of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., Nursery, Mo., reports a heavy season's business, which is now shaping itself so that he can arrange for a trip to Chicago to attend the American Association of Nurserymen's convention, June 22 to 24, and he will extend his trip east after the meeting.

THE idea of memorial trees, so widely urged by newspapers just now in honor of soldiers who died in the recent war, received earlier impetus from the "speakers' bureau" of the A. A. N. In striving to impress audiences with the fitness of trees for this purpose, the slogan was suggested, "A Tree for Every Service Star." The slogan advanced to help along the sale of trees as gifts was this pun, "A Present with a Future."

LOUISIANA QUARANTINE.

May 15 the shipment of nursery stock and ornamental plants from the parishes of Orleans and Jefferson was forbidden by the Louisiana authorities because of the presence in New Orleans of the Japanese camphor scale. The quarantine notice reads as follows:

Whereas, Japanese camphor scale, Pseudoaonidia duplex, is a dangerous and destructive pest on nursery stock, forest trees and ornamental plants, and whereas it indicates its ability to enlarge its list of host plants, to include plants of garden and field, therefore, in order to prevent the dissemination of the pest from New Orleans, where it is now established, a quarantine is hereby declared to include all that area within the parishes of Orleans and Jefferson, from which no nursery stock, forest trees or ornamental plants shall be moved until the pest has been eradicated, or until further notice has been received.

The above quarantine has been promulgated in accordance with Act No. 36 General Assembly of 1910 and shall have full effect of law on and after May 15, 1921.

A. A. N. CONVENTION PROGRAM.

Forty-sixth Annual Meeting.

The program committee has issued the program of the forty-sixth annual meeting of the American Association of Nurserymen, which will be held at the Congress hotel, Chicago, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 22, 23 and 24. The program arrangements call for several executive sessions for the purpose of discussing the problems that are confronting the association at present. These discussions will be open only to voting members of the association. The committee has seen the need of much serious thought and discussion about the plans for the coming year and has made the program accordingly. It will be an important meeting and will probably be well attended. The words of the committee, composed of Henry B. Chase, M. R. Cashman and E. S. Welch, tell its purpose in thus arranging the program:

Executive sessions have been decided on for the purpose of a full, free and frank discussion of those questions on which, during the past year, differences of opinion have developed. Some of the salient points to be brought out in these discussions are mentioned in connection with each question, but it is our wish that any other point that may occur to any member be brought out and discussed. No representatives of the press will be present; talk freely, open up, express your mind, but smile! We believe that every one of these questions can be thrashed out at this meeting and settled for all time.

Note that ample time has been allowed between the discussions and the final vote to give every member a chance to think before voting. Remember that a majority vote of the active members present decides all questions, except the amending of the constitution and by-laws, which requires a vote of two-thirds of the active members present.

The desire of the program committee is that these discussions may clear the atmosphere, and that, when the final adjournment is reached Friday, we shall find a united, bigger, stronger American Association of Nurserymen than ever before.

Opening Routine.

Wednesday morning, June 22, starting at 10 o'clock, will be devoted to the routine opening business and the only addresses to be given during the meetings. The program for the morning is as follows:

Call to order by President Stark.
Invocation.
Greetings.
Response by President Stark.
Report of arrangements committee, by A. M. Augustine, chairman.
Report of program committee, by Henry B. Chase, chairman.
Address by the Secretary of Agriculture, Henry C. Wallace.
Address by Edward N. Hurley, formerly chairman Federal Trade Commission.
Address by Dr. C. L. Marlatt, chairman Federal Horticultural Board, on "The Situation as to Future Imports of Fruit Tree Seedlings."
Address by L. B. Scott, of the United States Department of Agriculture, on "The Growing of Fruit Tree Seedlings in America."
President's address.
Appointment of doorkeeper for executive sessions.

The Wednesday afternoon session, which convenes at 2 o'clock, will begin with the hearing of committee reports in open session. The program of these is as follows:

Report of executive committee.
Report of executive secretary, by John Watson, Princeton, N. J.
Report of treasurer, by J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Ia.
Report of traffic manager, by Charles Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.
Report of market development committee, by Robert Pyle, chairman, West Grove, Pa.
Appointment of auditing and resolutions committees.

Session on Publicity.

This will be followed by an executive session, open only to voting members of the association, for the topic, "Market Development Publicity." Speakers, limited to five minutes each, will tell "how market development funds should be used to produce greatest results."

That's the name of the new pink rose! The name will be Priscilla probably after the public has had it a while, but we have had to add the prefix to cover the rules of nomenclature.

The program committee, in a note of explanation on this discussion, states:

The objective of this discussion is a plan for publicity the coming year, the kind we want, the date it should be started, how it should be signed—"Authorized by American Association of Nurserymen," or "Published by the American Association of Nurserymen," or how—the approximate amount of cash we should spend on it, all with the idea in mind of passing a resolution covering, so far as practicable, these details as a guide for the market development committee.

In this discussion the leaders will be as follows: For the retail agency house, E. H. Smith, of the Harrison Nursery Co., York, Neb., and Fred Burke, of the Graham Nursery Co., Rochester, N. Y.; for the retail mail order catalogue house, Henry T. Moon, Morrisville, Pa.; Paul Stark, Louisiana, Mo., and F. L. Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.; "for the whole nursery fraternity," E. E. May, Shenandoah, Ia., and William Pitkin, Rochester, N. Y.

In the subsequent discussion from the floor, each speaker will be limited to three minutes. The final resolution and vote on this question will be had Thursday afternoon.

Trade-Mark the Topic.

Thursday morning, June 23, at 10 o'clock, another closed session will be held, for the purpose of discussing the association's trade-mark. The full statement of the topic as given by the program committee is:

The trade-mark, "Trustworthy Trees and Plants." Is it practicable as an association emblem? Just what is a member's moral and legal liability under it? Should the trade-mark be viewed from a new angle since the association has been incorporated? Is it desirable or possible to restrict the use of the trade-mark? Should it be featured in our publicity work? Would a slogan on the order of that used by the florists be a better vehicle for publicity? Who has a slogan in his system and what is it? Shall the trade-mark be continued or dropped?

Speakers will be limited to five minutes each. The debate will be led by the following: Against the trade-mark: C. W. Carman, Lawrence, Kan.; C. H. Perkins, Newark, N. Y., and John H. Following these speakers there will be discussion from the floor with a time limit of three minutes for each speaker. Final resolution and vote on this subject will also be had Thursday afternoon, unless circumstances warrant a change by the convention.

There will then be a discussion concerning the office of executive secretary, when comments and suggestions from the floor will be asked. Next will come a discussion of the office of traffic manager, in which comments and suggestions from the floor will also be welcomed. Dues up for Discussion.

Another important closed session will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, again for voting members only. The topic will be the all-absorbing one of dues, concerning which the program committee puts these questions:

Is any change in the present schedule of dues desired? Since our last meeting the association has been incorporated. Are the members to hold shares? How are they to be apportioned and will the number of shares held by a

Greenhouse Heating

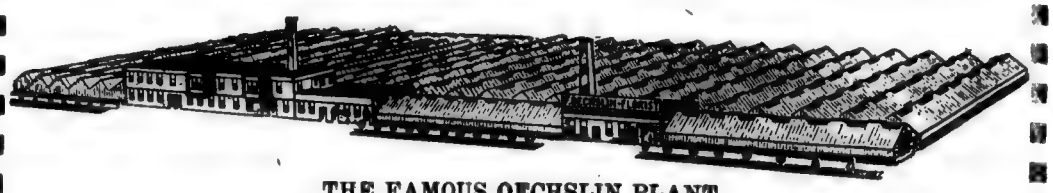
Subscribers are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

SIZE OF HEATER NEEDED.

Will you please tell me the size of the water heater which I would need in order to heat a greenhouse 25x50 feet in size and containing 2,000 square feet of glass? On one side there is a cement wall four feet high and on the other three sides there are cement walls three feet high. I desire to heat the house to a temperature of 50 degrees when there is an outside temperature of 20 degrees below zero. What size of pipe would be best to use, considering the fact that I plan to make an addition of about fifty feet later on? C. A. P.—Me.

For the house described it would be advisable to use a hot water heater rated at about 950 square feet of radiation and with a grate about twenty-five inches in diameter. However, if it is to be doubled in size within two or three years, it will be advisable to install at this time a heater which will be able to handle the house after it is enlarged. This will mean a heater rated at about 1,700 square feet of radiation.

For the radiating surface, which will not require any change when the house is enlarged, it would be advisable to use five 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one under the ridge, one under each side wall plate and the other two on the purlin posts. There should be five coils, each containing three 2-inch return pipes.



The main supply pipe, with which the flows are connected, should be a 5-inch pipe, or two 4-inch pipes may be used. The main return pipe or pipes should be of the same size. Run the flows and the returns downhill and connect the expansion tank with the highest part of the system.

ADDITIONAL HOUSES.

I have three greenhouses, which are each 14½x75 feet in size. They are heated with hot water and have a 4-inch main flow and a 4-inch main return. Each house has two 2-inch flows and four 1½-inch returns. I am going to build two more houses adjoining these three. The size of the new houses will be 22x75 feet. I am going to double the amount of pipe in each house. Will the 4-inch main flow and return carry the additional water? Colo.

As nearly as we can estimate from the data given, the three houses, 14½x75 feet, have nearly 800 square feet of radiating surface, including the mains. The new houses, if each one contains twice as much as each of the present houses, will have about 1,050 square feet. This makes a total of 1,850 square feet of radiation in all five of the houses. This is about twice as much as a 4-inch main should supply. In fact, under ordinary conditions, we would advise no change in the present arrangements and would suggest the use of either a 3-inch main for each of the new houses or a 4½-inch main to supply the two new houses.

Just how much radiation should be supplied by a main of a given size will vary not only with the length and the size of the coils, but also with the height of the flows and returns above the top of the boiler and the ratio between the radiation and the glass areas. The capacity of a main will be increased if the boiler is oversize.

If there is no glass in the side walls, we judge that the radiation in the old houses will keep them at from 40 to 45 degrees in a temperature of 10 degrees below zero. By doubling the radiation in the new houses, they can be kept heated to a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees.

SELECTION OF PIPES.

Will you tell me how large a main flow should be to supply two 3-inch and two 2½-inch feed pipes which are 190 feet long and which are to supply eleven 2-inch returns, 190 feet long?

O. B. M.—O.

While a good deal will depend upon the length of the main flow and return pipes, as well as on the height of the returns above the boiler, if these conditions are fairly favorable, it would be advisable to use 5-inch pipes for the flow and return.

JOINTLESS
FURNACE LINING

A furnace lining full of joints means loss of money through loss of heat and rapid deterioration. There are NO joints in a PLIBRICO lining, therefore no loss of heat—no coal waste—and deterioration cannot start.

A PLIBRICO lining is quickly and easily installed, a saving in time. Therefore PLIBRICO is a big-paying investment.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Florists had anticipated an easing up in the trade, but last week the horse races created a demand for corsages and bouquets. The graduation exercises at the hospitals called for a great many bouquets. Some of the florists have been supplying flowers for social functions, both for table decorations and for corsages. Funeral work has been fairly heavy, so that the available supply of flowers has been used up and there have been no bargain sales.

Various Notes.

G. M. Geraghty entertained a party over the week end at his cottage on Georgian bay, Pilgrims' Rest.

Arrangements are being made for the annual picnic of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club, at Long Branch, July 6. As usual, the retail stores will be closed during the afternoon to permit all employees to attend. All florists, including growers, and their families, are invited.

Mr. Cahill, of Roman J. Irwin, has been calling on the trade in Toronto.

Construction is progressing well on George Bonnett's new greenhouses, at Bowmanville. Part of his property, on Queen street, west, is being built up for other purposes, and another landmark has been removed from the city.

A playlet, called "The Flower Shop," was put on at the Pantages theater recently. The sign on the shop, while the play was in Toronto, was J. J. Higgins.

Some fine gladioli are being delivered in Toronto from the Georgetown Floral Co. J. J. H.

DENVER, COLO.

Carnations, since Mothers' day, have been scarce. There were not a great many of any kind of flowers for May 30; the reason for this was the heavy snow storm and severely cold weather during the month of April. There were only a few peonies. Roses have been coming in well and are bringing a good price.

S. R. Lundy, of the Boldt-Lundy House of Flowers, and his wife, are spending a short vacation in the Rockies. L. C. H.

The Market.

The week ending May 28 was rather dull for the first few days, there being little work of any kind. Toward the end of the week, however, business picked up and, of course, Friday and Saturday before Memorial day, business was brisk. Then Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning, it seemed to slacken considerably. Local peonies just made the holiday, and there was an abundant supply of excellent stock to be had. Roses were rather short in supply, while there was plenty of other stock to be had. Carnations were plentiful and brought $8 to $12 per hundred, while peonies were bringing $10 and $12. There was a considerable supply of annual larkspur, columbine, pyrethrum, coral bell and other stock, such as bachelor's buttons, calendulas and swainsona. Pink outdoor sweet peas have made their appearance and have been of fair quality. Easter lilies are just about done for.

The market has experienced a shortage of ferns for the last two weeks, since it is next to impossible to get through regular shipments; the only kind available has been the southern fancy ferns, which have been selling at $4 and $5 per thousand.

Warm weather the last few days has made it hard to keep stock in good condition, especially for the shipping trade. Valley is now coming in regularly and will probably be in great demand for June weddings. Orchards are scarce on this market and are rarely seen on the wholesale market any more.

Various Notes.

Joseph Squillaciot, of the Cedar Flower Shop, is building a new store, which he expects to have ready within the next week or so. He has bought a house and lot, and is building his store in the front. W. A. R.

The Market.

There was more stock for Memorial day this year than in previous years. Peonies, as usual, were in abundance and went well at prices from $6 to $10 per hundred. Roses were not in the best of condition, but went fairly well, with the exception of White Killarney.

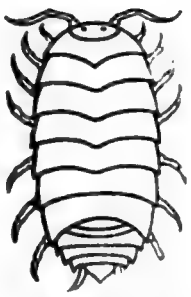
Carnations went well. Gladioli were the best and sold well, promising a small shortage, but this did not cause much alarm. Outdoor stock filled in nicely, such as feverfew, larkspur, snapdragons, field daisies, gaillardia, coreopsis, cornflowers, cape jasmines and sweet william. Green goods went well, as usual.

Various Notes.

H. W. Sheppard's shop has been exceedingly busy on graduation work at the hospitals, and also on funeral work and wedding orders.

L. H. Kyrk is receiving some excellent gaillardias and delphiniums from George Klotter, of Price Hill.

Fred Gear, of upper Vine street, reports the best Memorial day business ever.



E. G. Gillett reports a good week in the sale of supplies, and also that the sales of the new foliage, coontie, have increased considerably.

Tromey's Flower Shop reports a big week in general work and the best May so far.

Judging from the way Ray Lindsay, of the Sunnyside Greenhouses, Hartwell, has been speeding around the market, that concern must be setting a good pace.

K. J. Hardesty's displays of late have been more than usually attractive and deserve mention.

We use HAMMOND'S SLUG SHOT on Currant Bushes in the Spring before the leaves are started. We put it on around the roots and have done it for two years, and find that the worms are killed before they get on the bush. For potatoes we put on SLUG SHOT as soon as the bugs come, and we have good vines, plenty of tubers and no bugs. It is the best thing we have ever used. For Sow Bugs in greenhouses it is sure death. We had a lot of them before using SLUG SHOT but they got out where it is used.

ALFRED GOLDRING.

Slug Shot for Sow Bugs.

It is with great pleasure each week I read your valued paper, and I like to give a helping hand when I can. I do not wish to say anything against the use of Paris green and sugar, or bran, or any other material, for I know these are all good to kill bugs, such as wood lice (sow bugs), etc. But I would like to state, as I have done formerly, for the benefit of anyone bothered with sow bugs that I have thoroughly cleared my greenhouses of this pest by dusting freely with HAMMOND'S SLUG SHOT, spreading it well in the walks, under the benches, along the side walls and between the plants, using about 20 lbs. to a 20 ft. x 100 ft. house. This Slug Shot will not injure Carnation plants. I hope that this recital of my experience will be of help to others in trouble and especially recommend its use as it is not dangerous to human life as is Paris green.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society.

The Newport Horticultural Society held a regular meeting Tuesday evening, May 24, for the discussion of matters affecting the coming spring exhibit. Donations were received from a number of seedsmen and horticultural builders of New York and Boston for premiums at the spring and fall shows.

Gardeners were invited to coöperate with the school gardeners in assisting the latter with plants as they have done before. Sprays of lilacs, clipped from the imported French bushes on the Auchincloss estate, were presented for inspection and all remarked their exceptional beauty. The varieties, Marceau and Miss Ellen Willmott, white and purple respectively, form beautiful clusters of most delicately tinted petals, pervaded by a delicate perfume.

Regret was expressed at the announcement of the passing of David Gordon at his residence in New York recently. Mr. Gordon will be recalled as one of the five founders of the Newport Horticultural Society. He, with John T. Allan, Alexander MacLellan, A. Brandt and Richard Gardner, met on New Year's day, 1890, at "The Breakers," where Mr. Gardner was in charge of the conservatories. In the course of their celebration of the day, it was proposed that they form a horticultural society. This was done and so appreciative has the community become of the society's influence in promoting the science and art of horticulture here that it has received general public approval and encouragement and its membership has grown from five to more than 100.

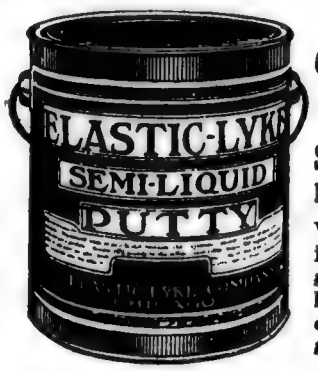
Various Notes.

John S. Martin, 20 Narragansett avenue, is especially busy this spring with landscape work.

Earl Leary left last week on his annual vacation trip, which he will spend with friends in Maine.

Patrick Abbott and John White have been summoned for petit jury duty at the June term of the Superior court.

John J. Sergerson, foreman for Carl Jurgens, is confined to his bed with inflammatory rheumatism.



John Mahan, one of those who were appointed on the Minatonomi Hill commission, has qualified for the position.

Charles Ritchie had charge of the decorations for the St. George Men's Club Tuesday, May 24. These were not only pleasing, but a surprise; wisteria and lilac were used in profusion.

A wise business man figures costs by the year, right down the line, and especially so if his business has to do with greenhouses. He knows, either by experience or from a close study of the subject, that the only businesslike method of determining material costs in greenhouse building is by the year—first cost and up-keep cost.

CYPRESS, "the wood eternal" for greenhouse construction, is positively the cheapest wood to use, figured by its years on the job, without repairs or replacements.

All good constructors in these days are insisting on genuine "Tide-Water" Cypress, "The Wood Eternal"—every board and bundle bearing the famous Cypress Trade-mark.

Vol. 8, CYPRESS Pocket Library, is a little book filled with a big bunch of facts and figures about greenhouse construction—profitable reading. There are 48 books in the "Library," all of which give useful facts and plans about HOW, WHEN and WHERE to use CYPRESS, "The Wood Eternal," AND WHY. Which one shall we send you?

Memorial Day Business.

Business for Memorial day was unusually heavy this year, and the demand for both flowers and plants was beyond the supply. The demand for geraniums and vincas was unusually heavy, and all geraniums in bloom and in bud were sold out completely by the growers in this vicinity. A great many more vincas could have been disposed of.

In cut flowers, the demand was heavy for carnations, and colored stock was scarce. There was about enough white, however, to meet the demand. In roses, the call was principally for short and medium grades. There was a quantity of feverfew, gypsophila, snapdragon, candytuft, sweet peas and lilies in the market, all of which sold clean. There were a few peonies, but the stock was poor.

Shipping business was heavy, as Memorial day seems to be more observed in the smaller cities than it is in the larger ones. The local business for Memorial day, however, was much heavier than in former years, for which publicity in the local papers is given credit.

With a big Mothers' day and a big business for Memorial day, this year's May business totals in general above last year. Advance orders are beginning to come in for June weddings and for our school closing exercises.

Another Popular Callahan Greenhouse

The type E Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouse shown above is another favorite with progressive florists. It offers wide center clearance and convenient, efficient benching arrangement. Its standard construction includes very strong roof bracing and gable end bracing.

This house is furnished in three standard widths (D), as follows: 27 feet 6 inches, 31 feet 0 inches and 34 feet 4 inches. It includes all of the many features of Callahan design, such as the Easy-Splice V-Joint, extra large inside drip gutters, lapped and beveled roof bars, etc. You must see it to really appreciate it. And the cost is less.

ASTERS

100,000 TRANSPLANTED ASTERS.
In order to be reasonable and fair, I will reduce price, which belongs to me, but never quality, which belongs to you.
"QUALITY" seeds were germinated and later each one transplanted from the strongest in 7½ cu. ins. of sterilized soil as a sure preventive against disease that works havoc in the plant's future life.
They are as good as from 2-in. pots, stocky, clean and healthy and are ready for either benching or field planting.
Queen of the Market, white, pink and lavender.
Peerless, large flowers on long stems, appearing about the middle of August, pink and white only.
Daybreak, excellent for cutting, flowers large and double, shell-pink color.
Purity, similar to Daybreak, pure white color.
Semple's Giant Branching, extensively used for outdoor planting as well as under glass, white, pink and lavender.

3-INCH CYCLAMEN.
In the best commercial colors, consisting of light and dark salmon, wine red, Xmas red, Daybreak, lavender, white with pink eye.
The best strain on the market.

In shipping out our transplanted seedlings, we surely pleased our trade, as one customer at Reading, Pennsylvania, who ordered 1000 wrote back: "Well, I can only say they are wonderful, never expected plants like these."
One at Columbia, South Carolina, wrote: "I want 200 more like the ones sent." Another at Baltimore, Maryland: "Cyclamen just arrived and they are surely fine."
This stock will be shipped during June and July, and you must expect to get selected plants as fine in every respect as you have ever received in 3-in. Cyclamen, for some plants now run as high as 18 to 21 leaves and they will be strong for 4-in. pots the day you receive them.

HURRAH FOR EASTER GREETING.
Look on page 17 March 26th issue of Review and see what advertising we got free. The panel photo on next page was taken by us March 17, 1915—note the date March 17th.
This article is wonderfully well written except that it minimizes the great superiority of Easter Greeting over the common sorts. We do not deny the regal beauty of all pelargoniums, but we should all think of the housewife, the ultimate buyer and judge. The old type are sure to disappoint.
Every claim we made for Easter Greeting when we introduced it in March, 1914, has been doubly vindicated. Our claim that it blooms from early March to October has never been denied.
But now, we have a nice stock of 2¼-in., some of which should go to you, if you would have Easter Greeting in it's grand perfection for Easter 1922. Only $7.00 per 100.

The above will make excellent plants to grow on for large plants for next spring, also for stock plants for propagation.

The Market.

We experienced several changes in the weather last week and, consequently, stock has been held back some. Most of the stock reaching us now is of excellent quality, being well foliaged, with good stems. Several varieties of outdoor flowers have made their appearance and they sell well, being somewhat of a novelty this early. The season is fully two weeks ahead of time and excellent lemon lilies, iris and a few roses are seen.

Carnations have been fairly plentiful, with a good demand. Their quality remains good. Sweet peas have been plentiful, and there is a good, steady demand for them. Roses are in heavy supply in all varieties and grades. Easter lilies are arriving in fair quantities this week and the demand is good. Calla lilies appear to be shortening up in supply.

Gladioli are well spiked and bring good prices. Bachelor's buttons are of fine quality and sell well. Gypsophila sells readily and is of fine quality. Calendulas are coming in again in better supply. Peonies, both local and out-of-town grown, are reaching us in heavy supply and the demand for them is good. Larkspur is in fair supply. The supply of snapdragon is not large, but a good demand is noticed. There have also been seen a large quantity of double white narcissi on the market. As these are something unusual for this locality, the demand was good.

Various Notes.

Felix Albert has returned from Alden, N. Y., after a two weeks' trip. He derived considerable benefit from the black water baths and is able to be around again and at work in his store.

Salter Bros. have been showing a beautiful pot of cattleyas with seven blossoms on it. This came from the collection of Charles W. Curtis, who has about forty-five varieties, including some beautiful orange-colored ones and some almost clear white.

The Rochester Rose Society will hold its annual rose show June 13 and 14 at the Chamber of Commerce building.

Harry L. Glenn and friends were on a lake cruise over the holidays on their private yacht.

David McGregor is planning to build another greenhouse of the same dimensions as his present house, at the range on Chamberlain street.

President William W. Hibbard, of the Rochester exposition, has appointed Charles H. Vick chairman of the flower show to be held in conjunction with the exposition and horse show next fall. Mr. Vick, incidentally, has been chairman in charge of all the exposition flower shows. Amateur flower growers will again have a chance to exhibit plants and cut flowers. Many cash prizes and silver cups are to be given for the best specimens. For the last three years the flower show has been staged by the professional florists and growers, but there has been no competition except the friendly rivalry of the florists to see who could make the best display.

Mrs. Will Boyce, of H. E. Wilson's, is taking the rest of the summer for a vacation.

The Saturday preceding Memorial day was warm and ideal for business. The stores were all remarkably busy and several of the larger up-town stores report that this must have been the biggest day of its kind they have ever had. Stock became scarce about the middle of the afternoon, with the result that most of the stores were empty by closing time. H. J. H.

PLANTS FROM COLDFRAMES.

After the Memorial day bedding plants are out of the way, what plants can we put in the coldframes to grow for Christmas, keeping in mind that we do not have a greenhouse? How would Cleveland and Jerusalem cherries and celestial peppers, or Christmas begonias do? Perhaps you can add to this list and give some instructions as to culture, etc. Also, please tell us whether to buy stock or seed. H. D. F.—N. J.

I am afraid you will not be able to produce any plants for Christmas sales from unheated frames and would advise against your trying even Cleveland and other cherries. The seed of these should be sown under glass in February and, while you could purchase young plants now and plant out in the field and pot up in fall, I question the practicability of carrying even these in coldframes until Christmas in your state. Farther south it would be possible. Better sow pansies, violas, forget-me-nots, double daisies and such plants as Canterbury bells, foxgloves, larkspurs and some

AJAX BLACK GLAZING CEMENT

A PRACTICAL glazing material made for application in a practical manner. No clumsy, slow working tools necessary—simply a putty bulber or two and a filling gun to load them—furnished free to users.

Ajax Black Glazing Cement has been used throughout the country for several years with excellent results. To prospective purchasers we can give names of satisfied users in every greenhouse center—over a hundred names in Chicago locality alone.

NOT AFFECTED BY EXTREME HEAT OR COLD

Our product is a cement-like composition of Asbestos Fibres, and heavy, semi-drying hydro-carbon oils. Its exceptionally long life is due to the fact that it never thoroughly hardens like old fashioned white putty. The outside surface (which is exposed to the oxygen of the air) forms a resilient tough skin, below which the material remains soft and plastic. Because of this we guarantee that the coldest weather will not cause it to become brittle or pull away. On the other hand our product is warranted not to sag or run in extremely hot weather due to its being inter-laced with the Asbestos Fibres.

As Ajax Black Glazing Cement never thoroughly hardens, glass glazed with it can be shifted when desired without the loss of breakage that so often results when hard drying white putties are used.

Easily applied with a bulber. No clumsy tools necessary.

LOW COST

Compared with the old fashioned White Lead putties, Ajax Black Glazing Cement not only lasts years longer, but is a great deal lower in initial cost.

One gallon is sufficient to glaze 500 lineal feet of sash.

While primarily made to stop water leaks, so thoroughly does Ajax Black Glazing Cement hermetically seal up the sash, that it will soon pay for itself in the saving of heat that is otherwise lost through air voids. This fact has been demonstrated time and again, and we can prove it.

Traveling Salesmen's Week.

Traveling salesmen's week in the drive for new members for the S. A. F. is set for the week starting June 5. In connection with the activities for this week, the following letter has been sent to salesmen connected with the florists' trade:

"This is traveling salesmen's week for the S. A. F. drive, and this is a plea for them to lend a hand. This letter is to the 'knights of the grip' of our trade.

"We hail you, gentlemen, with your pleasant smile and your happy jokes! Without you there would truly be a missing link in our profession. We wish for all men of the trade to greet you cheerfully and give you a hearing at all times and an order whenever possible.

"To do this properly, we need education; and organization means education. So we, herewith, solicit your hearty support in the membership drive for the greatest of all organizations of our trade; namely, the S. A. F.

"Please write the undersigned for application blanks and other material to assist you in soliciting new members. Our committee looks to you gentlemen for great results, since your business is salesmanship, and we must try to sell this worthy cause to every florist in the country.

KOSTER
Starts a Little Holland in America

With Mr. Koster, QUALITY comes before everything else.

When the war and embargoes both knocked the Holland growers' business into a cocked hat, Mr. Koster, of Boskoop and Blue Spruce fame, as you know, came to this country and started propagating and growing box, rhododendrons, kalmias, also azaleas, roses and evergreens.

He started doing what the growers of this country had never done before.
So successful has he been, that no less a man than Charles Seabrook, President of the 4000-acre truck and fruit farms at Bridgeton, N. J., was attracted.

This Koster-Seabrook combination spells assured success from the start. It means things done on a big scale, but with quality of product always the first consideration.

One of our Iron Frame propagating greenhouses is already on its way.

The house itself is of our Standard Construction throughout. Hitchings will do the erecting and heating, while the benching Mr. Koster will carry out along the line he has proved to be so successful.
With characteristic Dutch thrift, Mr. Koster wanted every greenhouse dollar to count.
But price did not determine the final selection of a Hitchings house.
That is to say, the amount of money involved was more, but the actual price will prove out less.
Less because the Koster-Seabrook combination will get more for their money.

In addition to which is a prompt, dependable service and a pleasant dealing that is worth dollars to a firm, just as surely as is greenhouse material.

You know we go anywhere for business.
Or to talk business.

The big house is an AGMCO 90 x 450 ft., built for Longview Farms, Lees Summit, Mo.

You'd still be burning whale-oil lamps——

—if it wasn't for a restless, untiring spirit of aggressive searching, testing and experimenting. This spirit has been the cause and the directing force in the progress of the world. Without it we would still be living in caves and depending on our cunning or strength in the chase for our daily sustenance.

But now and then this spirit lags in certain fields of activity. It lagged for several years in the field of greenhouse designing. And then it embodied in the AGMCO. The result has been an awakening in this field, the evolving of innumerable improvements in the details of construction, and at last, the creation of an entirely new type of greenhouse—the AGMCO Steel-Bar.

It is no longer necessary to build the same kind or style of greenhouses your fathers built. That kind was all right in its day, but its day has passed with the day of the whale-oil lamp. This is a new day, a progressive day, an AGMCO day. A day when the same careful thought that goes into the study of industrial building is being put into the study of greenhouse building by the company that cares.

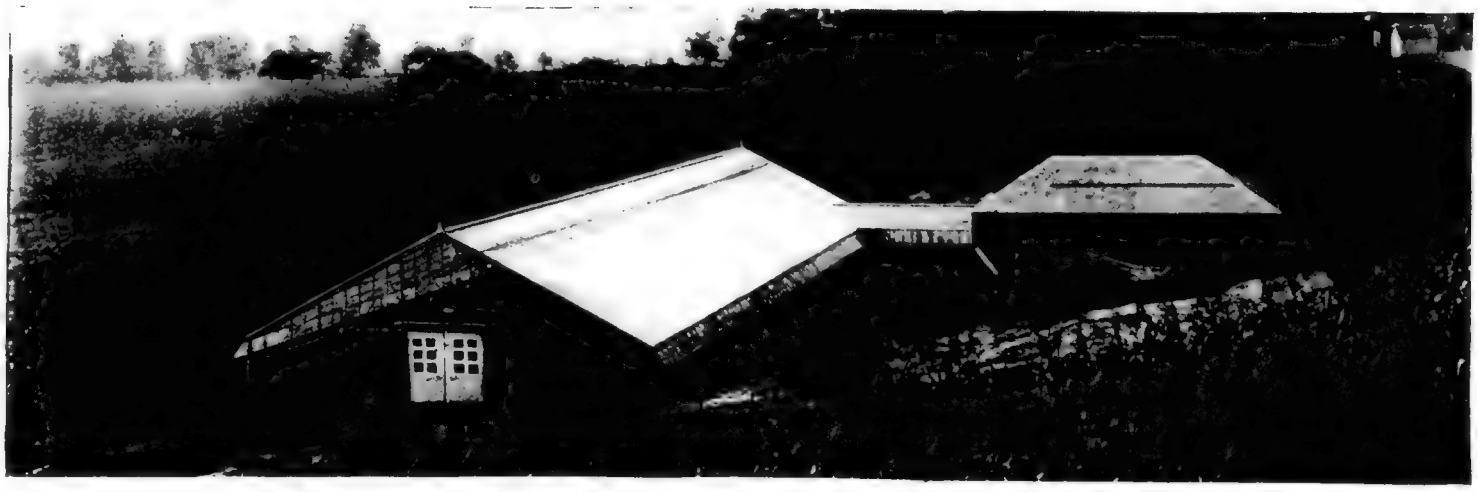
Paint Points Worth Considering

Paint never costs a cent.
That is to say, good paint doesn't.
Leastwise, that is what your friends, the thrifty Hollanders, say.
They say: "It doesn't cost a cent, because it preserves something from costing a lot more in repairs than it costs to paint."

With that point settled, now let's consider how often a greenhouse should be painted.
Most growers say, every two years.
That's what we say.
When both of us say two years, have a notion we mean it should be painted EVERY THIRD summer.



Bear in mind that the sun pelts down on those bars unmercifully, fairly pulling the oil right out of the paint.

Also, that the putty is ALWAYS hungry for oil, so it, too, is robbing the paint all it can.

Don't lose sight for a minute of the fact that the lead or zinc in a paint has practically no preservative qualities.
It's the oil that does the preserving.
It's the oil that binds the lead and zinc together.
When that is gone the paint is done for.
Lead and zinc only COVER AND FILL IN.
Oil BINDS and PRESERVES.

We make a special BALANCED greenhouse paint.
By BALANCED, we mean a careful proportioning of lead, zinc and oil.
A balancing that we have proven by years of use, means the highest possible covering and preservative powers.
It costs less than paints that cost less.
Costs less because it is worth SO MUCH MORE than it costs.

Whether you buy this paint of ours or not, for all this season's painting, buy at least a gallon and try it out, side by side with other paints.
If it doesn't lay easier, dry smoother, and last longer, of course you won't buy another gallon.
Send for price.

FREESIA PURITY---Improved

We believe we are the largest handlers of high-grade Purity Freesia bulbs in America. All our fields are thoroughly examined during their growing stage by members of the firm, to insure our customers the best the crops can produce. We can deliver Freesia bulbs early enough to enable you to get them in bloom for Christmas, if properly handled. Our bulbs are not grown in the wet district of California, but are properly watered by irrigation. They are all grown near Los Angeles, which florists in California recognize as the best place to grow high-grade bulbs. The fact that we sell quantities in California of our own growing is evidence that florists know where the best quality is produced.

Bulbs offered in the following sizes, all up to size:

Up to ½	$ 7.50
½-⅝	12.50
Mammoth Bulbs, ⅝-¾	16.50
Jumbo Bulbs, ¾ and up (quantity limited)	22.00

M. WEILAND, Florist, 602 Davis St., Evanston, Ill.

Dear Sirs:

The Freesia Purity you sold me this year were as good as ever. I have found that I can always rely on your Freesia Bulbs. The large ones for early forcing were in for the holidays as usual.

The Rainbow Freesias are fine, growing tall and have very stiff stems. The colors are very fine and sell readily. Yours truly,

GEORGE C. WEILAND.

Gentlemen:

Just a word about the Freesia bulbs you sold me last year. I have grown Freesia bulbs for the past 20 years, but I have never before cut so large a percentage in December. I cut fully 50 per cent of my crop for the Christmas holidays. They were fine and sold well at the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange in Detroit.

Your Dutch bulbs are also fine.

Yours truly,

ROBERT KLAGGE, Mt. Clemens, Mich.

Meritorious Novelties

Here are a few worthy of consideration

If you are a Carnation Grower and are on the lookout for meritorious, profitable varieties you will be more than pleased to give considerable of bench space in your Carnation houses. Take our word for it—it will pay you to do so. We have "watched it growing" for upwards of three years. Here is the introducers' description:

Carnation Thos. C. Joy

Very Fragrant, Perfect Form, Prolific Producer, Strong Stem, Excellent Keeper, Good Shipper, No Splits, Pure White

Was awarded a Certificate of Merit at Washington and prize for 100 blooms of any variety White.

It is being grown this season at the following places: M. A. Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass.; The Gasser Co., Cleveland, O.; Poehlmann Bros. Co., Morton Grove, Ill. Go and see it growing. Their letters speak for themselves:

TESTIMONIALS

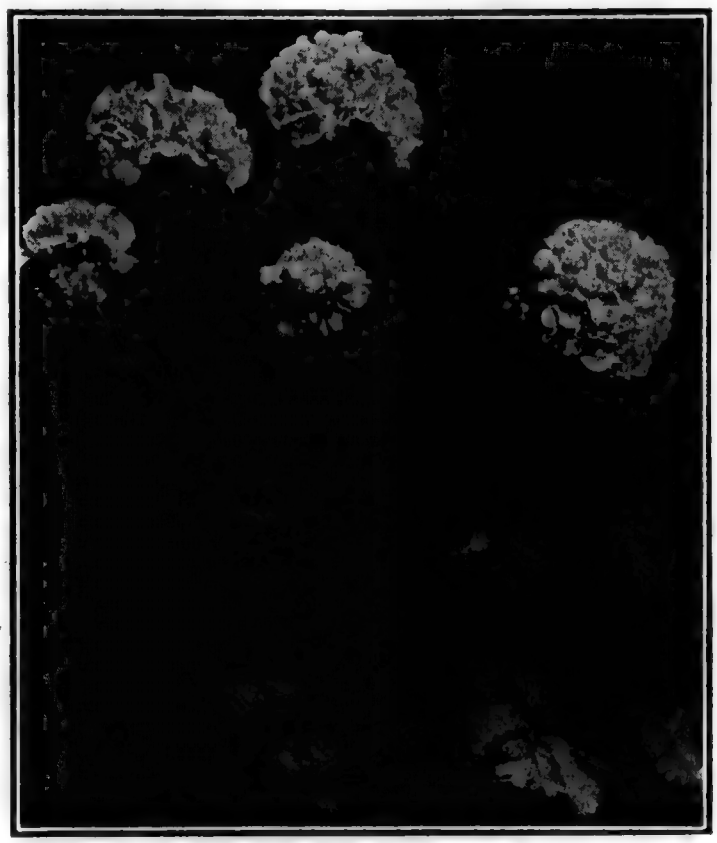
Joy Floral Co.:

Gentlemen: We are much pleased with your new white Carnation. It is clean growing, makes very little grass, as practically every shoot runs immediately to a bloom. The color could not be a purer white at any time of the year. It is a non-burster, the calyx being long, the bud coming out quite a distance from the calyx before opening. When allowed to develop, the flower has a high center, the form being excellent.

Yours very truly, PATTEN & CO.

Joy Floral Co.:

Gentlemen: It gives me great pleasure to recommend your white Carnation Joy to florists who want a good commercial white. As far as I know, there is no other white that is just as good. I was a little skeptical at first, but I am fully convinced, after seeing the variety growing at our place, that it is even better than Matchless, and that it will hold its own for some time to come.



Yours truly, AUGUST F. POEHLMANN.

Joy Floral Co.:

Gentlemen: We want to report that in our location, where sunlight is about as rare a bird as any place in this country, it is not only holding its own but proving to be a wonder. We consider it to be an excellent commercial white Carnation.

Yours truly,

New Geranium, Mrs. George E. Buxton

This is one of the finest double Geraniums ever introduced to the Trade. It is of a strong, robust growth, bearing enormous trusses of flowers of a most beautiful rose pink. As a pot plant it is all that could be desired. For outside bedding this new acquisition will please the most critical. A free bloomer and easily rooted.

100 Plants, $15.00; 1000 Plants, $125.00

250 plants at 1000 rates. Not less than 50 plants will be sent out. Deliveries December 1st and later.

To the Rose Grower who is always on the alert for the "best ever" we have the following trio to offer:

HILL'S AMERICA

THE E. G. HILL CO.

(Rose Premier x Hoosier Beauty)

Bud long and pointed; flower immense; strong in texture, a good keeper.

Foliage large, dark green; stems almost thornless and strong.

Resembles Columbia in its extraordinary, strong, quick growth and does not crimp the outer petals under any growing conditions; scores very high on form and size.

The color is a gorgeous rose-pink.

Quite distinct; a fine addition to the "Big Rose" Class.

RED COLUMBIA

JOS. H. HILL CO.

Sport from Columbia

Brilliant velvety crimson-scarlet, much the tone of Hoosier Beauty, never blues.

Not so full as the parent, but very lasting and with June-rose fragrance.

The foliage is ample and beautiful.

No forcing Rose makes so quick a comeback as the Red Columbia, consequently while it is not so full as the parent, its big crops of gorgeous red at Thanksgiving, again at Christmas, then at Valentine's Day, and on up to hot weather, make it extremely profitable.

ANGELUS

FRED LEMON

(Columbia x Ophelia)

White with cream tinted center.

A big, rounded Rose, like Premier in form but with higher center; very lasting, and fragrant.

Foliage dark green, disease-resistant.

A vigorous, upright grower and free in bloom.

Resembles Kaiserin Augusta, but is quite full, 40 to 45 petals, and, unlike Kaiserin, it blooms freely in Winter and is a good keeper.

Was awarded Certificate of Merit of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association in 1921; also Silver Medal of the New York Flower Show, Spring of 1921.

TESTIMONIALS

Joy Floral Co.:

Gentlemen: We are much pleased with your new white Carnation. It is clean growing, makes very little grass, as practically every shoot runs immediately to a bloom. The color could not be a purer white at any time of the year. It is a non-burster, the calyx being long, the bud coming out quite a distance from the calyx before opening. When allowed to develop, the flower has a high center, the form being excellent.

Yours very truly, PATTEN & CO.

Joy Floral Co.:

Gentlemen: It gives me great pleasure to recommend your white Carnation Joy to florists who want a good commercial white. As far as I know, there is no other white that is just as good. I was a little skeptical at first, but I am fully convinced, after seeing the variety growing at our place, that it is even better than Matchless, and that it will hold its own for some time to come.

Yours truly, AUGUST F. POEHLMANN.

Joy Floral Co.:

Gentlemen: We want to report that in our location, where sunlight is about as rare a bird as any place in this country, it is not only holding its own but proving to be a wonder. We consider it to be an excellent commercial white Carnation.

Yours truly,

40,000 Tumbler Baskets at 5c each

Would amount to $2,000.00, the average earnings of a basket maker for a whole year. But can you imagine any man making by hand 40,000 baskets in a year, which is about 130 each working day, or 16 per hour?

Counting cost of labor, materials, paints, liners, etc., it would seem impossible to produce a basket to sell for are ever increasing in popularity. These practical chiffons, treated with our exclusive chemical process, repel water and, in fact, surpass ordinary chiffon in beauty and utility.

The fabric does not become sticky and lose its shape when subjected to moisture, and this feature is approved by practical florists.

If you have not yet tested the utility of this useful chiffon, it would be to your interest to communicate with us at once.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

BUILDING NOW OR NEXT YEAR

Summer's approach is causing much hard thinking on the part of many growers on the subject of to build or not to build, whether 'twere better to wait in the hope of lower prices or to add glass now and earn a profit on it next season. Here are figures showing how costs are dropping.

ONE of the most striking impressions which a traveler in Mexico brings back with him is the average Mexican's seeming inability to do anything except to say "manana," which means tomorrow. The Mexicans delay doing everything as long as possible. We florists today are doing the same thing in regard to building greenhouses. The only difference between a Mexican's "manana" and a florist's tomorrow is that the first is caused by tropical laziness, while the latter is prompted by a seemingly good reason. Whether or not it is a good reason, nobody knows, and nobody will know for some time. But we can all study the situation and rely a bit on the judgment of some of the shrewdest and best-known business men in the country.

Nobody Knows.

Even they do not know. They are simply drawing their own conclusions from past known facts and present happenings. The adjustment after this war may be as different from the adjustment period after the Civil war as day is from night, yet it may be the same. So let us spend a moment in recalling the revisions in prices for the readjustment period during the years following in the wake of the Civil war. During the war and for two years following, prices went steadily up, some of them going away over double what they were before the war. The second year after the war there was a sharp decline in prices, the same as there was the latter part of last year and the first part of this year. But they did not go anywhere near the pre-war level. Then for a period of about ten years the prices slowly descended until, in some cases, they touched the pre-war prices.

Historians, in recording those days, state that the reason for some articles hitting the actual pre-war prices was the era of invention after the war. Many labor-saving devices were designed and put on the market. But there were some articles which never did return to the same price.

Just how closely the period of readjustment after this war will follow in the steps of the Civil war reconstruction period is hard to tell. In the first place, the Civil war was limited to this country. The south was affected the most and the north, of course, suffered, too. In the late war the whole world has been affected. So now the whole world must undergo a period of adjustment. Predictions as to what will happen will probably be as accurate as the predictions of the wise heads in the time of the Civil war; some will be partly correct, others will be a little closer to the real truth, and still others will be altogether wrong.

Conditions Similar.

But, so far, conditions have been similar to those after the Civil war. The high level price was reached in most commodities about two years after the war in both cases. Then there came a sharp decline in both cases. Now we are in the midst of that sharp decline. Whether or not we shall follow history and descend slowly from now on can be told only by waiting to see. Men in control of large businesses in the country say they do not look for more than from ten to fifteen per cent decline from now to the spring of next year.

So much for the general outlook. Now to get back to the conditions at present prevailing in the matter of building greenhouses. In 1919, two years ago, most of the greenhouse building materials were at their highest prices, materials were extremely difficult to obtain, and yet florists wanted to build. Now, prices have come down and materials are comparatively easy to get, and florists do not want to build. Why this strange change? It is easy to explain. In the last two years prices have come down, but not to the pre-war levels. Florists, like business men in all other lines, are waiting for the prices to hit the pre-war levels before they start to build many houses. But will they ever hit those old prices, and, if they do, how soon will they do it?

Guess Again.

Once more we have to look at history, study present conditions and hazard a guess. Men at the heads of the larger companies supplying the necessary materials are all firm in their belief that prices cannot recede any more than twenty per cent, if that much, in the next year. Perhaps ten per cent is all that is even likely. We can do no more than to take it for granted that they are the best informed as to the conditions regulating their particular industries and, therefore, know better than others just what can be expected from those industries.

Suppose that the average cost of building a greenhouse does go down ten per cent in the next year. A florist desiring a greenhouse at the present time is quoted a price, we will say, of $10,000. He thinks it is too high and decides to wait till next year. At that time, if the ten per cent drop has come, he can build the same house for $9,000, or at a saving of $1,000. But he is so engrossed in the $1,000 saving that he forgets an important fact: He can probably do a great deal more business with that extra house. If he makes $2,000 profit on the plants grown in that house in the year following its completion, he is just $1,000 ahead. He has made $1,000 more than he would have made, had he waited. So, figuring it the other way around, he would lose $1,000 by waiting.

Present Decreases.

The table on the preceding page shows the rise and fall of prices for material used in greenhouse construction. These figures are, of course, approximate. But for the purpose of comparison, they are close enough to show the trend of prices. It is interesting to note the percentages of decrease from the highest prices to the present prices. Steel, it will be seen, registered a decrease of about thirty-three per cent, the second largest fall. The reason for this is that it started on the downward track first. It reached its highest point in 1917 and, therefore, has had about four years in which to go down. This may, in a way, tell something about the decreases which can be expected of the other prices. Most of the prices reached their peak in the fall of 1919 and the spring of 1920. If they follow the precedent of steel it will be some time in 1923 and 1924 before there is as great a decrease in price on the other commodities. Tank cypress has come down little, between thirteen and fourteen per cent. There is every reason to believe that there never will be a repetition of pre-war prices on tank cypress. This is the best grade of cypress lumber. Cypress is becoming scarcer and scarcer; in fact, it is so scarce that a great deal of redwood is being used in its place. So the old law of supply and demand will, in all probability, keep up the price of this grade of cypress. The common and pecky cypress have taken a good-sized tumble, twenty-five and twenty-eight per cent, respectively. But the supply of these grades is getting smaller, and there is no telling what will happen to the price of them.

Cement has taken the longest drop of all, going back thirty-seven per cent from its high price.

Glass has not had a great decrease, because the short glass supply has been longer in catching up with the demand than the other commodities. Steel pipe has made an appreciable decrease, for it has, in a way, followed the price of basic steel. Paint, a rather large item in the building of greenhouses, has also taken a medium-sized tumble. The average for the whole list is a decrease of twenty-three per cent.

Will They Go Back?

But all of these commodities are still above the pre-war level. Some of them may some day drop to the old price. Some of them will, perhaps, never go back to the old level. Or, they may take years to reach the desired place. Or, perhaps, none of them will ever get back. Or they may all go back in a hurry. Or they may all take their time. Whatever is to happen, each and every man has his opinion. But from the opinions of some of the great business heads of the country and from the opinions of men at the head of large firms in the businesses that supply material for greenhouses, the prices will go down slowly from now on.

If we can place any confidence at all in these opinions and can take an example from the period after the Civil war, a florist who needs a greenhouse now would seem to be safe in building it and reaping the additional year's profit, in place of saving a possible ten to twenty per cent on the cost of erection a year from now.

THE FERTILIZER MARKET.

Of all the commodities, few are so hard hit in the readjustment period as is the fertilizer industry; it is one place in which the greenhouse trade is deriving a benefit. In most cases fertilizers are being sold below recent costs of production. There is scarcely any business moving, florists being practically the only class of buyers who are taking normal quantities. The agricultural demand has almost disappeared. Florists in the neighborhood of Chicago have bought sheep manure recently as low as $26 or even $25 a ton in carload lots, and bone at $33 to $31 per ton. Florists as a class do not obtain fertilizers from first hands, as the big houses are reluctant to sell in less than carloads or on other terms than sight draft attached to bill of lading.

BAN HITS FICUS ELASTICA.

The quarantine placed on shipments of plants and nursery stock from the parishes of Orleans and Jefferson, in Louisiana, seems likely to curtail the trade's supply of Ficus elastica cuttings. Ficus elastica cuttings, formerly imported from Belgium, are now grown around New Orleans, and are shipped in May and June. Just as the first shipments of the season were about ready the quarantine was clamped down, to include the two parishes where these cuttings are produced, by reason of the camphor scale. The length of the quarantine is indefinite, but it will probably last long enough to spoil the season's crop of cuttings, estimated at over 100,000. No shipments can at present be made. The formal notice of the quarantine on the Japanese camphor scale, which went into effect May 15, was published in last week's issue of The Review.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Cleveland, O.—C. D. Friebolin, referee in bankruptcy, has notified creditors of the James Eadie Co. that the final report of the trustee has been filed and that a meeting to consider it will be held at his office, 610 Ulmer building, at 10 a. m. June 20. The trustee asks leave to abandon the remaining accounts receivable. Two dividends have been paid, totaling seven and two-tenths per cent.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Memorial day business was a series of surprises to retailers generally, if ours was any criterion," observed William Schlatter, of William Schlatter & Son, Springfield, Mass. "For instance, four plants of Geranium Beaute Poitevine in a pan selling for $4 was not an isolated case and, as we see it, shows advanced taste and appreciation of our patrons for well grown stock. The grand total far exceeded anything in our long experience." The new Schlatter store will be ready for occupancy around July 1 and will be up to the minute in every detail.

Mark Aitken, of the Aitken Flower Shop, Springfield, Mass., is not so satisfied with the general returns of Memorial day business. He said artificial stuff cut quite a competitive figure, although admitting they had a run on designs from $3 upward. Some really beautiful designs were seen and eclipsed the stereotyped "prepared for use" article. In cut flowers, the Aitken greenhouses excelled in roses and carnations, the grower, Samuel Redstone, having a heavy cut. A handsome pan of standard-grown fuchsias placed in the store window was the center of attraction, many others being sold in consequence.

J. W. Adams & Co. have established headquarters at the nursery, at Westfield, Mass., where the output is highly encouraging. A grand season for planting has been experienced, and a fine lot of stock has been disposed of.

"Finest business in our experience," is the report of the H. F. A. Lange Flower Shop, Worcester, Mass. "Weddings and funerals in seeming endless number; no apparent let-up," observed A. Lange.

• • • •

S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., pleased all concerned with a fine crop of his famous Carnation Laddie around Memorial day.

James Wheeler, Natick, Mass., is seriously considering reducing the grand stock of Calla Godfreyana to make room for Winsor, the pink sport of Carnation Matchless, which is a great favorite in the Boston market.

• • • •

George Butterworth, Framingham, Mass., says the Miltonia vexillaria mentioned in The Review for June 2 will be known as the flower for the June bride, so popular has it become. Another gem is the fairy-like Oncidium flexuosum. Some sprays worked into a casket spray of lily of the valley made a rich and airy combination.

On entering the packing room of the establishment of the A. N. Pierson Co., Cromwell, Conn., one's eyes rest upon a large card, bearing the scriptural quotation, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." Evidently our worthy veteran confrere recognizes the assistance of a higher authority and gives credit for much of the wonderful progress made at this place, which is a Mecca for students and tourists. In this same packing room, the new rose, Pilgrim, is sent forth. Complimented upon the splendid appearance of the place and stock, the fine old gentleman acknowledged that "the Lord hath done great things for us."

GROWING CYCLAMEN

OWING to careful selection of the finest plants and flowers for seed, cyclamens have become the most popular flowering plants for late fall and the Christmas holidays. The flowering period commences in November and, with proper care, will continue until March. There is today a varied assortment of colors and they are all indispensable. Sometimes salmon is called for, sometimes pink, or red, or white, but it is variety which the public likes and not one particular color.

As it requires about fifteen months to grow marketable cyclamens from seed, plants intended for sale next Thanksgiving and Christmas—not to speak now of Easter stock—should already have a good start.

The seed may be sown as early as the end of July or the first part of August, and in successive batches till January. By this means the blooming period can be prolonged from Thanksgiving until the following Easter, with the heaviest crop at Christmas or whenever it is most desired.

Sowing the Seed.

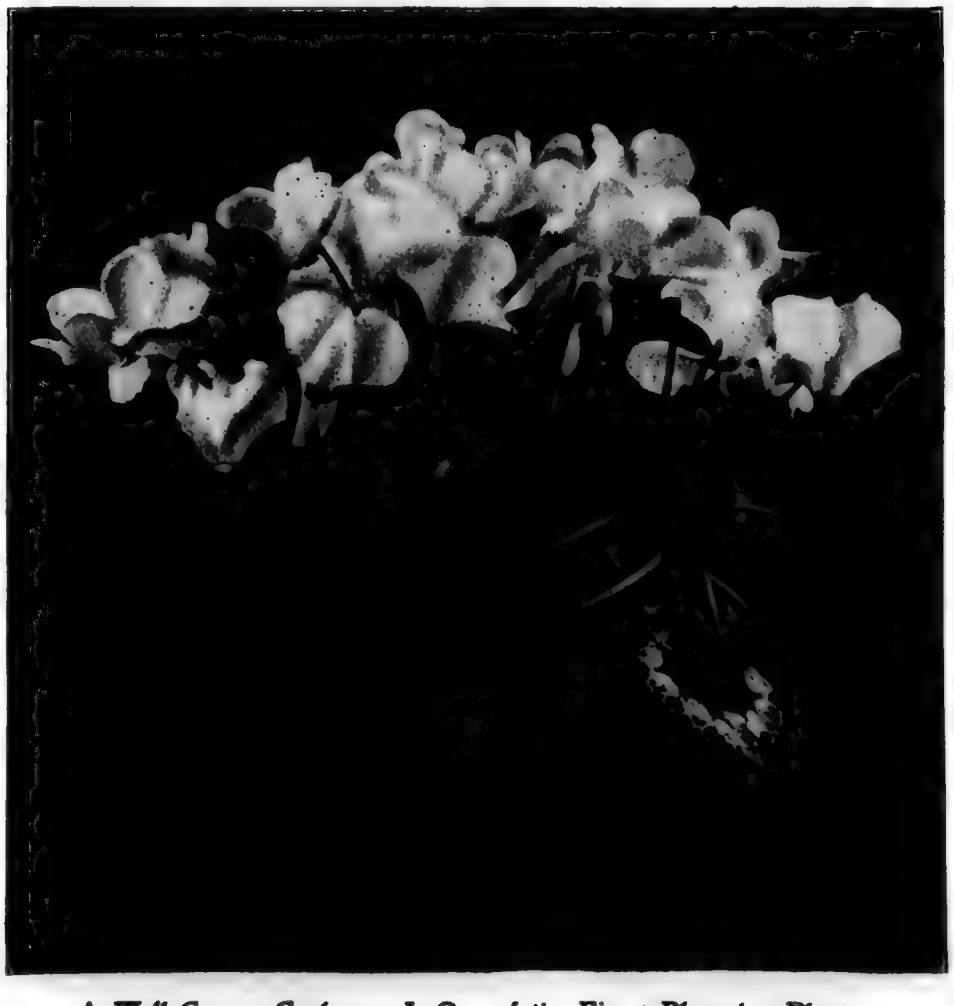
On account of the fact that the seed produces a bulblet or corm before leaf-growth is visible, the process of germination in its entirety occupies a considerable length of time. In moderate moisture, germination may be completed in three or four weeks, but may require as long as two months.

Cyclamens come true to color from seeds. Named varieties from first-class seedsmen may be depended on generally to reproduce themselves with only slight variation. Red, pink and salmon shades are specially in demand at the holidays. For the seeds, use a light compost, consisting of one-half leaf-mold, one-fourth light, sandy loam and one-fourth sharp sand, placed in shallow, well-drained flats. Drop the seeds evenly in rows. Scatter a little sand over the seeds and press them in gently with a piece of board. Place the seed flats in a warm, moist house and keep them protected from sunshine. The seed must not be allowed to become dry. After the small leaves appear, put the flats on shelves near the glass, in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. Stir the soil occasionally and give a fine spraying on bright days.

When the little plants are well established and before they become crowded in the flats, transfer them to 2½-inch or 3-inch pots. For this first potting, a compost consisting of equal parts of fibrous loam and flaky leaf-mold, with the addition of some sand, would be suitable. As to the depth in planting, put the bulblet or tiny corm even with the surface or just showing above the soil. Place the pots in a temperature of 55 degrees at night, on a bench that is supplied with a little bottom heat. About midsummer another shift will be needed, and the culture for this summer shift will be treated of later.

Final Potting.

The next repotting is the final one and should occur, in the case of the main crop, sometime in September. It is about this time that the plants make their most rapid growth, as the American summers are too warm to suit cyclamens perfectly.



The flowering pots usually are 5-inch or 6-inch, according to the vigor of the plants. For the second and the final potting, the compost may be formed of a fresh, tufty loam and a fourth or fifth part of well decayed horse manure, with the addition of some sand if the soil is heavy. In the late fall and early winter some shade will still be desirable for a few hours during the hottest part of the day and one or two light sprayings daily will be beneficial. The plants should be on a light, sunny bench or shelf, in a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees. When the pots are well filled with roots, weak doses of liquid manure or top-dressings with a good fertilizer will be in order. In the first part of December the shade should be entirely removed and some ventilation should be given when the temperature rises above 65 degrees. A temperature of 50 degrees at night is about right for the plants in flower.

In the foregoing suggestions little has been said about the treatment of the plants in midsummer, because that stage of the culture is so important and critical as to require a paragraph or two entirely for itself. Cyclamens may be carried through the summer with about equal success either in a greenhouse or in frames; the choice should be determined in accordance with the grower's experience, the nature of the available house, and other circumstances. If the grower has had no experience with cyclamens in frames and if he has a well ventilated, airy house, with the needed facilities for shading, he may obtain better results from greenhouse culture.

Summer Shade.

If the shade can be of a movable nature, all the better, as shade during the scorching hours is a necessity, while in morning and evening and on dull days it is an injury. Do not put on a heavy shading of lime, or kerosene and white lead, as it would draw up the foliage too much. Water carefully. The appearance of a green scum on the surface is an indication that the plants are getting an excess of water. Scratch over such surfaces frequently. Do not forget to give the plants one or two sprayings daily, or thrips are liable to get a foothold and are hard to dislodge. For the control of aphis, faithful weekly fumigations are necessary. These fumigations, with plenty of light and pure air, will go far toward subduing the dreaded mite.

If the greenhouse becomes too hot during the day, it will be well to try the plan of growing at least part of the stock in cold-frames. Partly plunge the pots in clean coal ashes. Lay lath shades without sashes over them during the warmest hours of the day. Remove these at 4:30 p. m. and do not place them over the plants earlier than 9:30 or 10 a. m. Spray the plants several times daily. Place sashes over the plants only when heavy rains threaten; light rainfalls are beneficial, as are fogs. If you prefer to use sashes which are shaded during the day, tilt these up well at both top and bottom, to allow a current of air to circulate among the plants. Cyclamens grown in coldframes are likely to have the advantage of being especially stocky. The plants may remain in the frames as late as Christmas when well protected, but if wanted for Thanksgiving and Christmas sales they should be housed at the end of September.

Destroy Pests.

All moths and butterflies must be caught and killed. Cyclamens are also subject to mite, thrips and red spider; to destroy these pests Hammond's Thrip Juice No. 2 has been used successfully, following the instructions on the can or container. The use of Thrip Juice should be continued until about October; after that it is better to spray with a nicotine extract once a week until November 1, or until the blooms begin to appear. Then the spraying with insecticides should be discontinued, as it discolors the flowers and foliage. Continue spraying with clear water at least twice every day, weather permitting.

It is necessary at all times to use great care in watering cyclamen plants. Water only when moderately dry; do not be overliberal with water, since there is little hope for plants when once overwatered. When the plants are strong and sturdy and full of roots, a weekly feeding with liquid fertilizer is greatly beneficial; fresh cow or horse manure is preferable, but it should be used with great care.

SUPER-CYCLAMEN.

To a busy man seldom comes the opportunity to look upon specimen plants of wondrous colors in the process of seed-forming evolution. The casual observer does not realize the great amount of persistence and care necessary to gain the coveted goal. Many years of careful selection of the specimen plants, themselves the result of the finest Belgian, English and Hamburg strains, alone could bring the results as seen at I. A. Peterson & Sons, Westwood, Cincinnati. Perfect plants in 5-inch pots, with seed pods in the process of development, perfect plants by the thousands. A specimen in a 5-inch pot, showing the vigorous, healthy and free-flowering habit of a superior strain, appears on the preceding page.

We find all the standard colors at Westwood. Glory of Wandsbek, perhaps the most popular and the most sought, is closely followed by the perfect whites and daybreak shades. Christmas Cheer, a wonderful red, is also worthy of mention.

The latest novelty, Pride of Cincinnati, with semi-double salmon-colored flowers, is a picture to behold.

Improved rococo types, until recently producing only ten per cent salable flowering plants, are now good for eighty per cent production of fine flowering stock.

The shortage of seed of the Peterson strain last year has prompted this firm to redouble its efforts, so that, in spite of the enormous demand from all points of the compass, there will be enough for a great many new cyclamen growers this year. The prevailing dark and cloudy weather abroad permits the seed grown on this side of the Atlantic to be ready for market about thirty days sooner.

What prompted comment more than anything else was the "piece de resistance," the white-flowering orchid cyclamen, most suitably named by Mr. Peterson Ida Emilie, as a mark of appreciation of a daughter's effective assistance in the perfection of the crowning achievement of this eminent grower's career. The flowers are more handsome than the white phalænopsis orchid and of such wonderful texture and grace that one does not hesitate in saying they fill the long-felt want for the white orchid for wedding and other high-class work.

AN AUTOMATIC STOKER.

The Mechanicville fuel burner, described by John Lawrance in The Review for May 26, is similar to the Palmer burner system manufactured by the Gunn Buschow Burner Co., Kansas City, Mo., which we have installed on our place. We are using the Swift stoker in connection with it, which probably would be the identical thing Mr. Lawrance is looking for. After filling the hoppers of this stoker, the boilers can be left to take care of themselves for an hour or more, while the fireman looks after the temperature in the greenhouses.

The stoker can be regulated to feed lightly or heavily, and spreads the coal evenly over the grate. It practically eliminates all smoke, as it continually feeds a small quantity of coal, which starts to burn as soon as it leaves the hopper and keeps a clean, white fire at all times. This stoker is manufactured by the Swift Stoker Co., Chicago. A similar one is made by the Automatic Furnace Co., Dayton, O.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

With the passing of Memorial day, the florists begin to look forward to the final clean-up of the season. June brings a number of weddings, but this year these events are all small ones in this city and, while furnishing some demand for cut flowers, baskets, bouquets and small decorations, they are so distributed as not to make any material flurry. Business last week was good, comparing favorably with other after-holiday weeks.

Commencement exercises, at the Lincoln and Wheeler schools, private institutions for young women, and at the Rhode Island College of Pharmacy last week, were the biggest factors in the stimulation of business and called for many baskets and bouquets. Eugene McCarron, T. J. Johnston & Co., Johnston Bros., Timothy O'Connor, Ellen O'Connor and the Colonial Flower Shoppe caught most of these.

Prices last week ruled about normal, carnations bringing $2 to $4 per hundred; roses, $2 to $15; peonies, $8 to $10; sweet peas, 50 cents to $1; marguerites, 50 cents to $1.50; calla and Easter lilies, $1.50 to $3 per dozen, and gladioli, $1 to $3 per dozen.

Memorial Day Notes.

Everybody enjoyed a good business Memorial day, with a general clean-up for everyone. The department stores handled thousands of artificial designs at cut prices, but the pot trade was more exclusively left to the florists, and all did well. The quality of potted stock was rather superior to that for several years and was also in good quantity.

P. A. Conley reports a big business in potted plants.

Cohen Bros. had a good trade at their temporary store on Westminster street.

T. J. Johnston & Co. had one of the best holidays on potted goods in its history.

Johnston Bros. established a record on the number of plants they handled. Several extra clerks were employed.

Macnair says business was slightly under last year with him, although the demand was for better goods, so that his receipts averaged well.

Eugene McCarron had his hands full and kept two extra delivery automobiles on the jump.

Westminster Greenhouses had an unusually large and fine lot of potted plants and moved them rapidly.

O'Connor did a tremendous business, supplying large pots of blooming plants for private cemetery lots. His store trade was also large.

House of Specimen Plants of Cyclamen Selected for Seed at Westwood, Photographed in January.

Smith the Florist, Harry Popkins, says the concentrating of his two stores has proved a master stroke and that he handled the biggest stock in his experience.

Williams Bowers was booked to his capacity several days ahead, but was able to handle all transient business with good returns.

Mr. Page, at the Colonial Flower Shoppe, said: "It was our first Memorial day, but the people found us and kept us hustling. We had a big trade and a good clean-up."

Theodore Peterson wore a satisfied smile when asked as to his business. "Pretty good," he said.

Various Notes.

A white frost, sufficient to kill bean, tomato and pepper plants and young flower plants, was reported June 3 by growers throughout the western and northwestern parts of Rhode Island, who declare that in many instances the cold weather has destroyed their entire crops. Fruit buds of all kinds were reported some time ago as having fared disastrously from late frosts. According to the weather bureau at Providence, a frost in June is a rare occurrence, particularly one of sufficient strength to kill growing plants. Reports now indicate that Rhode Island's big fruit crop, which this year promised to prove a record-breaker, has been ruined by the frosts and wet weather. Orchards, which a short time ago were brilliant with an unprecedented luxuriance of early blooms, now stand blighted by the killing touch of unseasonable cold.

M. Sweeney, Broad and Pine streets, has begun the overhauling of benching and houses.

M. B. Saunders & Co. have so much outdoor work that they find it impossible to secure help enough to handle it.

M. J. Leach & Sons are making general renovations at their store, at 20 Broad street, Pawtucket.

Joseph E. Crook has filed a statement at the city clerk's office that he is the sole owner of the Revere Flower Gardens, at 149 Academy avenue.

The item in the Providence letter last week relative to a lawsuit by Cohen Bros. did not refer to the firm operating the Lowell Avenue Greenhouses, but to a firm of similar name from Boston.

Michele Iannotti & Sons have commenced the renovation of the greenhouses, recently purchased from Thomas Curley, on Harkness and Slocum streets, and are preparing for the coming season.

Lapham the Florist, Inc., of Pawtucket, has been granted a charter to carry on a general florists' business. The company is capitalized at $50,000, the incorporators being Charles Lapham, Matilda F. Lapham and Charles E. Lapham, all of Pawtucket.

John Marshall, Centerdale, is cutting some fine Regina lilies that are meeting an active demand. W. H. M.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

Memorial day this year was fairly good so far as the trade was concerned. This was due to the business conditions which are prevalent in nearly all parts of the country at the present time. Prices obtained for stock were not quite so high as last year, though in some cases there was not much difference.

Geraniums, as usual, were the leaders in the bedding plants. These brought from 20 cents to 35 cents each. Begonias, alternantheras, fuchsias, vines and ferns sold well. There were not so many veranda boxes and vases filled this year as in former years, and nearly all of this planting was done by the customers themselves, in order to save the charge which the florists would have to make for doing this work.

Julius Reck is putting up two more houses, which he expects to finish this fall. They will be used for palms and general stock. Trade with him for Memorial day was quite good, considering the times. He has a few weddings booked for the near future. Carnations and mums will soon be planted inside.

James E. Beach has had much funeral work lately, which cleaned up all surplus stock. Bedding plant trade with him was good.

James Horan & Son had a good Memorial day trade. Among their list of weddings for this month was the Henshaw-Paxton wedding, which was an elaborate affair. The house was prettily decorated with the usual greens, Easter lilies, peonies, etc. The bride's bouquet was composed of valley and orchids. The bouquets carried by the attendants were pink and lavender orchids and Columbia roses.

Robert Hawkins says trade has been fair. Memorial day's trade was satisfactory, though not up to last year.

John Reck & Son are getting their houses in readiness for their usual planting of mums and carnations. They expect to have six houses in mums this year. Their Memorial day trade was fairly good. I. L. B.

The Mechanicville fuel burner, described by John Lawrance in The Review for May 26, is similar to the Palmer burner system manufactured by the Gunn Buschow Burner Co., Kansas City, Mo., which we have installed on our place. We are using the Swift stoker in connection with it, which probably would be the identical thing Mr. Lawrance is looking for. After filling the hoppers of this stoker, the boilers can be left to take care of themselves for an hour or more, while the fireman looks after the temperature in the greenhouses.

The stoker can be regulated to feed lightly or heavily, and spreads the coal evenly over the grate. It practically eliminates all smoke, as it continually feeds a small quantity of coal, which starts to burn as soon as it leaves the hopper and keeps a clean, white fire at all times. This stoker is manufactured by the Swift Stoker Co., Chicago. A similar one is made by the Automatic Furnace Co., Dayton, O.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

With the passing of Memorial day, the florists begin to look forward to the final clean-up of the season. June brings a number of weddings, but this year these events are all small ones in this city and, while furnishing some demand for cut flowers, baskets, bouquets and small decorations, they are so distributed as not to make any material flurry. Business last week was good, comparing favorably with other after-holiday weeks.

Commencement exercises, at the Lincoln and Wheeler schools, private institutions for young women, and at the Rhode Island College of Pharmacy last week, were the biggest factors in the stimulation of business and called for many baskets and bouquets. Eugene McCarron, T. J. Johnston & Co., Johnston Bros., Timothy O'Connor, Ellen O'Connor and the Colonial Flower Shoppe caught most of these.

Prices last week ruled about normal, carnations bringing $2 to $4 per hundred; roses, $2 to $15; peonies, $8 to $10; sweet peas, 50 cents to $1; marguerites, 50 cents to $1.50; calla and Easter lilies, $1.50 to $3 per dozen, and gladioli, $1 to $3 per dozen.

Memorial Day Notes.

Everybody enjoyed a good business Memorial day, with a general clean-up for everyone. The department stores handled thousands of artificial designs at cut prices, but the pot trade was more exclusively left to the florists, and all did well. The quality of potted stock was rather superior to that for several years and was also in good quantity.

P. A. Conley reports a big business in potted plants.

Cohen Bros. had a good trade at their temporary store on Westminster street.

T. J. Johnston & Co. had one of the best holidays on potted goods in its history.

Johnston Bros. established a record on the number of plants they handled. Several extra clerks were employed.

Macnair says business was slightly under last year with him, although the demand was for better goods, so that his receipts averaged well.

Eugene McCarron had his hands full and kept two extra delivery automobiles on the jump.

Westminster Greenhouses had an unusually large and fine lot of potted plants and moved them rapidly.

O'Connor did a tremendous business, supplying large pots of blooming plants for private cemetery lots. His store trade was also large.

House of Specimen Plants of Cyclamen Selected for Seed at Westwood, Photographed in January.

Smith the Florist, Harry Popkins, says the concentrating of his two stores has proved a master stroke and that he handled the biggest stock in his experience.

Williams Bowers was booked to his capacity several days ahead, but was able to handle all transient business with good returns.

Mr. Page, at the Colonial Flower Shoppe, said: "It was our first Memorial day, but the people found us and kept us hustling. We had a big trade and a good clean-up."

Theodore Peterson wore a satisfied smile when asked as to his business. "Pretty good," he said.

Various Notes.

A white frost, sufficient to kill bean, tomato and pepper plants and young flower plants, was reported June 3 by growers throughout the western and northwestern parts of Rhode Island, who declare that in many instances the cold weather has destroyed their entire crops. Fruit buds of all kinds were reported some time ago as having fared disastrously from late frosts. According to the weather bureau at Providence, a frost in June is a rare occurrence, particularly one of sufficient strength to kill growing plants. Reports now indicate that Rhode Island's big fruit crop, which this year promised to prove a record-breaker, has been ruined by the frosts and wet weather. Orchards, which a short time ago were brilliant with an unprecedented luxuriance of early blooms, now stand blighted by the killing touch of unseasonable cold.

M. Sweeney, Broad and Pine streets, has begun the overhauling of benching and houses.

M. B. Saunders & Co. have so much outdoor work that they find it impossible to secure help enough to handle it.

M. J. Leach & Sons are making general renovations at their store, at 20 Broad street, Pawtucket.

Joseph E. Crook has filed a statement at the city clerk's office that he is the sole owner of the Revere Flower Gardens, at 149 Academy avenue.

The item in the Providence letter last week relative to a lawsuit by Cohen Bros. did not refer to the firm operating the Lowell Avenue Greenhouses, but to a firm of similar name from Boston.

Michele Iannotti & Sons have commenced the renovation of the greenhouses, recently purchased from Thomas Curley, on Harkness and Slocum streets, and are preparing for the coming season.

Lapham the Florist, Inc., of Pawtucket, has been granted a charter to carry on a general florists' business. The company is capitalized at $50,000, the incorporators being Charles Lapham, Matilda F. Lapham and Charles E. Lapham, all of Pawtucket.

John Marshall, Centerdale, is cutting some fine Regina lilies that are meeting an active demand. W. H. M.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

Memorial day this year was fairly good so far as the trade was concerned. This was due to the business conditions which are prevalent in nearly all parts of the country at the present time. Prices obtained for stock were not quite so high as last year, though in some cases there was not much difference.

Geraniums, as usual, were the leaders in the bedding plants. These brought from 20 cents to 35 cents each. Begonias, alternantheras, fuchsias, vines and ferns sold well. There were not so many veranda boxes and vases filled this year as in former years, and nearly all of this planting was done by the customers themselves, in order to save the charge which the florists would have to make for doing this work.

Julius Reck is putting up two more houses, which he expects to finish this fall. They will be used for palms and general stock. Trade with him for Memorial day was quite good, considering the times. He has a few weddings booked for the near future. Carnations and mums will soon be planted inside.

James E. Beach has had much funeral work lately, which cleaned up all surplus stock. Bedding plant trade with him was good.

James Horan & Son had a good Memorial day trade. Among their list of weddings for this month was the Henshaw-Paxton wedding, which was an elaborate affair. The house was prettily decorated with the usual greens, Easter lilies, peonies, etc. The bride's bouquet was composed of valley and orchids. The bouquets carried by the attendants were pink and lavender orchids and Columbia roses.

Robert Hawkins says trade has been fair. Memorial day's trade was satisfactory, though not up to last year.

John Reck & Son are getting their houses in readiness for their usual planting of mums and carnations. They expect to have six houses in mums this year. Their Memorial day trade was fairly good. I. L. B.

PEONY SHOW

PEONY SHOW AT BOSTON.

June 18 and 19.

Those interested in peonies now have all their thoughts turned to Boston, where the eighteenth annual exhibition of the American Peony Society, in cooperation with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, will be held at Horticultural hall, Boston, Saturday and Sunday, June 18 and 19.

The business meeting, preceded by the usual banquet, will be held on Saturday evening, June 18, in the banquet room of Horticultural hall. Those who intend to take part in the banquet will please notify the local committee as soon as possible on Saturday, or before.

As there is no hotel conveniently near the hall, headquarters will be at Horticultural hall, which can be reached by taking any outward bound Huntington avenue car. The following hotels are located within easy reach of these cars: Hotel Lenox, Copley Plaza, Hotel Vendome, Hotel Brunswick, Hotel Touraine and the Parker House.

Premiums.

The big exhibit will be that which is to receive the American Peony Society's gold medal and $50. This will be for a collection of not more than 100 named varieties, double and one bloom of each. There will be second and third prizes. Then there will be prizes ranging from $6 to $15 for the best in the following groups: Collection of ten named varieties, double and three blooms of each; twenty blooms, double, named, white or cream and of one variety; twenty blooms, double, named, light pink or pink and cream and of one variety; twenty blooms, double, named, dark pink and of one variety; twenty blooms, double, red or crimson, named and of one variety; six specimen blooms, double, named and of any variety; one specimen bloom, double, named and of any variety; collection of new varieties introduced since 1905; ten prizes, one for the best bloom of each of the following varieties: La France, La Lorraine, Kelway's Queen, Miss Salway, Bayadere, Marie Stuart, Venus, Eugene Verdier, Eugenie Verdier and Mont Blanc, and honorable mention will be given for any new seedlings.

Some Special Prizes.

There will also be some special prizes, as follows:

The Harrison memorial prize, for a new yellow peony, was founded by L. R. Bonnewitz. At least six blooms must be shown, and the winning variety must be better than any variety now in commerce. The winning variety is to be named C. S. Harrison. The prize is $100, and the competition is to be open until July 15, 1924, unless the prize is awarded before that date.

The Sisson memorial prize, for a new pink peony, was founded by W. A. Sisson, of Rosendale, Wis., in honor of his mother, Pamelia Sisson, whose name will be given to the winning variety. The prize is $100, and the winning variety must be a delicate pink, touched with lavender, and not before introduced into commerce. The competition will be open until July 15, 1925, unless the prize is awarded before that date.

The J. A. Taylor prize is for a seedling, herbaceous peony of special merit and of distinctive color. The prize is $100.

The W. W. Cook prize of $25 is for a seedling peony of the Japanese type and of special merit and distinctive color.

The silver medal offered by the Garden Club is for the best display of seedling, herbaceous peonies, all varieties to have been original with the exhibitor.

The Judges.

The judges of the exhibits will be: For the open classes, Harry A. Norton, Quebec; Bertrand H. Farr, Wyomissing, Pa., and A. H. Scott, Philadelphia. For the amateur classes, Professor A. P. Saunders, Clinton, N. Y.; James Boyd, Haverford, Pa., and R. T. Brown, Long Island, N. Y. The local committee consists of A. H. Fewkes, Winthrop H. Thurlow and Harry A. Norton.

Flowers shipped from a distance by express should be addressed to William P. Rich, secretary, Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Horticultural hall, 300 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, Mass. All charges must be prepaid. A card notifying him that a package has been shipped should be mailed in time to reach him not later than Saturday morning, June 18, as such packages are likely to be delayed and to need hunting. Entries should be sent to Mr. Rich as early as possible, so that space arrangements may be made properly.

BUTTERFLY SUNBURNS.

Under separate cover we are mailing you some Butterfly rose wood. This is from a house of young grafted plants benched March 17. The plants are growing rapidly and, with the exception of a few affected leaves such as the sample, they are in excellent condition. Can you tell us whether this is more than a sunburn? We have had some extremely hot weather, followed by a week of cloudy weather, but this does not look like sunburn to us. Any information you can give will be greatly appreciated. A. N. K.—Minn.

The trouble is sunburn; when stock is grown soft and quick and then exposed to a hot sun it always burns the tops more or less. Yours seems to be just a case of a little more than the average burning.

Tampa, Fla.—C. B. Stow has sold his business in Saugerties, N. Y., and will start again in this town.

Drumright, Okla.—Jacob Schmid, formerly with a store in Okmulgee, plans to build a greenhouse in this town soon.

Denver, Colo.—To the customers of the Sensation Dahlia Gardens, the proprietor, L. M. McHenry, has sent a special announcement reading: "We wish to announce that our beautiful peonies are now ready for your inspection. Dahlias will be in full bloom about July 20. Come and see our flower gardens."

Wausau, Wis.—A hail storm on the evening of May 22 caused large damage at the greenhouses of M. Philipp & Co., the loss in glass and stock being between $9,000 and $10,000. One of the hailstones, says Mr. Philipp, weighed as much as two pounds. The Boy Scouts of Wausau assisted Mr. Philipp in repairing the houses.

Beacon, N. Y.—For thirteen years the Home Garden Brigade, instituted by Benjamin Hammond, has been organized among the school children, with the intent of making a prettier, neater and better home town. Each scholar in the brigade receives a card which enumerates certain prizes to be awarded. The strides by which Mr. Hammond's work has progressed is shown by the fact that the names of members of the brigade occupied five columns in the Beacon Herald May 23.

Owosso, Mich.—C. Marcus Anderson has purchased the share of his partner, Joseph Smith, in the Owosso Floral Co. He will continue to use the Owosso Floral Co. as the store name.

Okmulgee, Okla.—The H. D. Ellis Co. has on the ground, ready to put up, material for three greenhouses, 28x80 feet. Mr. Ellis plans to erect three small houses, 11x100 feet, after the completion of those now under construction. He says that the last season was a good one in every line.

Lake Charles, La.—Charles D. Otis, proprietor of the Lake Charles Greenhouse & Nursery, started June 2 on an 8,000-mile trip to the coast and back. He expects to be gone from six to eight weeks, going by the southern route to San Diego, where he will spend two weeks, and returning by way of Yellowstone park and northern cities.

Newport, R. I.—Patrick J. Keenan observed an anniversary June 2 that does not come in the life of every man. He had been just forty years on the estate on Narragansett avenue, now owned by R. Horace Gallatin. Mr. Keenan went there first as assistant to his father, Thomas Keenan, who was gardener for the late Edward H. Schermerhorn. He grew up there, working as assistant to his father, and when the latter retired eleven years ago, the son took charge. The estate is one of the best looking in that locality, which speaks well for Mr. Keenan.

THE RETAIL STORE

A PAGE OF HINTS AND HELPS FOR THE RETAIL FLORIST

SOMETHING NEW!

The New York Evening Sun printed the item below in its news columns the other day, heading it, "Girl Rents Bouquet to Impress Beau." The idea is quite novel. Doubtless it exists only in some joker's imagination:

"That young woman that just passed by the shop rents a bouquet from me almost every day," said the florist.

"Rents a bouquet?" queried the customer.

"Yes, she hires a bunch of flowers for an hour or so nearly every day during the week," continued the florist. "You see, when she is having a man caller she seems to think that it will make an impression on him if she has a bouquet delivered while he is present. After he departs she returns the bouquet to me and I sell it. I only charge her a small amount for rental."

BAER SHOWS BIG SHOE.

If the old superstition about horseshoes bringing good luck is true, Julius Baer, of Cincinnati, ought to be one of the luckiest men in the world. Just look at the illustration on this page and see the tremendous amount of horseshoe that surrounds him. Some idea of the size can be gained by the fact that Mr. Baer, who is not a small man, seems to be entirely lost in the decoration. This large decoration and the baskets beside it were some of the pieces which Mr. Baer made up for the formal opening of a new chain of clothing stores in Cincinnati.

SOME TELEGRAPH PROBLEMS.

A Florist Tells Florists.

Of so much importance is the business policy of one retailer, not only to his own business success, but also to the advancement of the trade at large, that the points raised in the letter quoted below make it worthy of printing in full here. It was addressed to Henry A. Siebrecht, Jr., of Pasadena, Cal., who states that the facts were as given in the letter and who adds his opinion that the trade will benefit by perusal of it. The display mentioned is one that has been made by retail florists in many other cities, without, perhaps, this unfortunate result. The letter reads:

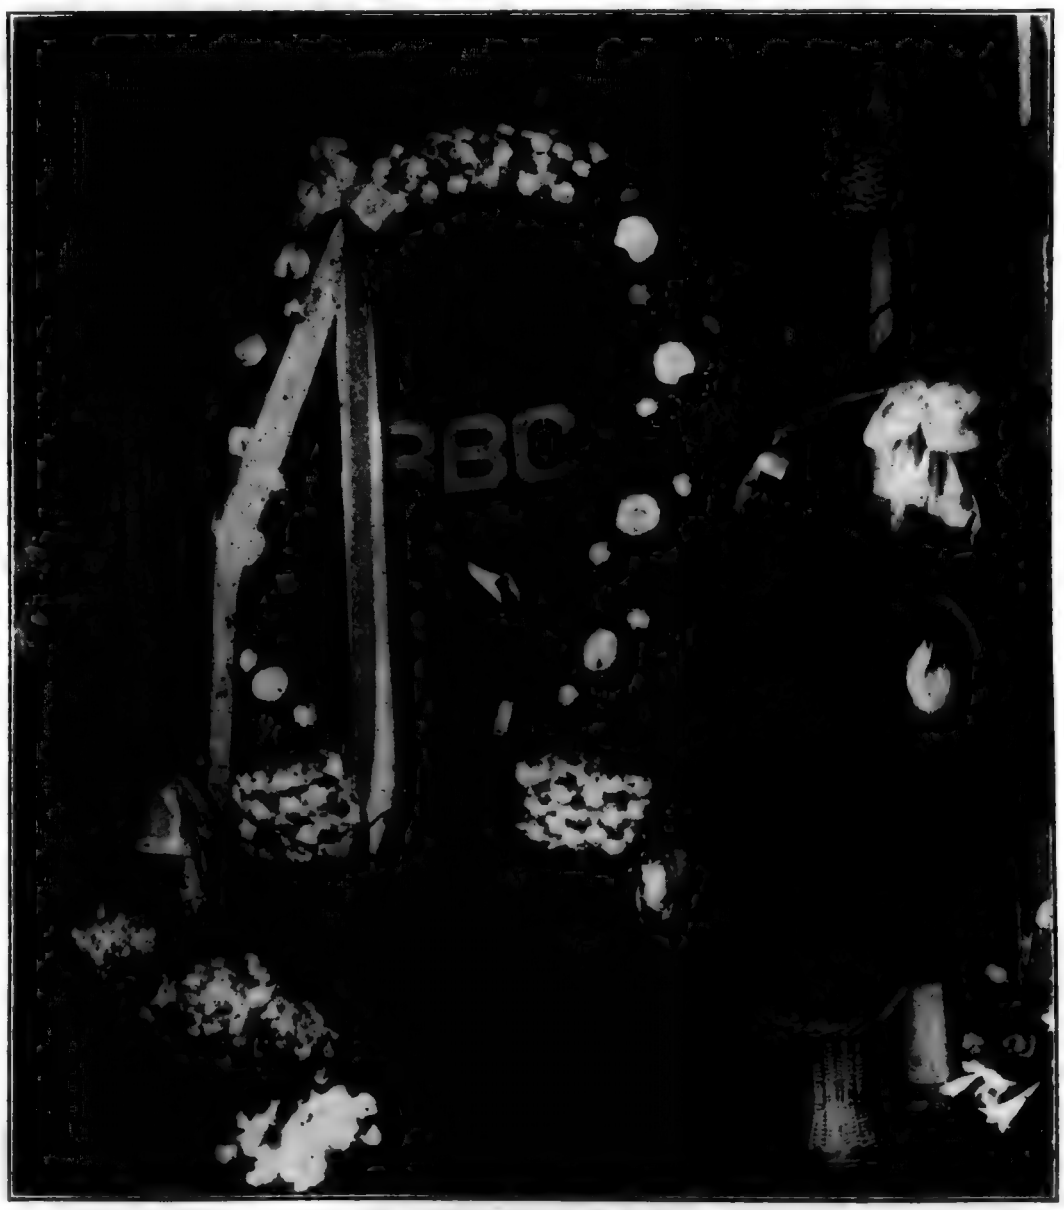
"As an old-time florist in the east and a resident of your lovely city for the holiday and winter season, may I be permitted to express my interest in the publicity problem which you so unselfishly feature in your letter in The Review of May 19?

"I note also with pleasure the enterprise of your associates in the city of Los Angeles, where whole pages of the leading dailies were used in behalf of their business on Memorial day.

"Much, as you say, of the advancement in our profession depends upon the character and influence of our advertising; the telegraph delivery department has wrought wonderful results in the volume and harmony of the trade's accomplishments. And the record of Mothers' day, not only in the east, but also west of the Rockies, is a perpetual inspiration. 'All one,' you remember, is the motto of the New York Florists' Club and ere long will be applicable to every branch of this wonderful enterprise, especially if one may judge by the great progress made in the telegraph delivery service.

A Telegram Display.

"Just after Easter this year, however, my attention was called to a somewhat novel style of advertising used by one of the Pasadena florists which I hardly think could meet with general approval. I refer to the display of some thirty telegrams, pasted on a display background, making public what should be regarded as strictly confidential; this breach of etiquette and the sacredness of trust should surely be avoided. I shall illustrate by giving you the facts in detail of this—shall I say?—mistake, to put it mildly.



"A gentleman walked by this flower shop, saw the telegrams and read among them one placing an order for a corsage to be delivered to Miss ——— at one of the local hotels, giving price and sender's name. This gentleman called on the lady and remarked, 'You received a nice corsage from So-and-so,' at which she was much surprised and naturally at sea to know how this friend knew all this. After a while he let the cat out of the bag. Of course, this lady was indignant and, you may be assured, much surprised at the business being carried out in such a manner.

"This was not all. This lady called at the shop and inquired about a corsage the same as the telegram called for, and the price given was just $4 less than the price on the telegram. This certainly was a 'black eye.'

Knock, Not Boost.

"This matter should be brought before the members of the trade, so that they may be made aware that such advertising is not a booster but a knocker. You know a great deal of trouble might arise from such advertising.

"All this is additional proof that there should be more brotherly feeling, a real professional attitude to one another to keep such business and information strictly confidential. Can you get a doctor to 'go back on' another? Never; every doctor backs his profession and doings to the finish. Why not more of this spirit in the florists' profession?

"Many persons call to get information regarding the sender of flowers, but we never know. Our reply to such inquiry is, 'A cash sale, no records.' Why, we have had ladies call and say, 'I am Mrs. Jones. I should like to see Mr. Jones' Christmas list for flowers, so that I shall not send gifts to the same persons and have duplicates'! Our reply is: 'Why, Mr. Jones must have gone to some other florist. We have no list.'

"Why should we give any information or data given us? It is not our property; we are acting only as agents to carry out orders given us. Who orders or where to we never know.

"Many florists do not appreciate the F. T. D. and what a valuable organization it is. Many do not appreciate the great slogan, 'Say It with Flowers,' and how valuable it is. To show how it has taken effect, only in another phase, the ice wagons in Pasadena have on the side of their trucks, 'Say It with Ice.'"

GROWING UP.

Two years ago Carrie H. Nevius and Gertrude B. Ellis started a little shop at Hot Springs, Ark. It wasn't large, either the business or the space it occupied. But it soon grew. Before the end of the first year the Flower Shop, as the business is known, occupied half the building at 366 Central avenue. Its space still requires the utilization of every square foot in the most advantageous way, and the illustration on this page indicates that it is so done.

STERILIZING WITH HOT WATER.

Is it possible to install a soil sterilizer with hot water heat? How can it be done? C. L. S.—Ill.

It would not be advisable to attempt any extensive sterilizing with a hot water arrangement, but if all but one coil is shut off, the water can be heated above 180 degrees and this will kill most disease germs. The soil should be spread out in a tight box, forming a layer four to six inches thick. Turn on the water until the soil is saturated and water to the depth of one inch stands above the soil. Cover and allow to stand for one hour. As the hot water runs out, cold water, of course, runs into the system, so that the temperature will fall below 180 degrees. As soon as it has again been heated to 180 degrees, draw off all surplus water from the soil treated and then flood it again as explained above. The treated soil should be shoveled over and allowed to dry. This method of procedure is not advised for extensive use, but may be found helpful in special cases in a small way. T.

OHIO GROWERS' MEETING.

Plans are rapidly being developed to make the annual meeting of the Ohio district of the National Flower Growers' Association a big one. A large proportion of Ohio's 600 florists are expected to gather at the Deschler hotel, Columbus, June 21 at 2 p. m.

This meeting will be a strictly business affair, devoted mainly to the subject, to the discussion of cost systems for the retailer and the grower and to the election of officers and the appointment of committees.

Word has been received from George Asmus accepting an invitation to talk on the subject, "Merchandising and Cost Systems for the Average Retail Grower." This talk will be illustrated by charts and forms used by Mr. Asmus in the conduct of his own business and he will tell how they can be adapted and used. Mr. Asmus will also bring a collection of lantern slides illustrating the advertising done by the Chicago florists in their local advertising campaigns.

Another speaker will discuss the subject, "Cost Systems for the Grower." Thus both ends of the business will be thoroughly covered.

Committees will then be appointed to discuss and to elaborate upon the suggestions made by the speakers and their data will be checked over in every way possible, finally going to a firm of expert accountants, who will work out a simple method, with a few forms, for a system of uniform bookkeeping and cost finding for the growers in the organization.

"We have tackled a big task," states L. C. Vinson, executive secretary, "but the men are back of it, and results will come, slowly but surely."

MINNEAPOLIS AND ST. PAUL.

A good iris show was held in Minneapolis June 2 and 3, in the Pence automobile show rooms, at Eighth and Hennepin avenue. This is an ideal location for a show of this sort. Some twenty-two exhibitors showed materials in competition and Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, put up some nice baskets of irises for display purposes. The show was open both days until well into the evening. There was a good attendance of visitors and a good exhibition, considering the fact that notices had to be sent out just a few days before the meeting informing the exhibitors of the show. The larger exhibitors were the Rainbow Gardens, St. Paul; A. C. Arny, St. Paul; Mrs. H. B. Tillotson, Eureka; W. E. Fryer, Mantorville, and the Forest Heights Gardens, Minneapolis. This show was under the auspices of the Northwest Peony and Iris Society and the American Iris Society. A peony show will be held at the St. Paul hotel, June 15 and 16. An amateur show is also to be held at the First National bank, St. Paul, about the same time.

The Minnesota State Horticultural Society will hold its summer picnic and flower show at University Farm June 17. This is usually one of the big shows of the year. The gymnasium is usually filled with peonies, outdoor roses and other herbaceous plants. No admission is charged to any of these shows.

Bedding stock has been in good demand in this locality this year, and most of the growers have cleaned up at good prices. Carnations have all been set in the field, and attention is being given to renovating the greenhouses and putting them in shape for stock next autumn. Some of the larger vegetable houses have a good showing of cucumbers and tomatoes.

John Nylof recently returned from a trip to Sweden and has entered the employ of Holm & Olson, St. Paul.

The Atlantic Board Walk style show at the Auditorium has kept most of the St. Paul florists busy during the last week. L. C.

Ottawa, Ill.—Martin Mutter, who purposes to trade under the name of Chicago Flower Growers, has bought the Ottawa Flower Shop. The store, at 225 West Main street, was opened early in the year by Edward Albertson and Francis Du Shane.

ROSE SOCIETY MEETS

ROSARIANS AT WASHINGTON.

Dissemination of Van Fleet Rose.

The public will soon be able to enjoy the fruits of the labors of Dr. Walter Van Fleet, for at the meeting, at the store of Gude Bros. Co., on the evening of June 1, of the executive committee of the American Rose Society incident to the annual visit of the society to the rose gardens at Arlington, Va., June 2, plans were laid whereby the commercial growers, under certain restrictions and regulations, are to get available stock of the new rose heretofore known as W. C. 124, but to be given to the trade as Mary Wallace.

Announcement was made some time ago that this action was in contemplation. Opportunity to participate in the distribution of the available stock of roses, or the wood of the plants, has been offered to those members of the American Rose Society who are growers of roses, who issue a retail catalogue, who will agree to the conditions as to naming, prices, etc., as arranged with the Department of Agriculture, and who will further agree to propagate from the material assigned, to offer prominently in their catalogues the 2-year-old plants and to pay to the American Rose Society at the end of one selling year a royalty of twenty-five per cent of the retail price agreed upon. The retail selling price of the new rose Mary Wallace is to be $2. A deposit on account of such royalty in the amount of $50 will be required to be made not less than thirty days prior to the distribution of the propagating material. Applications should be sent to the secretary of the society at once and will not be accepted after July 1.

Prof. F. L. Mulford was named as chairman of the committee that will supervise the distribution of the wood, which will be available at Bell, Md., in sufficient quantities to take care of the needs of all who wish to participate in the plan to produce the plants for the public. It is expected that the first of these will make their appearance in the fall of 1922, followed by a general distribution in the spring following.

Text of Agreement.

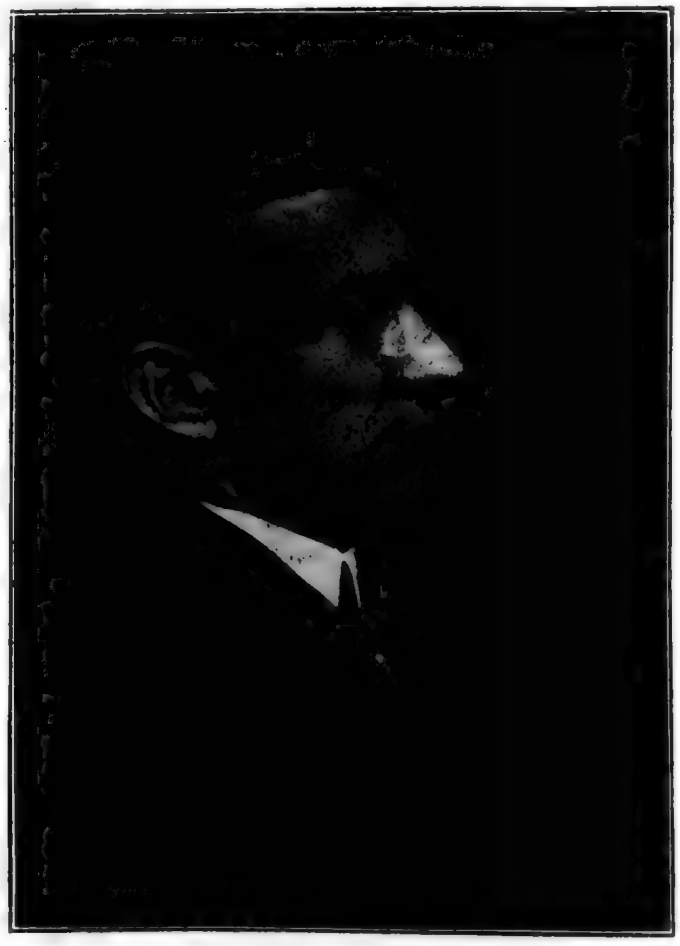
At the meeting of the executive committee, presided over by President Pyle, various plans for carrying out the agreement to be made by the American Rose Society with the Department of Agriculture, the text of which is as follows, were discussed:

1. The Department of Agriculture will turn over to the American Rose Society a stock of at least 100 plants of the roses ready for introduction.
2. The American Rose Society undertakes to insure the propagation of the variety in sufficient quantity to introduce it properly to the trade within five years from the date of the receipt of the parent stock material.
3. In case of failure of the American Rose Society to carry out its part of this agreement within a period of five years, the Department of Agriculture shall be free to make other arrangements for the dissemination of the variety.
4. The American Rose Society agrees to offer the plants so propagated at a price not to exceed double the average price of a dozen standard varieties of the same type as the introduction, as listed by a half dozen leading rose firms.
5. The name of the rose shall be that applied by the Department of Agriculture and the identity of the plants shall be maintained.
6. If the gross amount of sales in any one year shall exceed $20,000, then twenty per cent of the excess of this amount shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States.

The agreement will be formally signed as soon as the incorporation of the American Rose Society is completed, but in the meantime Secretary Wister will send a letter of acceptance of the agreement to the department through Prof. C. L. Corbett, who is directly in charge of this branch of the department's activities. There are sixty plants available at Bell, Md., at the present time.

To Guard Against Duplicating Names.

The attention of the executive committee was brought to the duplicating of rose names by the use of possessives. It was agreed that the placing of a man's name before a rose name would bring about confusion when, in the course of commercial transactions, the first part of the possessive name was dropped to shorten it. Sometimes, it was pointed out, this is done where it is believed that a rose name has become obsolete, but the committee felt that it was not in its power to state when a name becomes vacant and at the suggestion of J. Horace McFarland the following was passed by unanimous vote:



"Resolved, That by reason of the desirability of preventing duplication of rose names, or of such similarity as will result in duplication, it is the rule now adopted by the American Rose Society to refuse registration in such cases and to discourage the use of possessive names for similar reasons, and, further,

"Resolved, That the committee on registration is authorized to recommend the simplification of such names in the interest of better nomenclature."

The question came up at the meeting as to the distribution to be made of silver and bronze medals. It was decided that the offering of silver medals to clubs and societies should be contingent upon there being at least ten persons participating in the public rose exhibition for which the medals are offered who are members of the American Rose Society and in the case of bronze medals at least five of the contestants must be members of the society. The resolution carrying this provision contains the phrase that the medals "may be furnished," it not being compulsory upon the society to do so.

Morning at Bell Gardens.

The annual meeting of the society was held in the soldiers' mess room at the Walter Reed hospital, at Takoma Park, following a morning filled with activity. The day was ideal and a party of over 100 gathered at the store of Gude Bros. Co., at 1214 F street, Washington, D. C., at 9 a. m., June 2. The out-of-town guests were soon assigned to waiting automobiles driven by members of the Florists' Club of there should be more brotherly feeling, a real professional attitude to one another to keep such business and information strictly confidential. Can you get a doctor to 'go back on' another? Never; every doctor backs his profession and doings to the finish. Why not more of this spirit in the florists' profession?

"Many persons call to get information regarding the sender of flowers, but we never know. Our reply to such inquiry is, 'A cash sale, no records.' Why, we have had ladies call and say, 'I am Mrs. Jones. I should like to see Mr. Jones' Christmas list for flowers, so that I shall not send gifts to the same persons and have duplicates'! Our reply is: 'Why, Mr. Jones must have gone to some other florist. We have no list.'

"Why should we give any information or data given us? It is not our property; we are acting only as agents to carry out orders given us. Who orders or where to we never know.

"Many florists do not appreciate the F. T. D. and what a valuable organization it is. Many do not appreciate the great slogan, 'Say It with Flowers,' and how valuable it is. To show how it has taken effect, only in another phase, the ice wagons in Pasadena have on the side of their trucks, 'Say It with Ice.'"

Washington and local rosarians, and after an enjoyable drive through the city more than two hours were spent among the roses. Dr. Ball, assistant secretary of agriculture, made an address, telling of the department's work, the rose test garden and Dr. Van Fleet's activity. Then the visitors were greeted by Dr. Van Fleet and shown over his private garden, after which they looked over the collection of roses on which he is working. There are more than 100 different species of roses at Bell.

The rose to be named Mary Wallace at the Portland rose festival this month represents the best work of Dr. Van Fleet up to this time. It is a pink seedling with flowers larger than those of Mme. Testout. The results of crossing Wichuraiana were viewed with a great deal of interest. One, with Moyesii, produced a single bloom, of rich royal purple, the flowers running up to three inches in diameter and literally covering the bush. This represented a wonderful bit of hybridizing. Another, with Jackii, is said to bloom three weeks earlier than the average Wichuraiana. This will be good for covering banks, for it hugs the ground closely.

There were many others well worthy of mention among the offerings of Dr. Van Fleet, and he was congratulated upon the success he is attaining with his hybridizing.

Looking Over the Roses.

There was no official judging of the roses, but the special correspondent of The Review presents the following survey of the plants. It must be borne in mind that there is nothing official about this survey, but it is based on the opinions of several experts who visited the gardens on this occasion. For convenience, the varieties are taken in alphabetical order rather than in the way in which they are laid out in the gardens.

Aenchen Muller is a pink baby rambler whose growth is more dwarfed than many of the type, but it is worthy of mention.

Alberic Barbier is a good climber with yellow-buds. The foliage is handsome. It is a most attractive plant.

Alida Lovett is a pink climber that is growing and blooming well.

Alexander Hill Gray is a good yellow hybrid tea. It is one of the neatest in the garden and making a good show at this time. It is declared to be promising.

Climbing American Beauty is good.

American Pillar is one of the most showy roses of its type in the garden. It is a single, scarlet with white eye.

Apotheker Georg Hofer is a showy hybrid perpetual.

Arnold is a handsome rugosa with scarlet flowers.

Austrian Copper was not in bloom.

Baby Dorothy is a good pink rambler that is doing well.

Baby Elegance, with its white, airy flowers, attracted attention. It has good foliage and makes an attractive bedding rose.

Baby Rambler is inclined to mold too much to be really satisfactory in this locality.

Baby Tausendschoen is a good pink and white rambler.

Ball of Snow is a hybrid perpetual with small white flowers that has more blooms during the summer than most of the perpetuals.

Baroness von Ittersum is a climber with crimson flower and white eye that is most attractive.

Beauty of Rosemawr is one of Dr. Van Fleet's roses. Its flowers are handsome rose pink. It compares favorably with Hermosa in constancy of bloom and is richer in color.

Bess Lovett is a red that is comparable to Climbing American Beauty. It is a vigorous grower and free bloomer and is perhaps better than Climbing American Beauty.

Birdie Blye is another constant bloomer. It has deep pink flowers and is hardy, but inclined to bush.

Blanc de Coubert is a good white rugosa and is splendid for shrubbery and borders.

Bracteata has handsome, glossy foliage at this time. It is not now in bloom, but will have white flowers later in the season. It is said to be a splendid shrubbery rose for use in places farther south than Washington.

British Queen is a semi-double white with rather large flowers. It is declared to be reasonably successful in the gardens.

Cecile Brunner is not successful. The buds fail to open satisfactorily, blacken on the outside and seem to blast for some reason. This same criticism holds true of the climber.

Champion of the World is comparable to Hermosa, for it is constant in its blooming, with rather more perfect flowers.

Chateau de Clos Vougeot, one of the darkest colored hybrid teas, does not seem to grow satisfactorily here.

Christine Wright is a good pink climber and was in full bloom when viewed.

Columbia has not been in the gardens long enough, it was said, to become thoroughly established, but has proved reasonably satisfactory so far.

Crimson Rambler mildews too much.

Dawson is one of the earliest blooming of the climbers. It is a pink and is quite showy during its season.

Dr. W. Van Fleet is in the height of its blooming period. It is a blush pink, double, has good foliage, and is most attractive. This rose now pretty well covers the summer house in the gardens and was much admired.

Dorothy Perkins and Lady Gay are side by side. They are quite similar, both coming into bloom with small, double pink flowers. They have glossy foliage, which is quite attractive. White Dorothy Perkins is also good.

Ecarlate is a promising hybrid tea with red flowers that are showy just now.

Erna Teschendorff is a single crimson baby rambler that is not so vigorous in its growth as some of the other ramblers, but it is quite showy.

Ethel is a pink climber, just past its prime.

Farben Königin is one of the best of the hybrid teas, rich in its pink coloring.

Flame is an attractive climber, with flowers appearing pink, being in shades of red and white.

Frau Karl Druschki is not doing as well as usual, apparently having been hurt considerably by the adverse weather conditions. However, it is beginning to produce a number of large white flowers.

Gardenia is a good climber, with deep yellow buds opening white.

General Jacqueminot is one of the handsomest of the hybrid perpetuals.

George Elger is a weak growing baby rambler with rich yellow buds.

Gruss an Aachen is one of the handsomest of the baby ramblers both as to foliage and flowers. The leaves are a deep green and the flowers are large and cream in color.

Gruss an Teplitz was full of showy crimson flowers, on short stems. The climber is superior to the bush type.

Hadley, one of the deepest colored roses, is not so hardy and vigorous in the garden as could be desired, but the blooms are fragrant and attractive.

Harrison's Yellow has ceased blooming, only a few flowers remaining, but these showed themselves to be the purest yellow of all the roses.

Hermosa is noted as a constant bloomer throughout the season. It is a most satisfactory pink bedding rose.

Hiawatha is one of the showy climbers, with small scarlet flowers having white eyes. The foliage is glossy.

Hoosier Beauty is not doing much and is in about the same class as Hadley.

Hugh Dickson is an attractive hybrid perpetual, deep red in color, and free blooming during its season. The climber of the same name is equal to the bush variety.

Hugonis is a handsome rose for use in connection with other shrubbery. It is not now in bloom, but the foliage attracted attention.

Irish Fireflame is not growing well at all here.

Kaiserin Augusta Victoria is one of the best of the white roses among the hybrid teas. It is doing well, but the climber of the same name is not quite so satisfactory.

Katherine Zeimet is a splendid-growing white baby rambler, good in foliage and flower, and hardy and vigorous in its growth.

All the members of the Killarney family are doing well, including the climber. They are growing satisfactorily and proving to be free bloomers. They seem quite hardy and evidence a satisfactory recovery from the recent frost. All were full of flowers.

Königin Carola is a splendid pink hybrid tea, vigorous growing and flowering satisfactorily during its season.

Lady Alice Stanley is vigorous and constant in blooming. Its flowers are a good clear pink.

Lady Ashton, climber, seems hardy, blooming well. It is popular and has beautiful pink flowers.

Lady Hillingdon is a moderate grower, producing a comparatively small number of flowers.

Lady Ursula, pink, is another free blooming hybrid tea.

La France, pink, one of the sweetest and handsomest of the roses, is poor in growth. The striped variety is doing about as well, but the white La France is running a little better as far as growth and hardiness are concerned. The climber is a little more satisfactory than the first-named.

La Tosca, a hybrid tea, has large pink flowers. It is one of the best with respect to florierousness as well as constancy of blooming.

Longwood is a dark pink climber of the Wichuraiana type, declared to be worthy of wide cultivation.

Los Angeles is not standing our winters well.

Lucy Ashton is a Penzance briar that is attractive at this season of the year.

Mme. Alfred Carriere has handsome white flowers. It is a popular rose, especially when permitted to assume the bush form. It blooms freely during the summer.

Mme. Caroline Testout, one of the hybrid teas, with large pink flower, is not quite equal to La Tosca and some of the others. The climber is better.

Mme. Leon Pain is a good pink hybrid tea.

Mme. Plantier has small white flowers constantly throughout the season.

Maharajah is a showy hybrid perpetual, red in color.

Maman Cochet, both pink and white, is one of the most satisfactory roses, particularly when used for bedding purposes.

Marie Pavic is a handsome baby rambler, suitable for bedding purposes, having attractive white flowers and good foliage.

Marie Van Houtte is another handsome hybrid tea with good cream or white flowers, suitable especially as a bedding rose.

Mary Lovett, white, is a moderate grower and is doing fairly well. It ranks among the best of the white roses in the garden.

Mignonette, a white baby rambler, is rather delicate looking.

Mrs. Arthur Robert Waddell is one of the best hybrid teas, with orange and yellow flowers. It is hardy, vigorous and a free bloomer.

Mrs. Wakefield Christie-Miller is an excellent pink hybrid tea of the same description.

My Maryland is not hardy enough to do well in this climate.

Old Gold is one of the roses that are almost too tender for this climate.

Ophelia is a good hybrid tea with cream or white flowers.

Papa Gontier, a semi-double hybrid tea, produces red flowers.

Paul's Scarlet Climber attracted a great deal of attention, as it is one of the showiest, if not the best of its kind in the garden. It was the subject of much favorable comment.

Purity is similar to Silver Moon, but has a white instead of a deep yellow center. It is good.

Radiance, a dark pink hybrid tea, does well under cultivation in this climate. It is free blooming, free growing and exceptionally hardy. Red Radiance takes the same description except as to color.

Richmond is proving a good red rose, reasonably hardy and free in its growth and constant in blooming.

Rubin, a single crimson climber, has just passed its prime, but is still showy.

Rugosa prostrata, dwarf, spreading, has beautiful shell pink flowers. It makes a most attractive green covering, a foot to eighteen inches thick.

Sheila Wilson, single, crimson climbing tea, makes a great show, for the flowers are large and attractive.

Silver Moon is another of Dr. Van Fleet's offerings. It has large-sized, single white flowers, having yellow centers, and is free growing. The foliage is dark and handsome.

Tip Top is a small growing baby rambler with attractive white, yellow and pink flowers. The foliage is small and the plant has a delicate appearance.

Triomphe Orleanaise is a baby rambler with deep, rich red flowers. It is probably the most showy of the doubles.

Veilchenblau is a rambler, having purplish flowers that turn with age to a ghastly bluish tinge. The foliage is not especially attractive.

Wellesley is a good pink hybrid tea, free growing and free blooming, and doing well.

William R. Smith is a hybrid tea, having handsome cream or white flowers, but it is not hardy.

Zephirine Drouhin is a pink climber that has large flowers. It is attractive and showy just now and is excellent as a climber.

Upon leaving the gardens the rosarians went to Twin Oaks, where they were received by Mrs. Charles J. Bell. Refreshments were served and the visitors were then taken in charge by G. A. Anderson, gardener of the estate, for a trip through its gardens.

Business Meeting.

At the Walter Reed hospital, the commandant, Colonel James D. Glennin, and his staff were awaiting the rosarians. The drive to Takoma Park, where the hospital is situated, was extremely pleasant. Upon arrival at the hospital the visitors were greeted by Prof. David Lumsden, who introduced them to Colonel Glennin, his officers, the nurses and aids, and then conducted to the mess room, where luncheon was to be served.

Following the meal came the business meeting and the speeches. It was declared that last year's officers were so good that they would better be retained and the vote that brought this about was decidedly unanimous. The line-up therefore continues as follows:

President—Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa.

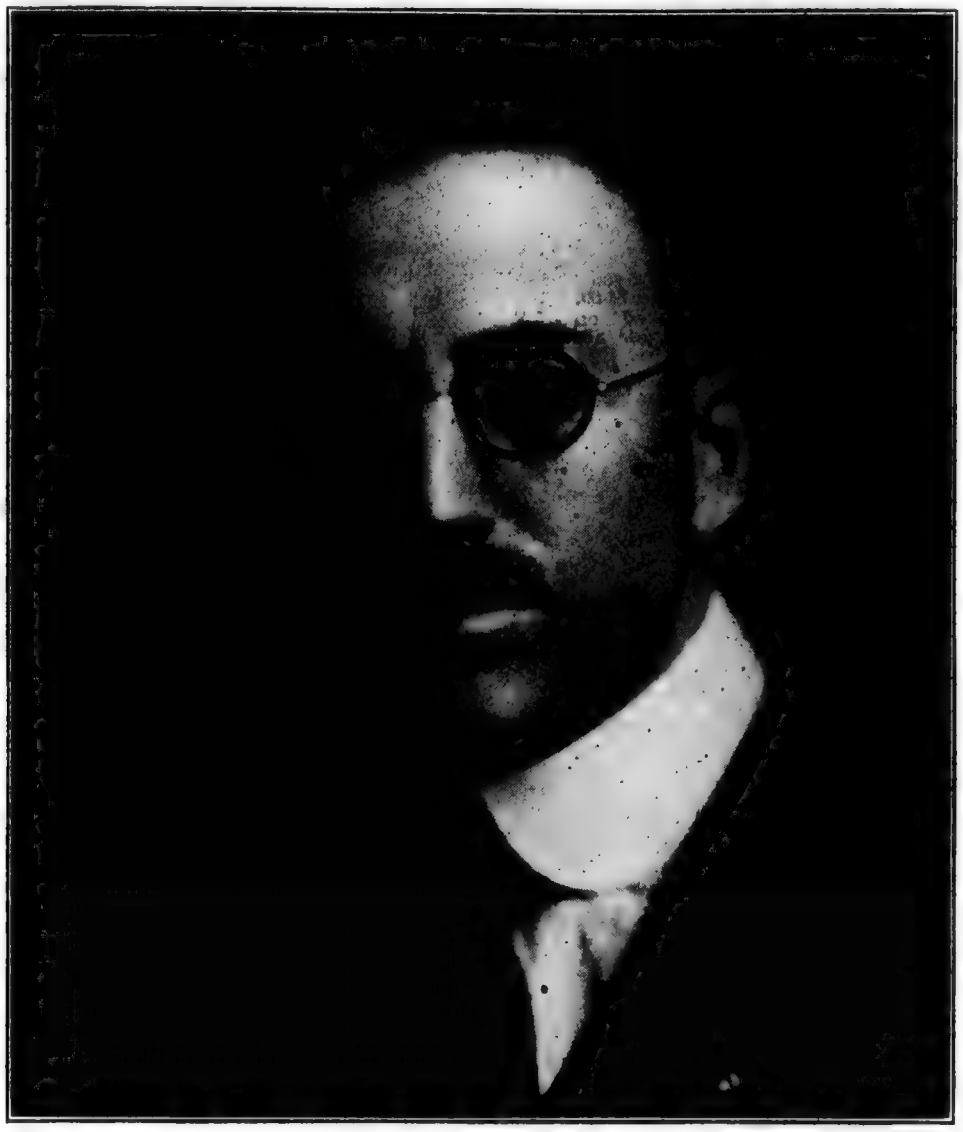
Vice-president—F. L. Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.

Secretary—John C. Wister, Philadelphia.

Treasurer—C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J.

Executive committee—W. R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J., and J. H. Dunlop, Toronto, Can.

President Pyle then spoke for a few moments about the proposed Washington rose show garden and the Portland rose trip which is scheduled for June, 1922. He then called upon Prof. Corbett, who spoke about Dr. Van Fleet's work at Bell, Md., and upon Secretary Wister, who spoke of the work of the secretary's office and about the dissemination of the rose, Mary Wallace. Dr. Shoemaker then told of the work of the Takoma Horticultural Society, and Miss Harrison expressed the wish that the American Rose Society should come to Washington again next year. Mr. McFarland spoke briefly about the American Rose Annual, and then W. F. Gude closed the meeting with a tribute to the work of the Walter Reed hospital.



Some little time was spent viewing the hospital and the work being done in the preparation of a sunken garden. It was well along toward evening before a final farewell was taken and the visitors dispersed.

Among those present were the following:

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

ROY F. WILCOX.

THAT even one who does not class as a "native son" can gain success and fame in California has been proved by the rapid rise of Roy F. Wilcox, the state's "adopted son" from Council Bluffs, Ia., where he was formerly associated with his father in the firm of J. F. Wilcox & Sons. After his discharge from the army, he went to California, purchasing a grower's business at Montebello. He now ships carload lots of palms, grows many roses and does much general propagating. In his two years of California life, he has made hosts of friends, for in all his dealings he adheres strictly to a straight-dealing and broad-minded policy. He was elected president of the California Association of Nurserymen last fall and has charge of the big exhibition to be held under its auspices in Los Angeles next autumn.

Morris, Ill.—Harry A. Schultz, who has been associated with George Heath for a number of months, has returned to his old home, in the vicinity of Philadelphia.

Lapeer, Mich.—R. F. Livergood, office manager of the Botanical Nursery Co., has been on the sick list for a number of weeks, but is now again able to attend to business. The concern deals in collected plants and other products of the woods.

HAVE you got your member for the S. A. F.?

THE second installment of your income tax is due next week, June 15.

WATCH closely for the mum midge. It is devastating if uncontrolled, but it can be destroyed if discovered in time.

THE weather, in its vagaries, has not been altogether favorable to the florists this spring, but the cool days at present are maintaining trade well.

FROM all indications, the supply of blooming plants for next autumn and winter will be smaller than usual. Work up all the good stock you can.

PINK roses no doubt always will sell better than other colors, taking the year through, but there is need of a good red, a clear yellow and a better white.

TAKE the trouble, during the slack period this summer, to give more instruction to some likely lad who is helping in your greenhouses. You will be wanting a good grower later on.

THUS far Mothers' day has belonged to the cut flower people, but geraniums in bloom, in fancy dressed pots, have sold well when offered. Plan now to have some ready for May 14, 1922.

So frequent are the requests for instructions as to cyclamen culture that The Review prints this week, on another page, information which has appeared on different occasions and in different forms before. The methods described are the best used today. Save this page, for you will want it some other time if not now.

WHAT this trade needs most of all is a higher standard of business honor—the practice of the golden rule. We need to develop a sense of responsibility which will prompt a shipper to decline an order when he knows his stock is of questionable quality; we need to eliminate the men who do not send out usable plants and those who, having received cash in advance, ignore complaints; we need, moreover, to devise a means of reaching the fellows who hold money weeks or even months, waiting for the stock to fill the orders, meanwhile neglecting all inquiries and demands. If we could bring such florists to see themselves as others see them, then the trade would boom.

AMERICAN BEAUTY is seeing its last days in the middle west, where it made growers rich and famous ten to twenty years ago.

THE American Sweet Pea Society will hold its annual meeting and exhibition at the Museum of Natural History, Central park, New York, June 25 and 26.

IT will cost less to produce stock next season; the trade can afford to sell cheaper; but let's never go back to the prewar prices; grow good stock and charge what it costs, plus a profit.

THE Internal Revenue Department, collecting Uncle Sam's taxes, notes the increasing income derived from the so-called luxury taxes and officials comment that the public appears once more to be loosening purse strings for the purchase of nonessentials.

THERE is, today, plenty of good office help. Why not hire a man, even if he knows nothing of the florists' business? Let it be his first duty to collect outstanding accounts and pay outstanding bills. Most florists can furnish a summer's work at that.

THE present-day retailer is often so removed from the growing of flowers that he loses the ability of the old-time florist to tell customers all they want to know about his wares. Know intimately the flowers you sell. If you don't know, learn about them.

A VALUABLE book of reference for every florist is a scrapbook into which are pasted the articles which appear in The Review each week giving directions for meeting trying situations or special problems. If a florist is so fortunate as to keep a complete file of the issues he receives, a notebook, posted alphabetically, should be used to record such pieces of information.

DEMAND for lower prices by the public has necessitated pruning the overhead costs in the flower store as elsewhere. Some of the most effective ways are: Getting more work from the same or a smaller number of employees, spending the advertising appropriation where each dollar brings the most business, studying appropriations and their returns by means of cost accounting and budget systems, and keeping collections up to the mark.

THE editor's desk has been decorated with an unusually fine spike of gladiolus sent by F. J. Olsan & Sons, Ames, Ia., for identification. They say it appeared among some hybrids. The spike seems to be a glorified Halley. Prince of Wales is described as an improved Halley. The spike from Olsan & Sons probably is that variety. It carries ten open flowers and five buds showing color. The flowers were set closer together than is characteristic of either Prince of Wales or Halley.

KEEP BUSY.

Various business houses in this country and abroad, where conditions are as much depressed as here, if not more, are striving, by means of inspirational advertising and striking slogans, to stir business men into greater activity. "1921 Will Reward Fighters," asserts the Chicago Tribune, and prints full-page advertisements of examples of success achieved by battling business men this spring. "Don't Let the Slump Beat You," advertises a prominent British horticultural supply house, declaring, "In a period of trade depression such as we are going through now, the wise man redoubles his efforts to secure a share of whatever business there is to be done, concentrating on those lines which command a ready sale and thus bring him the quickest returns."

Those slogans are for us, too. Though we have fared better than other lines this spring, there is no assurance that our good fortune will continue unless we bend our efforts to make it do so. Warm weather is a temptation to slacken one's grip. Instead, we must tighten it. Now is the time to urge on the public those uses of flowers to which we paid small attention during the succession of big holidays. Birthdays are as numerous in summer as in winter; advertise flowers for birthday anniversaries. There are more travelers in summer than in winter; bring the florists' telegraph service to the attention of all tourists, domestic and foreign. Business men have need of brightening their offices in the heat of summer; furnish inexpensive vases of outdoor blooms on monthly contract. Flowers for the sickroom should be pushed; tell your customers not to wait till their friends are dead to send floral remembrances. These are but a few suggestions. If the trade will work on them and others, earnestly and assiduously, by personal suggestion, circulars, window displays and newspaper advertising, we can beat the slump that may threaten us as it has more than threatened others. Let's keep busy.

WHO CAN ANSWER THIS?

"While attending the convention at Cleveland last year," writes a subscriber, "the representative of a florists' firm handed me a card describing its new geranium, Indiana. The card has been mislaid. Can you advise me of the name of this firm?"

The Review has no record of such a variety. Perhaps some reader can help on this question.

AN EASTERN EXPERIENCE.

There is an old saying to the effect that it is not where a publication is printed, but where it is read, which counts with advertisers. Of course, The Review is read throughout the trade, but it has more subscribers in the state of New York that in any other one state in the Union. Pennsylvania is second. Some eastern florists who have surplus stock fail to realize that they are advertising right at home when they send an advertisement to The Review, but it works like this:

Please stop our geranium advertisement. It has sold 15,000 4-inch geraniums for us.—T. R. McGinniss & Son, South Williamsport, Pa., May 26, 1921.

It was an advertisement of seven lines, costing $1.26 per week. The advertisement offered the plants at 20 cents each, so that the little liner brought this Pennsylvania advertiser $3,000 in sales at a cost of $1.26 per week. The advertisement appeared only five times.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

William H. Fierabend.

William H. Fierabend, one of the best known growers of carnations for the New York market, died at his home, on Cedar avenue, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 28, after an illness of three weeks. He was 39 years of age. After a consultation by some of the best physicians of Poughkeepsie and New York city, it was decided that death was caused by suprarenal gland trouble. He leaves his widow, who was his constant companion, and three boys, 11, 10 and 8 years old. His widow will continue to operate the business which together they had so splendidly built up. She has the sympathy and encouragement of the entire trade.

John W. Beatty.

John W. Beatty, 70 years of age, died May 28, at Bridgeport, W. Va. He had been employed for about two years at the Hayman Greenhouses, of that city. He had been engaged in greenhouse work for many, many years and had a large acquaintance among the members of the florists' trade.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The cut flower market for a week has been dull. The business for Memorial day was fair, but in volume not materially different from that of previous years. Tuesday following the holiday arrivals were light, indeed; they were not particularly heavy all week, but there was plenty of stock to meet the small demand, which was not at all steady.

Peonies came in quantity and moved fairly well. Gladioli from the south made an appearance; the sales little more than cleared the express charges, which now are a handicap to long-distance shipments. Inside gladioli arrived in increased quantity.

The supply of roses was not particularly large, but arrivals moved slowly, with prices fluctuating from day to day. American Beauty was not plentiful, nor was the demand for it active. The quality of hybrid teas was good, due to cooler weather, and most market varieties were available.

Carnations were in fair supply, but the quality was of the midsummer kind. Laddie is still coming in good shape, although in small quantity.

Cattleyas are not plentiful, but there are quite enough to meet the small demand.

White lilies are in fair supply and meet an equally fair demand. Lily of the valley is in smaller supply. A few gardenias are arriving, but the supply is not at all regular.

Sweet peas are unusually plentiful for this season and they meet a spasmodic demand. Herbaceous flowers are in increased supply, and the list is large. Coreopsis and gaillardia are now coming in and move fairly well. Wild spiræa is also moving well and is used largely for $1 box fillings in the retail stores. Sweet william, in self colors, meets a good demand. Yellow and white daisies, myosotis, delphinium, calendulas, stocks of excellent quality, oriental poppies, pansies, ageratum, alyssum, pyrethrum, ranunculus, didiscus and centaureas all move fairly well and add to the florists' window displays.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held Monday evening, June 13, in the club's quarters in the Engineering Societies' building. This will be the last meeting until September. The exhibition committee will make exhibits of late peonies, roses and bedding stock at this meeting. Dr. W. E. Britton, state and station entomologist of the Connecticut Agricultural Experimental Station, New Haven, will talk on "Insect Pests and Their Methods of Operation." The lecture will be illustrated by lantern slides.

Special parlor cars for those going to the Washington convention of the S. A. F. will be attached to the train leaving the Pennsylvania terminal at 11:08 a. m., Monday, August 15. Applications for seats in these cars may be sent in, from now on, to William Pedrick, Jr., division passenger agent, 263 Fifth avenue. Regular tickets for travel may be purchased August 1 and later. Purchasers who are members of the society should first secure an identification certificate from Secretary Young, 43 West Eighteenth street, which will enable the return trip to be made at a reduced rate.

The Allied Florists' Trade Association had a meeting at the office of the New York Florists' Club, Wednesday, June 1, at which the support of retailers in the publicity movement was assured. All of the retailers are to be visited by a personal representative of the Associated Retail Florists, with the idea of making the support general.

Frank Valentine is becoming noted for what may be termed unusual performances. For Memorial day exercises he supplied 1,500 school children with head wreaths of smilax and sweet peas, 600 dozen strings of smilax being used. In addition, each child was supplied with two carnations. J. H. P.

The good-of-the-club committee of the New York Florists' Club has sent out a questionnaire to members, in an effort to determine what would be of most interest to them at meetings, whether an auxiliary society of amateurs should be formed and whether club quarters should be obtained.

NEWARK, N. J.

Memorial day business was excellent with most of the Newark florists.

The last two weeks has seen an unusually large sale of pansy plants, tomato plants, hardy rose bushes, early geraniums and other plants, shrubs and bushes for spring transplanting.

There has been considerable funeral work lately, but the cut flower trade has been slow.

Harry I. Stein, proprietor of the Terminal Flower Shop, is constantly enlarging the floor space in his store in the Terminal building. He is also adding to the varieties of stock which he keeps in the store.

The Rosery Floral Co. reports a good Memorial day business and a fair business since then.

Philips Bros. report that they are having much funeral work at the present time, but that the transient trade is rather slow. They are beginning to get some of the June wedding work.

A feature of the window display of A. Begerow for about the last ten days has been a pergola, in the center of which was a pond banked with ferns, and in which goldfish were swimming.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The market entered June in a depressed condition, but has made steady progress in the "knee deep" days. After Memorial day there was rather warm weather until the middle of the week, with the result that the market continued full of stock, much of it poor, with prices low and irregular. As soon as the weather turned cooler, conditions began to improve. Receipts were reduced; quality was better; it became possible to work off, slowly, the accumulated stock and to stabilize the market on a low price level from which it has been possible gradually to advance. Prices are not yet high, but they are not so disastrously low as they were in the three days following Memorial day.

Memorial day is one holiday which is not followed by a reaction in the demand due to the public being well supplied. After Christmas, Easter and the other days at which flower buying is concentrated, the homes of flower lovers are filled with flowers; it is useless to look for normal demand until the abnormal supply has lived its life and been thrown out. At Memorial day it is different; huge quantities of flowers are bought, but they are left in the cemeteries and are not standing in the homes of the people, to blight the business of flower selling for the next three or four days. Consequently there was rather better than the normal demand right after Memorial day. Shipping trade was fairly brisk and has increased as the June weddings got under way. City trade does not seem to be so active as might be expected in view of the good shipping business.

This is the time of year when the value of other flowers, which can not be stored, is depressed by the abundance of peonies, which can. The peony is not cutting its usual figure this season, however. It appears that the local as well as the southern crops were seriously affected by the late frosts and the result has been apparent in two ways: First, the supply was not so large as usual and, secondly, the owners have not felt such confidence in the stock as would lead them to hold much of it in cold storage. The receipts have been more than could be moved on arrival, it is true, but not in years have such small quantities gone into storage. Now that the cut is about over, the peony will be less of a factor than in any recent season. One of the noticeable points is the fall from favor of festiva maxima. Beautiful and useful as it is when fresh cut, the retailers, even the street stand men, are learning that it is not dependable for storing and shipping as is done in this market and everybody backs away from it.

The rose makes this market. It is the flower in chief request. In June there is a noticeable increase in the call for yellow and white, which become worth a premium on that account. There is plenty in pink, with scarcely any red, though the latter is not often called for at this season. The rose supply is expected to go down rapidly now, as growers rest or replant. Quality has become of good summer average.

Sweet peas are less plentiful, poorer and cheaper than they were, although a few growers are picking fair quality from spring-planted houses. There is plenty of valley, also daisies. Eastern lilies are abundant, coming again from numerous sources, some quite far away. Local cattleyas are scarce, which has led to importations. Gladioli are more plentiful, excellent indoor stock being offered, with quantities of southern outdoor flowers. Feverfew, candytuft, stocks, lupines, larkspur and bachelor's buttons in several colors are offered.

Small quantities of poppies are seen here and there, the result of an attempt to meet an expected demand for Memorial day. The general report is that such demand as materialized was satisfied with artificial poppies.

New ferns have come, to relieve the shortage and bring down the price.

Various Notes.

Taking it as a whole, the local florists who do bedding out never had a better season. Up to Memorial day they had all they could do and ran short of stock. Now the late geraniums are beginning to bloom and good stock again is available. The demand has not ceased.

The Gould Co., of Onarga, brought in its fourth peony farm last week, the cut there in previous seasons having been negligible. This is the Oconomowoc place. The Goulds now begin cutting peonies at Halls, Tenn., in the last week of April or first days of May. In early May they cut a crop at Grayville, Ill., and in late May at the home nursery at Onarga. In June they now have the Oconomowoc crop and this year the Wisconsin peonies are turning out to be the best of the lot. By June 5 they had 7,000 dozens of them in storage in Chicago and expected to double that quantity before the cut is finished this week. Next year the Oconomowoc farm should give a crop large enough so that it will be a big factor in the June market.

R. Scheffler, at Wheaton, has gone into the forcing of cold storage lilies. He plans to ship all summer.

As fast as growers can work up stock, apparently, Butterfly will displace Ophelia in this market.

Albert T. Hey comes in from Maywood only now and then. He is doing a nice little, quiet retail business there, and is growing perennials; his favorite song is, "Happy, That's All."

H. F. Udally is preparing to start in business on the northwest side as the Portage Park Botanical Gardens. His address is 4816 Cullom avenue.

The Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago will wind up the season with a big night June 16. A banquet is scheduled at the Hotel Randolph for 6:30. It will be preceded by a short business meeting, to consist principally of the election of officers. It will be followed by a program of musical and specialty numbers that promise to be a real treat. meeting voted a special appropriation for the program, which has been arranged by Peter Pearson, Robert Windler, August Poehlmann and Otto Amling. The dinner will cost $2.50 a plate and will be composed of a special menu.

Out at Forest Glen, near Montrose cemetery, William B. Wallace, formerly of the Montrose Floral Co., is building up a splendid range. The Wallace Floral Co. bought the Brant & Noe houses a year ago, and last season six practically new houses were put up at Rogers and Kercheval avenues. Another house is going up now, and Mr. Wallace intends to continue building until next winter, having planned for nine houses this season. A fine service building and a garage are recent additions also.

An excellent season in bedding plants has been closed by Peter Pearson, whose greenhouses are cleaned out, with the exception of a few salvias and petunias, which he expects will move shortly.

The remains of O. P. Bassett were cremated at Los Angeles shortly after his death there late in February. The ashes were on their way east last week, in a small sealed copper case in charge of the express company, when the train carrying them reached the blockade caused by the flood at Pueblo, Colo. The time of arrival at Hinsdale is unknown. A concrete vault in the cemetery there is ready to receive the ashes and there will be a private burial service at the time of interment.

The Peter Reinberg greenhouses have been turned over, by the executors of the estate, to the several heirs, in accordance with Mr. Reinberg's wishes as set down in his will, and each section now is being operated under the direction of the new owner.

At the meeting of the Florists' Club June 9 Gustaf Bloom, Anthony Batek and E. J. Delaney were elected to membership. The latter is a heather and statice salesman from Hollywood, Cal.

The feature of the window display of the American Bulb Co. last week was a vase of the new white rose, Medina, a sport of Sunburst to be sent out soon by White Bros., of Medina, N. Y., with whom it originated. So well was the sport liked, says Mr. Miller, that one local grower placed an order for 15,000 of the young stock and another asked to be booked for 2,000.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. report that V. Bezdek, the Gross Point grower, already has seventeen benches replanted with carnations to be grown under glass all summer, a method by which Mr. Bezdek has had good results in other years.

Kirscht Bros., at Morton Grove, cleaned out of bedding stock at Memorial day and now are bending their efforts toward the completion of a new greenhouse 27 x 200.

That business has been good for the growers of the east and that they are preparing for even better business in the future, is evidenced by the fact that Fred Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., said he was "loaded down" with orders for boilers when he returned last week from a trip through Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Henry M. Hirsch, who recently retired as president of the Antoinette Flower Shop, 934 East Forty-seventh street, has again started in business under his own name at 833 East Forty-sixth street.

The weather man's monthly report shows that the mean temperature in May was 7 degrees higher than in May of the last two years and that it contained the warmest day in May since 1911. The sun was unobscured for seventy per cent of the possible length of time, whereas May usually gives us only sixty-four per cent of the possible duration of sun. the month, it is no wonder there was a marked effect on stock for Memorial day.

Visitors.

Dr. A. J. Knapp, the widely known grower of peonies at Evansville, Ind., spent several days here last week on his way to Boston to attend the annual convention and exhibition of the American Peony Society, June 18 and 19.

Frank Stuppy, Mrs. Stuppy and Mr. Stuppy's mother passed through Chicago June 3 on their way home to St. Joseph, Mo., from Boston, where they spent a month to give Mr. Stuppy the benefit of treatment by a celebrated eye specialist.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business during the first week in June was in marked contrast to its immediate predecessor. Stock of every kind accumulated and prices came rapidly down the toboggan. There were a number of weddings, but these used only a small amount of material and the various class days, commencements, graduations, etc., do not come until later in the month. A slump after Memorial day is always looked for. It is no worse now than in former years.

Roses sell all the way from nothing to $20 to $25. A small number of fancy Hadley, Columbia and Premier reach the higher figures. Ophelia has been in heavy oversupply. One prominent firm sold several thousand 24-inch stock at $5 per thousand last week, and nice 18-inch stock was being retailed on the streets at 10 cents per dozen. There is a fair demand for roses, but there are far too many of them. Carnations are in the down-and-out class. The quality is poor and values are from 50 cents to $3 per hundred. Few reach the top price and a good many sell below 50 cents.

Some fair sweet peas still come in from under glass, but for a lot of short-stemmed stock there is no market. Leftovers from Memorial day of stocks, feverfew, etc., are hard to sell. Such gladioli as Halley, America and King sell at $1.50 for the best. Primulinus varieties nearly all go direct to the retail stores. There is no market for the small, colored gladioli of nanus type. Lilies and callas are druggy and snapdragons now seen are poor. The same holds true of marguerites, gypsophila and bachelor's buttons.

For cattleyas, the demand has been sluggish of late. Valley so far has not been called for much for June brides. For geraniums and other bedding plants, there is an active call.

Peonies will be at their flood tide locally about the end of the current Rhododendron and Iris Exhibition.

The annual show of rhododendrons, azaleas and iris was held at Horticultural hall June 4 and 5, and the exhibits nearly filled the main hall. For twelve varieties of rhododendrons, T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. was first; W. N. Craig, second. For six varieties, W. N. Craig won; T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co., second. W. N. Craig was first for twelve varieties of hardy azaleas, also for twenty varieties of hardy herbaceous perennials. He also exhibited a bank of hardy azaleas.

The Hillcrest Gardens silver challenge vase for the most tastefully arranged basket of any hardy iris went to Iristhorpe, A. J. Jenkins, superintendent, with a nice arrangement of the popular I. pallida dalmatica. There were five other entries in this class. A bronze medal went to Miss Grace Sturtevant, of Wellesley, for her collection of twenty-four varieties, some beautiful varieties being included.

Miss Grace Sturtevant had a beautiful display of iris in a number of varieties and secured certificates of merit for a grand seedling, White Germanica, and another seedling, Parisienne x Mesopotamia. T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. had a fine collection of peonies, all seedlings, hardy azaleas, iris and rhododendrons, including the lovely new hardy variety, W. P. Rich, awarded a silver medal two years ago.

John K. Alexander and Allen J. Jenkins each contributed large and interesting collections of iris. Mrs. C.

W. Willis also made a grand display of these popular flowers.

The Arnold Arboretum received a first-class certificate for a new seedling rhododendron, Holmleaense (R. discolor x R. catawbiense). H. H. Richardson received honorable mention for the new Chinese Anisostichus (bignonia) capreolata, and similar awards went to the Arnold Arboretum for Rhododendron Anneliesoe and to T. C. Thurlow's Sons Co. for its collection of seedling peonies. Walter Hunnewell, T. D. Hatfield, superintendent, showed a large collection of hardy rhododendrons, including some fine seedlings. Henry Stewart showed a collection of oriental and Iceland poppies.

T. D. Hatfield delivered an interesting lecture on hardy azaleas and rhododendrons on each afternoon of the show, which attracted interested audiences.

Various Notes.

B. Hammond Tracy, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., who was drowned in France, May 5, was buried at Wenham June 2, with full military honors, following a largely attended funeral ceremony at the Wenham Congregational church. The Norman Prince Post of the American Legion escorted the body to the grave, where a squad fired a salute and a bugler sounded taps. The Reverend T. C. Craig, of the Congregational church, officiated, assisted by Chaplain Benjamin, of the Legion Post. There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes.

The annual show of the American Peony Society will be held at Horticultural hall, June 18 and 19, in conjunction with the exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. A week earlier would have suited local peonies better, but, nevertheless, a fine show is looked for.

John J. O'Brien, the Beacon street florist, held a double celebration May 31. It happened to be his birthday and Mrs. O'Brien, in honor of the auspicious event, presented her husband with a bouncing 11½-pound son. Always a tall man, Mr. O'Brien's head now seems almost to reach the clouds.

LINDLEY FLORIST BOX CO., QUALITY BOX MAKERS Marion, Ind.

good many visitors to its West Barnstable nurseries, on Cape Cod, this week to inspect the field of rhododendrons and azaleas, which are there to be seen in acres. There are many thousands of seedlings of hardy rhododendrons and some beautiful new hybrids, with flowers rivaling in size and beauty those of the popular Pink Pearl.

Now, while roses are abundant and cheap, some of the big drygoods stores are handling quantities of them. Houghton & Dutton Co. disposed of many thousands at 35 cents per dozen. The 5 and 10-cent stores also handled large numbers.

The executive committee of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club has all arrangements completed for a ladies' night to follow the regular club meeting June 21. They are also working on arrangements for the annual club picnic at Cunningham park, East Milton, July 21.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Dewar will sail on a European trip June 26. William J. Collins, of Carters Tested Seeds Co., will make a journey to England and Scotland at the same time.

J. T. Slayter, of the A. Leuthy Co., states that the flower store the company now operates as the Roslindale Flower Shop did a wonderful Memorial day business and that the first few months' business was fine. At the greenhouses the company is doing a heavy business in bedding plants.

There are glorious displays of Kalmia latifolia, mountain laurel, at the Arnold Arboretum, in parkways and on many private estates this week. Last year the plants bloomed somewhat sparsely, but this season both these and rhododendrons are a mass of bloom.

Demand for geraniums and other bedding plants is strong at present and it looks as if there would be little surplus left over. Geraniums are selling particularly well. W. N. C.

Samuel Marksman has leased the store at 16 Tremont street for a term of years. He will conduct a florists' business.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Washington florists are having rather a hard time of it just now with an unusual shortage of stock. In previous years at this time there has been a glut of stock and business, aside from commencements and June weddings, has been dull. In other lines of business in Washington the statement is made that success in 1921 will come only to him who fights for trade. The situation is entirely different in the florists' trade; business is coming to all of those who can buy, beg, borrow or steal enough stock to do business with.

The full effect of the late frost is now being experienced. In previous years it has been possible to draw upon huge stores of outdoor stock. The stock that could be used to produce mass effects at little cost is not now obtainable and the retailers are dependent upon greenhouse stock for their supply of flowers.

Various Notes.

"We are shorter of stock right now than we were at any time during the winter," said Adolph E. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., speaking of the demands made upon the firm's wholesale department last week. "Our iceboxes are practically empty and still we have orders to be filled. There have been a great many weddings that have demanded fine flowers; the recent airplane accident that resulted in the death of seven well known army officers and civilians called for many funeral pieces, and on top of that and the usual run of business there have been a number of school and college commencements, all requiring flowers. Business would indeed be good if we only had more flowers."

The United States Supreme court has upheld the legality of the tax imposed by the government of the District of Columbia under authority of Congress upon all business houses having and using vault space under public sidewalks. The florists, in common with other merchants, under permission from the District government, utilize vault space adjoining their establishments.

A number of large establishments opposed the tax and the case went through the courts, the final decision being against them. Not only does the District government hold right over the vault space, but now may demand the equivalent of rental therefor on the basis of the footage so occupied.

The Senate committee on the District of Columbia has made a favorable report on a bill introduced by Senator Jones providing for the observance of daylight saving by the federal and district governments, Congress and the various governmental agencies and the street car companies in the District of Columbia. In supporting the measure, the district commissioners pointed out that "while the bill provides that it shall only apply to governmental establishments, there is no doubt that private establishments would of necessity have to follow the daylight schedule if it were adopted for governmental establishments." TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

With the coming of June, business has picked up somewhat and the prospects are for considerable business during June. Those handling bedding stock have been quite busy recently, but others have not been so rushed and welcome the wedding season, with the call for house and church decorations and the bouquets. There are ample flowers to fill all orders, but there is no oversupply.

Various Notes.

Letters are being received from the F. T. D. members in various parts of Canada stating that they are willing to do all in their power to help entertain the visitors at the coming Canadian convention. H. G. Dillemuth, chairman of the Toronto executive committee, has a letter from the King Edward hotel stating that the new addition will be ready for occupancy, that the new convention hall will be ready and that the whole big convention will be easily accommodated. Mr. Dillemuth has received requests for information about exhibition space. The committee, including Harry James, has this in hand, and all correspondence will be acknowledged until the floor reserved for the exhibits can be laid out and blueprints made. In the meantime, requests for space should be made to Mr. James. G. M. Geraghty entertained the Toronto F. T. D. executive committee Tuesday night, May 31. After the business session, the members were entertained at supper. The publicity committee has under preparation a circular, giving full facts regarding the coming convention.

Toronto florists are protesting against people who get hold of a vacant lot and "grab off" the bedding stock and nursery business and pay no business tax. It is hoped that the legitimate florist can be protected. J. J. H.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Business commenced a day earlier than usual last week, owing to Sunday coming before the holiday. No flowers came into the market and, as a great many went out, there was little stock left over. The receipts were heavy on Monday morning, Memorial day; business was active till noon, when most of the wholesale and retail houses closed. The remaining five days of the week saw supply and demand fairly balanced. There was a good deal of business, with plenty of material.

The feature of the market is the disappearance of the peony. Memorial day cleared up all the local supply; there have been some coming from a distance since, but they were merely scattering lots. At this time last season local peonies were just coming into bloom; they bore down the market throughout the entire month of June, carrying everything else with them. There were so many peonies and they became so cheap that many fields remained uncut.

The buoyancy of the market today is largely due to the absence of the peony. The sale of greenhouse flowers is improved thereby, while the demand for outdoor flowers is even more favorably affected. Delphinium, now at its height, is having a wonderful season. Cornflowers and coreopsis are selling as they never did before. One wholesaler said that he sold $700 worth of cornflowers in a single week. Just think of it, $700 worth at from $10 per hundred bunches to $1 per hundred flowers; even then he had lots of cornflowers unsold.

Roses have been selling well. Carnations, when they are good, have also been in demand, but there are a good many inferior carnations now. The small number of really fine sweet peas, many of them in fancy colors, have been popular. Poor, short-stem flowers are of little use. Easter lilies are doing much better since the disappearance of their rival Pæonia festiva maxima. Callas and snapdragons are nearing the end of their season.

Beauties have been popular; orders for the medium grades often could not be filled, only specials being available. Orchids have been reënforced by some exceptionally fine Cattleya gigas that have brought record prices. Valley has been steady. Shipping orders have been heavy. There are gladioli, both from nearby greenhouses and from the fields of the sunny south.

The Stormy Petrel.

Miss Jarvis made her annual appearance in the wholesale center May 28. She demanded certain material free of charge. When politely told that this could not be done, she said that she was Miss Jarvis, the originator of Mothers' day. When told that would not make any difference, she became abusive and said the florists were robbers and that they owed her much. Miss Jarvis was then asked to leave.

Club Meeting.

Professor E. J. Wilde, of the Pennsylvania State College, spoke before the Florists' Club, at the City Club, Tuesday evening, June 7. Professor Wilde wished to interest the florists in the work that the state college is doing for horticulture, partly with the aim of securing a better understanding between the commercial and the educational sides of floriculture and partly with the hope of securing horticultural scholarships for the college.

Tuesday morning Professor Wilde visited Pennock Bros. to see floral work in the making. Tuesday afternoon was spent in the plant factory of the Robert Craig Co., at Norwood. In the evening President Campbell gathered a score of members to dine with the distinguished visitor.

In his address before the club Professor Wilde laid stress on the importance of coöperation between the florists and the students. He said State College prepared its graduates to take up practical work, that they were fitted for responsibility and should be given a chance. He said that florists should bring their troubles to the State College, where every effort would be made to aid in solving them. He asked that each florist use his influence to secure better equipment for the college.

Robert Craig followed Professor Wilde with a talk from the commercial side. He thought that a short course in horticulture at State College would be of benefit to all those who wish to master their profession.

Various Notes.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society held its annual outdoor rose and peony show at the Masonic hall at Ardmore, the afternoon and evening of June 1.

George Cook has returned to the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange.

Robert Craig attended the American Rose Society's outdoor meeting at Washington, June 2. He returned in fine spirits, having enjoyed the trip thoroughly.

William J. Young, Jr., reserved two of the greenhouses. These he will move to his farm at Linfield, near Pottstown, where he expects to erect them a year hence.

George Burton has moved into his new residence on Willow Grove avenue, near Stanton avenue, a short distance west of his former home.

H. Bayersdorfer will sail for home June 29.

Alfred M. Campbell will remodel the heating plant at his Strafford Flower Farm, putting in the vacuum system.

The Florex Gardens are pleased with their railroad siding. It is about 500 feet long, and is a great convenience and saving in labor when putting in coal.

President Harding spent Sunday, June 5, with Senator Knox, at Valley Forge. Ophelia roses graced the festive board. Phil.

The Market.

A heavy supply of stock continued to come in all last week. It has been absorbed by a steady business that has been satisfactory, following a holiday. The aftermath of Memorial day brought out a great loss to many who handled peonies. The blooms that had been held in storage even a few days fell to pieces when they were brought out. From one-half to two-thirds of every lot held in storage had to be dumped. There is never much enthusiasm displayed in the handling of peonies for shipping, but, with the crop brought out by the heat the last week in May, it was sadder than ever. Those who refused to handle them were the most comfortable in the long run. The peony crop this year was one phase of the unexpected that often happens on Memorial day.

Various Notes.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. is cutting about 7,000 roses a day. Carnations are short.

Nearly 17,000 peonies were sold by the Alpha Floral Co. Memorial day and the two preceding days. They were all fresh cut. Last week finished the crop for this year.

Charles Robinson, formerly with Mrs. T. A. Moseley, is now with the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., taking the place of William Fitzhugh, who has gone to the Muehlebach Flower Shop.

Arthur Newell sold between 500 and 600 wreaths for Memorial day. With the exception of the California statice wreaths, all were made by his own force. Oak leaves with cape flowers and statice, and magnolia leaves with strawflowers and statice were used. The wreaths sold at $5 to $25. Few calls were for anything less than $5 and these were made up as wanted. Gold star wreaths were featured. Red, white and blue cape flowers were used, with a gold star in the center. These and the American Legion design were placed on many soldiers' graves.

May was the big month of the year with Samuel Murray. The volume of business was greater than that at either Christmas or Easter, although in dollars and cents it was less. William Murray says that May, once considered a minor month in the business calendar, in time will be the most important. Mothers' day will bring it to top place.

Miss Bernadette Lucier is now in the office of A. Newell's shop. Miss Lucier was formerly with Miller Bros., at Abilene, Kan.

Longview Farms are sending in fine roses, that are standing up well in spite of the heat.

The Florists' Club held a meeting, June 2, in the store of the W. L. Rock Flower Co. On account of the small attendance, little business was transacted. It was voted to change the time of meeting from the first to the second Thursday of each month, in order to suit everyone's convenience. The first few days of the month are usually busy with getting out statements and other matters that call for extra work. It was also decided to call a special meeting Tuesday, June 7, to arrange for the visit of J. F. Ammann and H. V. Swenson, June 27.

Miss Boggess had a better business by far than she has ever before handled on Memorial day.

J. R. McGrail has sold a quantity of geraniums and other plants this spring. He has made up a great number of boxes and baskets to order.

Graduation orders were on a more generous scale than usual this year. Mrs. T. A. Moseley has had many of these the last few weeks. J. E. K.

COLUMBUS, O.

Business here is brisk now. Several store openings, many June weddings and further arrivals of bodies of overseas heroes keep all the trade busy.

The opening of the store of the Morehouse-Martin Co. was a long anticipated event, and none was left out in the mammoth display of flowers presented on this occasion. Baskets, horseshoes, etc., were to be seen in all directions, as one looked from any part of the lower floor. The writer counted at least 150 baskets.

The opening of the May Flower Shop took place last week. The flowers for this occasion were furnished by McKellar's and consisted of oriental poppies, delphiniums, roses, cornflowers, foxgloves, peonies and irises. These flowers, in bright colors, made a great display.

T. J. Ludwig reports many wedding orders are on the files for this month.

Mrs. J. A. Martin has recently returned from Cleveland, where she spent several weeks with her daughter, who has been seriously ill.

Memorial day proved to be better than ever, from a florists' standpoint, and many did an excellent business. This day could be made to mean much more if it were advertised properly.

A HALF-INCH ADVERTISEMENT
here will keep your name and specialty before the whole trade, at a cost of only 62½c per week on a yearly order.

I HAVE BEEN ASKED

"WHY DYE SWEET PEAS?"

First; there is no real yellow, apricot or burnt orange pea supplied by nature.

Second; people like these colors and shades, and buy them repeatedly, just as they do lavender, pink, etc.

Third; the greater the variety of desirable colors offered the public, the more peas the retailer sells. Try it and see.

Fourth; the cost is almost nil. One quart will dye about 2,500, or one cent per bunch of 25.

Fifth; usually florists need white or very light pink peas in quantity only occasionally, and at other times they may be dyed.

Sixth; in design work, such as the "Eastern Star," one needs yellow flowers that stand up well. At such times yellow carnations are of special service and may be made from white ones over night.

Seventh; try yellow, apricot or burnt orange peas with deep blue or purple in corsage work, etc.

Some, in making trial order, write as if they expect to be "skinned." All such are going to be agreeably surprised. If I were not sure the dye would do just as I claim, so it will bring repeat orders, I should not offer it for sale at all. I think life entirely too short for one to be anything else than "on the square." It it not practicable to offer free samples, and the dollar trial orders will not likely pay expenses while I am convincing you.

Some seem to think the flowers are dipped and the dye on the outside. We fill jelly glasses three-quarters full of the dye solution and stand stems of fresh cut peas in this in the evening, leaving them thus over night. In the morning lift them out, rinse dye off stems and stand them in fresh water as though just cut, and in a few minutes they may be bunched without staining the hands. But should any of this dye get on the hands, a little borax and water, or even soap lather, quickly takes it off.

PRICE, sufficient to make one quart, $1.00, prepaid. Six for $5.00

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

WILLIAM J. COLLINS, of Carters Tested Seeds Co., Boston, will sail on a trip to England and Scotland, June 26.

THE report from Newark, N. J., is that the last two weeks of May saw the largest sale of seeds of any time this year.

HAVE you reserved a room at the Peabody hotel, Memphis, for June 20 and 21, and one at the Statler hotel, St. Louis, June 22 to 24?

TRAVELERS in the seed trade seem to be resting. They consider it easier, as well as much less expensive, to see most of their customers at once at the coming conventions.

ACREAGE for the coming season is reported by John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles, to be slightly reduced on some of its specialties, but slightly increased on asters and zinnias.

ROY K. WHEELER, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Cal., and not L. W. Wheeler, as reported in The Review of May 26, was a visitor in Chicago the previous week. He attended a fraternal convention during his stay.

A SUDDEN drop in business has surprised some houses, both wholesale and retail. Of course, a drop is always expected at this time of the year, but it came so suddenly and business dropped to the minimum so quickly that much comment was occasioned.

AFTER the meeting of the Southern Seedsmen's Association, at Memphis, adjourns, Ralph B. Howe and H. A. Bertoli, of W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, will take the train for St. Louis to attend the convention there of the American Seed Trade Association.

THE outlook for domestic crimson clover seed production this year is gloomy. Reports submitted by growers and shippers to the United States Bureau of Markets indicate that the commercial supply of domestic seed of this crop will be even smaller than the 350,000-pound crop of last year.

THE recent heavy rainfall at Los Angeles has been succeeded by cold and cloudy weather, and crops are not advancing so rapidly as seedsmen would like to see them. The entrance of June brought a slight rise in temperature and some fine weather is hoped for; otherwise many crops will be light, if not an entire failure this year.

THE hand-to-mouth method of buying by retail seed dealers is enabling them to clean up their stocks by the close of the season, although the demand from farmers continues to be below normal. Reports submitted by retail dealers to the United States Bureau of Markets indicate that this condition is general. While many dealers expect a good demand for late-sown forage crop seeds, most of them are not looking for any last-minute rush, as the spirit of ultraconservatism appears to have a firm hold on the buying farmers. Prices generally are somewhat lower than a month ago, having followed the trend of wholesale prices in many cases. In strictly consuming sections, prices of late-sown forage crops have advanced,

FLOOD DAMAGE.

The floods that have damaged Pueblo, Colo., so badly have done more or less damage throughout the Arkansas valley. The J. C. Robinson Seed Co., Waterloo, Neb., reports that there may be no mail service for about ten days and it will be impossible to estimate crop damage until the water recedes. Much livestock has been killed and some homes injured, but it is hoped the water has not reached the most important parts of the district. Undoubtedly the acreage will be cut somewhat.

ORDER CATCHES PALM SEEDS.

The regulation of the Federal Horticultural Board, dated January, 1920, requiring that all shipments of palm seeds from Oceania be fumigated for twenty-four hours by carbon bisulphide, was enforced just as two shipments of 330 bushels of kentia seeds from Australia, the first of the season, were ready for distribution at San Francisco. It is feared that this fumigation will greatly reduce the germination, besides adding to the delivered cost of the seeds. The shipments were made under permit, a health and sterilization certificate was attached to each case, and all formalities were complied with. No reason is given by the F. H. B. explaining the necessity for the regulation.

BRITISHERS POSTPONE BUYING.

Protest against the increase in prices on French bulbs is not confined to the American trade. Several London houses have agreed that the prices asked are prohibitive and will not buy at the present figures. In a late issue of the Horticultural Trade-Journal the following communication is printed:

We recently had an opportunity of speaking to the undersigned London firms in respect of French bulbs and found them all in agreement with ourselves that the rates at present being asked by the growers are so prohibitive that the trade in these items will be still further diminished.

It was a common experience with them all—and we think with most other houses in the country—that last season's high prices resulted in a diminution of business in Roman hyacinths, etc., of approximately one-third, and to increase prices further—especially having regard to the fact that we are at present passing through a period of acute general trade depression—will about put the finishing touch. French bulbs will certainly not be worth handling if the growers maintain the rates at present being asked.

It is of interest to note that the French dealers or agents themselves express the opinion that the figures quoted by the growers are outrageous. Further, Dutch bulbs this autumn—in common with almost all other commodities—will be cheaper, and why the French growers should endeavor to obtain such absurd prices is a mystery.

In conclusion we may say the firms below have no intention whatsoever of buying at the present prices, and if we may make the suggestion, we would say the trade in general would be well advised to postpone purchasing.

FRENCH BULB SITUATION.

The French bulb situation is unchanged and there is talk of another meeting of importers, to be held, probably, next week. At the meeting at New York in May it was the consensus that no orders should be placed prior to a certain date unless the French syndicate brought its prices into line with the times. The date set is approaching rapidly and as yet the growers have not spoken.

Contrary to some reports, the nine American importers who cabled their views to France did not name a price beyond which they would not go; what they did state was their belief that if the previously announced high prices are insisted on, American requirements will be reduced to twenty-five per cent of a normal year's imports.

It is impossible to forecast the outcome at this distance. Until it is known the crop has been dug there is the possibility the French growers may elect to leave the greater number of their bulbs in the ground another year, which may safely be done with Paper Whites. If the crop is dug as usual, there will be greater probability prices will come

BRIDGEFORD AT LOS ANGELES.

J. M. Bridgeford, of Watkins & Simpson, London, England, arrived in Los Angeles Saturday afternoon, May 28, at 2:45, just an hour under two weeks since he left England by the Aquitania. His trip across country was made without a break, except a short visit to the Grand Canyon. He was met at the train by David Burpee and George W. Kerr, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., Philadelphia; Fred Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles; Daniel MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco, and Walter and J. C. Bodger, of John Bodger & Sons Co., Los Angeles. These gentlemen escorted him on a sight-seeing tour around Pasadena and through the private estate of H. E. Huntington, at San Marengo, afterwards assembling at the Jonathan Club for dinner, where they spent a pleasant evening. Mr. Bridgeford was delighted with the country around Los Angeles and was specially impressed with the horticulture, both ornamental and economic. He expects to spend two weeks in California, although his trip to America is to be a hurried one, and will then go as far north as Vancouver, crossing the Canadian Rockies and returning to New York by way of Chicago and Philadelphia.

WOULD HOLD EDEN TRACT.

G. Vanden Abeele, receiver for the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, at Eureka, Cal., is endeavoring to save the Eden tract, on which are located the company's nurseries, from passing into the hands of Rosaia Bros., as it will June 14 unless the claim they purchased is redeemed. The estate of the late C. W. Ward, which is the main stockholder as well as the chief creditor, planned to redeem the Eden tract with the proceeds of the sales of the Ward timber holdings. Owing to disagreement, the estate is not in position to redeem the property and Mr. Vanden Abeele has undertaken the responsibility of saving the situation.

Upon the assurance that the Eden property would be redeemed, heavy propagation was made and expenditures made to prepare as extensively as possible for future years' business. Therefore Mr. Vanden Abeele has no more than working capital in hand at present.

So he proposes that the Cottage Gardens Nurseries take title of the Eden property, redeeming it with the proceeds obtained from a $20,000 first mortgage on the property and the sale of the San Jose establishment. This would necessitate the release of all judgment liens by creditors, who would, according to his plan, receive a second mortgage for the amount of their indebtedness. The nineteen judgment creditors have claims amounting to $25,987.79. Mr. Vanden Abeele advises that a board of trustees be appointed, to whom all creditors would assign their claims.

HOLLAND BULB EXPORTS.

Exports of flowering bulbs from Holland in 1920 showed a decrease compared with the value of the exports in 1919, according to the recent report of the consul general at Rotterdam, but the decrease was in value rather than in volume and exports to the United States showed an increase. THE DUTCH BULB CROP

The early spring at Lisse, Holland, and the generally fine weather gave expectations of a first-class bulb crop. Then, however, dry weather set in and the general opinion of a crop equal to or better than last year's underwent a great change, state J. J. Grullemans & Sons, of Lisse. For weeks there was no rain of importance. If this does not come soon, bulbs may turn out to be much smaller than last year. The outlook at present is as follows:

Hyacinths are generally good, although in a great number of fields they show signs of suffering from drought.

Early tulips have suffered much, and there will be harvested a smaller bulb than last year. Darwins are, as a rule, looking better.

D. I. BUSHNELL'S ESTATE.

An inventory of the estate of David I. Bushnell, head of D. I. Bushnell & Co., St. Louis, Mo., who died April 30, shows personal property with a par value of $871,102.46 and realty consisting of his home at 3 Princeton avenue, University City.

The principal asset is listed as an account valued at $590,741. It was explained that this represents the value of Mr. Bushnell's interest in the seed company, which price, under a contract, his partner, Robert W. Pommer, has agreed to pay. The contract was dated October 30, 1918, and provided that the survivor would buy the other's interest at a price to be determined.

$145,067.14; notes, $3,328; cash, $201, and chattels, $2,062. Among the stock are 193 shares of the Bushnell-Pommer Realty Co., given at the par value of $100 a share. The actual value of this stock is said to be in excess of $100,000, which would make the total personal estate close to $1,000,000.

Mr. Bushnell made specific bequests in his will approximating $507,000, including a $100,000 bequest to his son, Professor David I. Bushnell, Jr., of Washington, D. C. The residue was prorated among the various beneficiaries, and if the estate equals $1,000,000 their legacies will be nearly doubled. Mr. Bushnell's divorced wife, to whom he gave $76,641 and the residence at 3830 Delmar boulevard when she divorced him, was not named as a beneficiary in the will.

$145,067.14; notes, $3,328; cash, $201, and chattels, $2,062. Among the stock are 193 shares of the Bushnell-Pommer Realty Co., given at the par value of $100 a share. The actual value of this stock is said to be in excess of $100,000, which would make the total personal estate close to $1,000,000.

Mr. Bushnell made specific bequests in his will approximating $507,000, including a $100,000 bequest to his son, Professor David I. Bushnell, Jr., of Washington, D. C. The residue was prorated among the various beneficiaries, and if the estate equals $1,000,000 their legacies will be nearly doubled. Mr. Bushnell's divorced wife, to whom he gave $76,641 and the residence at 3830 Delmar boulevard when she divorced him, was not named as a beneficiary in the will.

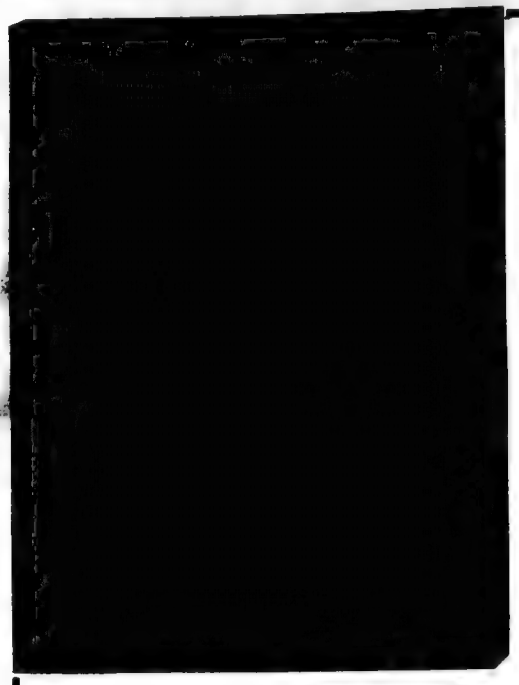
McHUTCHISON IN COURT.

The New York city authorities are trying to prevent McHutchison & Co. from storing raffia in their own building in excess of five tons under a city ordinance which prevents the storage of straw, paper, excelsior and inflammable animal or vegetable fibers in the form of scraps and clippings. McHutchison & Co. usually carry in stock from forty to 120 tons, 400 to 1,200 bales, and are contesting the order in the courts. Three days were occupied by the trial, several well known nurserymen and seedsmen testifying for the firm. Decision was expected June 13.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.



The J. J. Wilson Seed Co., Newark, N. J., is extending the field of seed supply to South America, mentioning the receipt of a large order to include many specialties in flowers and vegetables. A Spanish correspondent will be a needed part of the seed establishment of the future, predicts Mr. Wilson, who agrees that the placing of seed contracts for next season's delivery will be most carefully done.

Harry Holmes, of the Holmes Seed Co., Harrisburg, Pa., is confined to his home with rheumatism, which he hopes to conquer.

Alexander Forbes & Co., Newark, N. J., found business affected by the weather, but looked for much return sowing.

Martin C. Ribsam, Trenton, N. J., reports much of the stock supplied customers in southern New Jersey suffered from the late frosts and he is endeavoring to assist his seed patrons in every way, to show practical sympathy.

Walter S. Schell, Harrisburg, Pa., reports a good general seed demand, having felt the effect of the cold spell, which apparently was country-wide. The new store, with its 40,000 square feet of floor space, is possibly the largest of its kind and must be a big factor toward a greater volume of trade, which can now be satisfactorily handled. W. M.

Pink Part Publicity.

At St. Valentine's day, Max Cohen, who operates the Jackson Floral Shop, doing a neighborhood trade near the corner of Sixty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue, on the far south side of the city, took twenty-four orders for out-of-town delivery—but he did not receive any orders from out-of-town for Chicago delivery. As Mr. Cohen transferred each of his outgoing orders to one or another of the advertisers in the Pink Part of The Review, it was a natural conclusion that there was where he should put his card to let the trade know of his facilities for making Chicago deliveries. He did it. His first ad, only four inches, appeared April 21. Within the next seventeen days he received more than forty orders by wire. They came from all over America and went to all corners of Chicago, but as the average size was a little over $5 he could well afford to send a messenger with each delivery.

Is it any wonder Mr. Cohen called The Review on the telephone to say how pleased he is?

S. A. F. NEWS

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

The Washington Convention.

President Roland and Secretary Young were in Washington Wednesday, June 1, when they met with the advisory committee on the trade exhibition, Z. D. Blackistone, David Grillbortzer and Adolph E. Gude, the latter acting for his father, Vice-president Adolph Gude, who was unavoidably absent from the city. It was found that all details in the arrangements for the exhibition were being worked out smoothly, and preparations were up to date in every respect. A visit was made to the convention hall, where it was found that plenty of space would be available to accommodate all applicants for space. President Roland was glad to be assured on this point, as he had been a little in doubt as to the hall's capacity.

Additions to the list of exhibitors are constant, and the prospects are that the entire area as laid off on the official plan will be taken up before the convention opens. The following exhibitors have made space reservations within the past few days:

Taiyo Trading Co., New York.
Horticultural Publishing Co., Boston, Mass.
Cohen & Hiller, New York.
Kervan Co., New York.
C. S. Ford Co., Philadelphia.
Poultry Feed Co., Chicago.

While in Washington, the secretary was pleased to meet Past-presidents Robert Craig and Theodore Wirth, and others of our members who have been prominent in the work of the society in the past. Judge William F. Gude, our Washington representative, while busy with the duties of his new office, found time, as usual, to escort the visitors to the various public departments requiring their attention, thus saving much valuable time. In the afternoon the garden of Dr. Van Fleet, at Bell Station, was visited, and the doctor's work in rose production proved highly impressive. The new roses there, some of them especially beautiful, should prove valuable acquisitions to the list of commercial varieties. It is learned that these new roses will be sent out through the medium of the American Rose Society.

Past-vice-president George W. Hess, superintendent of the United States Botanical Garden, also devoted much time to the visitors, escorting them to various places of interest horticulturally.

The Convention Program.

The official program for the convention is now in course of preparation and will be completed for mailing to members at least thirty days before the opening date of the convention. Some interesting addresses have already been arranged for, including one by F. J. Giblin, of Utica, N. Y., on "Greenhouse Heating Up-to-Date," one by L. D. Fernald, of the New York Post, on "Publicity for Florists," and one by Prof. L. C. Corbett, of the bureau of plant industry, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., on "The Pre-

FLOWERS AND CO-OPERATION

Let us learn from the flowers the lesson of co-operation. A single flower, growing alone, makes no great show. Many flowers, growing in harmony, will transfigure even a desert.

National Publicity Campaign.

The time when the publicity committee will make the contracts for the next series of advertisements in the national magazines is fast approaching. The funds at present available to cover these contracts and settle outstanding liabilities are not large; in fact, do not permit of what the committee feel would be a proper effort to revive the slogan, "Say It with Flowers," after the dormant period now happily ending. The first of this advertising should reach 12,000,000 or more people, just as some of our former advertising did. As anyone conversant with magazine advertising knows, this means an expenditure of several thousand dollars. All florists who have not yet subscribed to the campaign fund are urged to send in their subscriptions now, thus enabling the committee to carry out its plans to the full. It is not necessary to describe further our previous success. Suffice it to say that the slogan has been coveted by dozens of other industries and perverted by many to suit their own conditions. Still, it is recognized by the public that these perversions do but reflect the slogan of the florists, and we gain rather than lose by the piracies. It is high time that the slogan should again be spread over the country. Its influence is worth many times more than it has cost or will cost us, and it is up to the trade to preserve this influence, a condition which can only come through a further expenditure of money to provide fuel for the publicity fire.

Those in the trade who have not yet sent in checks to cover the amounts of their subscription guarantees are also urged to make remittance without further delay. The money is greatly needed, as the committee do not see their way to finance the contracts they are arranging to place with undischarged guarantees. Subscriptions received for 1921 amount to $25,188.60,

The Bigness Of Littleness

Every morning there is a single fresh rose put on the desk of the president of one of the big banks of New York. Not a bunch of roses, mind you, renewed after some of them begin showing their age. But a single fresh rose every morning.

Every morning all the officers have a fresh carnation for their coat lapel.

We furnished these flowers for months before any particular comment came to the bank. Then, of a sudden, people started remarking on the flowers—the women customers among the first, of course.

Those flowers, in their token of friendliness, had an effect on the officers that was apparently instrumental in breaking down a former unapproachableness.
A very little thing had accomplished a big thing.

On first thought, it may seem like rather small business to bother with delivering one rose and a half dozen carnations.
But, frankly, we don't find it so.
It has paid us big, in indirect ways.

If more of us would only realize that the biggest part of our present direct business originally came in an indirect way, we could double and triple our direct business.

All of which particularly applies to F. T. D. business.

Now is a good time to locate positions for the slogan billboards. A considerable number of these billboards are still on hand and immediate shipments of them can be made at the regular price, $50 each. One of these boards on your property, Mr. Florist, would mean a lot of publicity for you, and also for our industry. The price represents the actual cost, and a low cost at that.

The secretary has just received a letter, dated at Seattle, from J. F. Ammann, now in the west on a tour in the interests of the campaign, in which he states that his party is meeting with splendid success wherever it goes. In each city so far visited an allied trade organization has been formed, and this means permanent aid in our publicity work.

national flower show to be held in Cleveland next spring are nearly completed, and copies of the finished plan will soon be ready for mailing. Many inquiries are already coming to the secretary's office in regard to trade space, as well as to other features planned for this great show. It is time now to plan for exhibits in the most important classes in the competitive section of the show, of which the one covering the grand capital prize of $5,000 is most prominent. Anyone who has not already received a copy of the preliminary schedule should write to the secretary for one. It may be said that the committee will be grateful for the promise of even a small exhibit. Every grower within safe shipping distance of Cleveland could do something in the way of an exhibit, looking not so much for personal distinction as for an exposition of florists' products

Membership Dues.

Bills for membership dues have been sent to all who are in arrears, and it will facilitate the work of the secretary's office a great deal if prompt remittances are made, so that a favorable financial report may be made at the proper time before the convention. Receipts for checks will not be sent to members unless requests for same are made at time of remittance, the return of the check through the bank, properly endorsed, being considered sufficient. Our executive board believes that much clerical work, and not a little printing and mailing expense, are saved by dispensing with the formal receipt.

Department of Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that the following new plants have been submitted for registration by the society:

Membership Week.

The week starting Sunday, June 12, is to be membership week in the drive for new members for the S. A. F. Although most of the members have been working hard every week during the whole campaign, a special day has been designated with the hope that all members will have an incentive to put forth every effort and to work even harder than heretofore. In the desire to make this week as productive of results as possible, the following letter has been sent out to all members of the society:

"We sincerely hope you have already secured the one new member in our 'every member get a member' canvass and we hope, too, that you will not stop at that, for remember, we have a few weak brothers who will 'lay down on the job.' Then, too, a few are so situated that they can not make good. So, in order to make up for any deficiency in our campaign, just put in a few extra ones.

"We have just lots of 'live wires.' Come, get into that class and we shall reach our goal easily. Our aim is to double the membership in this drive.

The Market.

Business last week, including Memorial day, was splendid. The hot weather the first part of the week affected shipments greatly; in fact, the quality of the local consignments showed plainly the effects of the hot wave. The west end merchants, who do most of the decorating for the social functions, say they had a hard time getting stock of good quality for their orders.

There are yet two weeks before the social events come to a close, and, according to the daily papers, there will be many weddings up to June 15, and school work up to that time will also keep the trade busy. A great deal of stock will be needed to work up the orders. The wholesale market has plenty of stock in the lower grades, but really first-class stock has been limited all week. In roses, Premier, Columbia and Ophelia have been in good supply all week, and the demand was heavy some days. White Killarney had the best call, but fancy stock was scarce. Carnations, too, are becoming small in bloom. The supply has been about equal to the demand, with locally grown stock preferred.

Sweet peas have little value, as the bulk of the stock is of the short-stemmed variety, and the supply is more than the demand can consume. A fine lot of valley was noticed all week, but it brought a relatively low price. Peonies are nearly over for the season, still last week they were plentiful, but the quality was sadly missing. Easter lilies of good quality can be had daily.

Cape jasmines from the south were not so heavy as expected last week, but the market had plenty for the demand. Cornflowers, calendulas, delphiniums and snapdragons sold well. Gladiolus consignments were heavy and the best clean up daily.

All greens are in good supply. Asparagus, smilax, adiantum, galax and fancy and dagger ferns have been in heavy demand.

This meeting was called to clean up the year's business. The secretary's report showed that more money had been contributed during the last year than during any previous year, and that the twenty-five per cent which is to go to the national publicity committee should, by next month, reach the $1,500 mark.

All bills to date, which amounted to $518, were ordered paid, so that a clean slate can be turned over to the proposed Allied Florists' Trade Association, which came up for a lengthy discussion. It was decided to recommend, at the Louis Association of Gardeners was held Sunday, June 5, at 9:30 a. m., at the Missouri Botanical Garden. The meeting was called at the early hour in order to allow time for a trip through the garden after the meeting. President George H. Pring and Secretary Hugo Schaff are quite enthusiastic over the good attendance of the members at the recent meetings. As the meetings will be held outdoors all summer, the attendance should increase.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held its monthly meeting in Kirkwood, Mo., at the establishment of W. A. Rowe Co. The meeting was well attended, and much important business was transacted. The following newly-elected officers were installed to hold offices for the following year: President, Martin Ude; vice-president, George Hartmann; secretary, Joseph best that the district has ever had. J. W. Ross has already started to boom the meeting. The flower show in connection with the meeting will be held in the new theater building, which will be completed by that time. All the meetings will be held in the City hall and Mr. Ross says that his gladiolus farm will be in full bloom. All the new varieties are grown at this farm, and it will well be worth the trip to Centralia to see it.

All present took part and favored the organization of such an association. The recent big flower days also were discussed. The meeting was then adjourned to meet again the first Wednesday in July.

The trustees of the Florists' Club, L. Baumann, Jules Bourdet and Oscar Ruff, say that they will announce the date and place of holding the florists' annual outing at this week's Florists' Club meeting. They say that several special prizes have already been sent in.

L. H. Archias, Sedalia, Mo., the president of the Missouri State Florists' Association, contemplates calling a meeting of the directors of the association sometime during this month. Announcements of the date of the meeting, which will be held at Sedalia, will be ready next week.

Kirby Persley, of Little Rock, Ark., was a visitor June 3. He was a guest of H. G. Berning, who took him for an automobile tour to visit the trade.

The florists at Belleville, Ill., Gust W. Grossart, Henry Emunds, Walter E. Ogle, A. G. Fehrn and Matthew Schoenberger, all report that their Memorial day business this year was the best ever, especially in bedding plants of all kinds.

At East St. Louis, Grimm & Gorly's branch store, Haun & Wies, Miss Doussard and P. C. Mirring, all say that all last week, including Memorial day, they were kept rushing every day. Wedding work and school commencements all this month from now on should keep them busy.

George Madsen, head of the Alton Floral Co., and Joseph Krug, of Alton, Ill., had plenty to do Memorial day, for their business was greatly increased over last year's Memorial day.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Barnard, of the Rosery, celebrated their fourth wedding anniversary May 29. The Rosery has become one of the leading floral establishments of the north end.

Robert Newcomb, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., spent May 1 in St. Louis with friends. He was on his way home. J. J. B.

The Market.

There was a shortage in all lines of stock on the market last week; the supply was away below normal. But, when we say this, on what basis are we going to make comparison? It was simply a case of not enough supply to meet the demand. There was nothing big going on to cause any extra demand; there was just a steady business demand; the shortage of stock alone made it seem abnormal. This seems to be becoming a chronic condition. True, since Easter, owing principally to weather conditions, we have had several gluts, but in most cases the cry has been a shortage. On several occasions the writer has noted store windows without a cut flower, a common sight to the pedestrians who pass; palms and foliage plants have to be depended upon for decorations. Often the retailer is fortunate to obtain sufficient cut stock to fill his orders. When you inquire the reason for the shortage, everyone has a different excuse to offer, but be this as it may, the fact remains that it is more frequently the case that there is insufficient stock to meet the demand.

This has been the condition all through the season, and yet, I am told, there was more glass devoted to cut stock this winter than ever before. We have only to go back a few years, to before the war; did anyone ever hear of such a condition that lasted any length of time? The writer can see but one answer to this puzzle; the demand for cut flowers has increased and production has not increased in the same proportion.

Memorial Day Business.

Owing to its geographical position, Baltimore was never much of a Memorial day flower city; those whose sympathies were with the Confederacy probably predominate. But this year there was a new order of things; no doubt we were not prepared for it. To use the words of the political spellbinder, there was no north nor south; just one big city bent on paying homage to her sons who had made the supreme sacrifice. What made the day more impressive was that, on the Saturday before, twenty-six bodies of Baltimore boys arrived from France; these were buried Memorial day. The tolling of the bells of the city, as the train bearing the bodies arrived at Camden station, perhaps put the spirit of Memorial day into the hearts of the people. It was a big flower day. Saturday was the big day on the market. The retailers, who are now becoming crafty over the shortage of flowers, as they saw orders piling up for Monday, made a run on the market that was in many respects like a run on a bank. Iceboxes, which had been stocked up earlier in the week, were soon emptied, and it was not long until there was not a flower in sight. I heard a salesman in one wholesale house say it was equal to a Christmas rush; some stores actually had to close their doors as early as 10 a. m. They had not enough stock to fill the orders on their books, without thinking of sales.

In connection with Memorial day, there was a ceremony in Druid Hill park that was a most pretty and impressive one. There is a grove of trees, a tree for each state in the Union, with the name of the state on it, forty-eight in all. The War Mothers of each state in the Union raised a subscription and sent it to the president of the association in Baltimore, to lay a floral offering at the base of each tree in memory of the sons of that state who died in France. William F. Keys, Jr., had charge of this, and, with flowers as scarce as they were, it was no small job to get out forty-eight floral offerings such as were used in this ceremony. I have no idea who thought of this method to remember those boys now lying in France, but does this not offer a suggestion of what might be done by the florists to make Memorial day one of the greatest flower days of the year?

committee got down to work in earnest Monday, May 30. The chairman, Joseph S. Merritt, was in the chair. It was decided to hold a street parade October 15, in which a loving cup will be offered as first prize for the best decorated float entered by a florist, and a like cup for anyone not connected with the business, nothing but natural flowers to be used in the decoration, with a second and third cash prize in each case. It was then agreed to hold a big flower show in Lehman's hall, three weeks later, when chrysanthemums will be at their height. Chairman Merritt appointed the following subcommittees to have charge of the various features:

Parade committee: John J. Perry, chairman; J. M. Towner, Charles Hochstead, William Bauer, William F. Keys, Jr., Chas. Ulrich and J. H. DeGroot.

Decorating committee: George Black, chairman; Charles Paterson, George Eberle, William F. Ekas, Robert L. Graham, Jr., Robert Johnston, Thomas Stevenson and Gilbert Daily.

Trade exhibit committee: William F. Feast, chairman; Robert L. Graham, Sr., Herman Cook, William J. Johnston, James Hamilton and Richard Vincent.

Memorial Day Business.

open Sunday and also for a few hours on Memorial day, to help take care of the florists' requirements. Peonies were uncertain at the beginning of the holiday, but florists were able to take care of the demand, although, from reports, the quality of the peonies was not so good as it should have been, because the weather was exceptionally warm. Stock in general was plentiful and prices were reasonable. There was a fair supply of carnations, and roses were also received in fair quantities. Delphinium was in the market. Easter and calla lilies were in demand and sold upon sight. Quantities of sweet peas were received, but were of poor quality, the weather being too hot for shipping. Some fine gladioli were in this market and were also sold upon sight. Summing up the entire business, it was a satisfactory holiday for all concerned. Plantsmen report a large business; they were closed up on nearly all their stock at good prices.

Various Notes.

Last week Kaufmann's department store celebrated its fiftieth anniversary.

The retail florists found that the majority of manufacturers and other close friends of Kaufmann's showed their sentiments by "Saying It with Flowers." The employees of the store showed their appreciation by sending a floral offering representing an urn which comprised 3,000 white, Richmond and American Beauty roses. Each rose supplied represented an employee. This design was made by the A. W. Smith Co. The majority of other local florists in this city, including the McClements Co., E. A. Williams, Randolph & McClements, A. Krongold and D. Hill & Co., also had many floral baskets for this occasion.

Charles S. Crall, of the I. S. Crall Co., Monongahela, Pa., expects to leave shortly for the west.

Joseph Jordan, brother of Carrie Jordan, one of the well known florists in the Pittsburgh market, has been confined to his home the last ten days with pneumonia. It has been reported that Mr. Jordan is severely ill.

Changeable weather last week held the market in check, so much so that peonies are still arriving in good quantities. did quality delphinium is seen and sells readily. Hardy larkspur is seen, but the demand is small. Sweet peas have scarcely been seen, most of the growers being through with them for this season. With good weather, outdoor peas will be on the market in two or three weeks. Calendulas are plentiful, but the quality is on the decline. There is a good supply of carnations on the market and the demand is good. Snapdragon is shortening considerably. Sweet alyssum, candytuft and mignonette arrive slowly and clear well. Green goods are none too plentiful, but the demand is good.

Various Notes.

Miss Marion Taft, of George B. Hart's office force, made the trip to Coburg, Memorial day, on the steamer Ontario II.

Hugo Teute is cutting a fair quantity of excellent gladioli which are well spiked, and for which he finds a ready sale.

Vick & Hill, Inc., are shipping some particularly good delphiniums to the local market. They are long in stem and sell readily.

The stork visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Huber, Wednesday, June 1, and presented them with a baby boy, Donald Jack, who weighed seven and one-half pounds at birth. Both mother and baby are doing well.

Watson Bros., of West Webster, N. Y., are cutting a fair quantity of outdoor flowers, which include some good pink, red and maroon pyrethrums, sweet williams, aquilegias and gaillardias.

During the week an attractive window display was shown by J. B. Keller Sons. The entire window space was given up to oriental poppies and the brilliant effect was most attractive.

John Orgar is growing some hardy gypsophila. His sweet williams, candytuft and gaillardias are almost ready to cut.

T. Guy Duey, of the Schack Artificial Flower Co., Chicago, and Dewey Lester, of New York, were visitors to the trade last week.

Max the Florist reports good business, especially in funeral work, the demand for which has been large the last two or three weeks.

Alberts the Florist has just received a good shipment of pottery, including hanging baskets, porch vases and urns. This was his main window display last week.

morial day, which helped to create a greater demand. The great supply of outside flowers did not seem to affect the demand for greenhouse stock, as a number of the florists could not supply the demand. Peonies sold at $8 and $10 per hundred. Carnations sold at $8 per hundred, and roses, from $8 to $15 per hundred. Cape jasmines, delphiniums and small stock of all kinds sold well.

Various Notes.

C. A. Bitner, one of the older florists of this city, had to discontinue his business during the prolonged illness and death of his wife. Mr. Bitner is now dismantling his greenhouses and will use the land for real estate purposes.

The Knecht-Freese Floral Co. reports a good business and that everything sold out Saturday and Sunday preceding Memorial day. The planting of their houses is just about finished. Some fine Premier stock is seen at this establishment.

The Flick Floral Co. reports a heavy demand, both in bedding stock and cut flowers. Miss Della Dexter, bookkeeper for this firm, is away on her vacation.

The Lanternier Florists are busy with June weddings, both in the city and surrounding towns. In connection with the idea of June weddings, they have an attractive window decoration, consisting of a wedding party—bride and groom and all the attendants with their bouquets. Palms and ferns and attractive little novelties are used. For Memorial day this firm was all sold out of bedding stock, and was busy with an unusual amount of other orders. Some fine gladioli are being cut at the greenhouses.

The Doswell Floral Co. was unusually busy this year at the greenhouses at the cemetery. Hundreds of bouquets were made each night and went rapidly the following morning. Plants were all sold out. This firm is contemplating the Frat-M's are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-M's a trial; you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

ELCO BRAND OF RIBBONS

OMAHA, NEB.

The Market.

Memorial day and the holiday rush are over once more, and most of the Omaha retailers are well pleased with their sales. Although the sales were not nearly so large as in other years, yet almost everyone cleaned up and at a nice margin. Retailers were afraid to buy heavily, and it was only through this cautious buying that they were able to clean up nicely.

The weather for the last two weeks has been extremely warm, and nearly every flower in sight cropped in, with the result that there was an overabundance of flowers, many of an inferior quality. The local peonies were poor, some showing the effects of the late frost and others sunburned. Then, there were many of inferior size. The local growers tried to hold the price up at the start, but were mighty glad to move them at all on Saturday, May 28. Saturday and Sunday, May 28 and 29, found a great many street peddlers disposing of peonies at unusually low prices.

Carnations were poor; they were soft and many were burned. There were some nice Columbia and Premier roses on the market. Easter lilies were plentiful. Callas are getting small. Sweet peas are nearly gone. Gladioli are coming on in fine shape. Nearly all the large growers are cutting fine Pendleton and Francis King. Coreopsis is arriving in unlimited amounts. There is no valley on the market now. Shasta daisies, although short-stemmed, are fine.

Various Notes.

The American Legion put on a peony drive for the disabled veterans Saturday, June 4, and brought in over $1,500. They started out with peonies, but soon were forced to fall back on almost any flower, and the market was completely cleaned out. It was the first time the Legion had tried anything of this sort, and the results were so gratifying that the officers are going to try to make it a national day. This will be threshed out at the convention of the American Legion this summer.

Plans are under way for an entertainment to be given J. F. Ammann and Hilmer V. Swenson on their trip through here during the latter part of June. An effort will be made to get as many of the florists of the state as possible to attend this meeting.

L. R. BOHANNON, Always At Your Service

The extreme hot weather always makes it hard on the Florist, hard on the Grower because it burns him under glass, hard on the Commission Man or Wholesaler, because no matter how fresh the flowers and how carefully they are packed, they arrive in bad shape. The retailer has his share of trouble, for no matter where he orders his flowers they are unsatisfactory.

Why all this gloom? It has been so for years, and we must accept conditions as they are and not blame one another. We are trying to do something which will better conditions by co-operating with one of the largest growers in Kansas City and have now arranged to have an abundance of flowers which can be used during this hot weather. We have 40 acres of flowers with which we can supply you until "Frost Flies."

Our plan is to ship the flowers fresh from the field in various priced assortments, just as many as you like. Let us suggest that you try a $5, $10 or $20 assortment, our selection, and see if they won't help your business.

We are prepared to ship now Delphiniums, Larkspurs, Gladioli, a very fine lot coming in each day, Sweet William, Candytuft, Gaillardia, Coreopsis, Cornflowers, old-fashioned Garden Pinks and many other varieties which will be coming into bloom all summer.

We feel sure that the flowers which we will have for you this season will help you in a time of need and if you arrange to have flowers you can do a good business, not so much as in the winter, but by having an assortment of stock you can increase your summer business.

Always at your Service.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SEATTLE WILL ADVERTISE.

Association Formed.

Following an enthusiastically attended meeting and banquet of the Florists' Association of Seattle, held at the New Washington hotel May 23, plans were completed for the inauguration of an advertising campaign. The retailers and growers have signed up for one year's coöperative advertising on the following basis: Retailers who do not grow their own stock are listed in Class 1 and will pay into the advertising fund one per cent of their total purchases. Growers who do not retail any of their stock are listed in Class 2 and will also pay into the advertising fund one per cent of their sales. Retail growers compose Class 3 and will pay into the cooperative advertising fund one-half of one per cent of their entire turnover. These percentages are accepted as the most likely combination possible to help all divisions of the trade.

Collection will be made through the retailers. That is, when the retailer pays a grower's bill at the end of the month, he will deduct one per cent for the advertising fund and add to it the one per cent for his own share. The collection of this fund is to start here June 1, and it is expected that by September 1 there will be a sufficiently large fund on hand to warrant the opening of the local advertising campaign.

Members Enthusiastic.

The florists in attendance were enthusiastic over the prospects for real developments from this coöperative advertising campaign, and the announcement that the Tacoma trade has also lined up on a similar campaign is taken as assurance that the work will succeed. The plan for advertising came as the climax to one of the most interesting meetings yet held by the association.

The meeting was called to order after a banquet in the New Washington hotel, which drew comments from the guests of honor that this offered the most unusual decorations yet seen on their trip. The center of the long table was made into a chain of mountains, through the use of rocks and moss, and miniature lakes and forests were produced by the use of mirrors and greens. The walls of the room were entirely hidden by fir boughs and specially painted murals showing typical northwestern scenes were set in. These were done for this event by A. E. Moore, and the artist received merited commendation on their high standard. Dinner was served in honor of the visitors, J. F. Ammann, former president of the Society of American Florists, and Hilmer V. Swenson, secretary of the Allied Florists' Association of Chicago.

Following the service of dinner, the meeting was called to order by Dr. Walter A. Moore, president of the local association, who first presented the committee which had handled the decorations. These were G. V. Peterson, chairman; A. E. Moore, Raymond V. Kester, Tom Rhoades, E. W. Osborne, David Lenchner and Charles C. Cole. The trees were brought in by Sam McMonnies and Gus Orgren, while Alexander and Jack J. Sherbeck supplied the moss. William Goldsbary, secretary of the association, then read the minutes of the previous meeting, after which Mr. Swenson was presented.

Visitors Show Way.

Using a set of lantern slides, Mr. Swenson told of the advertising campaign as carried on by the Allied Florists' Club of Chicago, of how it had affected the sales there and of the help it had been in developing new outlets for flowers. The running comments accompanying the slides were valuable in bringing out just what each particular piece of copy was featuring and drove home to the florists the message of cooperative advertising in a way which nothing else could have done.

Mr. Ammann was then called on by the chair. With a vision of the possibilities of coöperation, he took the assembled florists along with him until at the finish there was not the slightest doubt about the advisability of the proposed campaign.

At the close of Mr. Ammann's talk, the motion was quickly put that the secretary of the local association read the agreement drawn up to cover this year's advertising campaign, after which various angles of the situation were discussed on the floor by Thomas Wylie, William Desmond, Frank Chervenka, C. H. Benson, G. W. Scott, Ralph Richardson, F. G. Hasch, Frank Bell, W. M. Beall, Lambert C. Peterson, G. M. Trafton, J. A. Boyce, G. Lawlor, Felix Rosaia and Victor Johnson. A unanimous vote to carry out the plan was then taken, and the meeting adjourned.

Dr. Walter A. Moore.
(President of the Seattle Florists' Association.)

Those Present.

Those attending included Fred W. Winters, P. Wheadon, J. P. Woodward, John Van Aalst, George M. Trafton, I. P. Taylor, of Tacoma; Jack Sahlix, G. W. Scott, M. A. Memorial day's coming on Monday this year caused the business to be spread over at least three days, and there are indications that a much larger volume of business was done this year than in any year preceding. Biggest of all was the demand for such flowers as statice, strawflowers, rhodanthe and similar stock for wreaths, bouquets and other devices, both for shipping and local use. This started in much earlier than usual and kept up until the end, the amount used being enormous and far beyond anything ever done here before. Had it not been for this, flowers would have been scarcer. As it was, there was a shortage of gladioli, good Shasta and yellow daisies, callas, outdoor carnations and other medium-priced decorative stock. Roses were well up to the demand and, owing to the cool weather, particularly good. Had the weather at points shipped to been as cool as at Los Angeles, there would have been few complaints as to arrivals, but from points in Arizona, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Texas, hot weather was reported and some pre-holiday complaints were heard, making shippers anxious as to how the big shipments would arrive. For some reason, possibly the recent rains, field carnations were anything but first-class, indoor stock being better. Valley is in fine shape, and as there is much Cattleya gigas in bloom, this and C. Mossiæ insure plenty of orchids. From now on doubtless prices on all classes of stock will favor the buyer, this referring especially to outdoor varieties. In plants there is a good showing of hydrangeas, some rhododendrons and plenty of good ferns and palms. Greens of all kinds are plentiful, but plumosus in particular is not of good quality, except from a few of the best growers.

WE CLOSE SUNDAYS

American Florists' Exchange called for the evening of May 31, there was a good attendance. President H. N. Gage was in the chair, the other directors present being Tom Wright and Albert Goldenson. The financial statement showed rents well paid up and a good, healthy-looking balance in the bank, with all calls on the treasury met. The matter of auctioneering off the stall space instead of drawing lots was up for discussion and given the sanction of the majority of stockholders. The result was that some of the more favored spaces brought more than double the amount previously assessed them by the directors, showing plainly that growers appreciate their value. For the benefit of growers who do not wish regular spaces there was space set aside on which their stock will be displayed and sold on a percentage basis. The rule that no retailing be allowed was ordered strictly enforced.

Various Notes.

Tassano Bros. were apparently the first on the market with cut dahlias, white and pink ones being sent in from the Artesia nursery. Angelo Tassano says the company's nursery is right in the path of oil developments, so there is a chance of their being in the Rockefeller class yet. In the meantime he is not neglecting the nursery end, and is bringing in fine stock daily.

A fine lot of French hydrangeas in full bloom are shown by W. Armacost & Co., the plants being well developed and of varied colors. Mr. Williamson says that the Memorial day business was the best they ever had.

Douglas Fraser, of Fraser & Son, Pasadena, is showing an attractive variety of Chrysanthemum tricolor, painted daisy, in which the center is prettily quilled like an anemone, and of extra fine color.

Wright's Flower Shop was a busy place last week and all records for Memorial day business went by the board. At the greenhouses some magnificent Cattleya gigas are seen, some in full bloom, with many others coming rapidly. The new fern, Adiantum Wrightii, is being heavily propagated, several houses of carnations having been thrown out to make room for the stock, which is rapidly being increased. It is a noteworthy fact that fronds of this fern are shipped to Chicago and arrive in such good condition that Mr. Wright's agent can sell plants by exhibiting these fronds.

In two weeks the H. N. Gage Co. cleaned out 150 pounds of Asparagus plumosus seed, this being a little remarkable, as the seed was harvested so late in the season, when usually the

Mr. Cut Flower Grower! Plant Fraser's Strain, they are first in size and otherwise.

CALENDULA King of Kings (Fraser's Production)

We believe this strain of Calendula has a great future before it. A Golden progeny of the famous Double Orange King. Color: Dazzling orange. The flowers are larger and the blue-black disk smaller, with broad overlaid petals. Habit: 2 feet, with fine erect heads and stiff stems, and for these reasons will be in great demand for the flower market. Trade pkt., $1.00; Ounce, $2.50.

NEW MYOSOTIS President Harding Blue: (Fraser's Introduction) Winter-flowering.

This new Winter-flowering Myosotis (Forget-me-not) is the result of a carefully thought-out cross, said by some experts to surpass any other strain yet offered. Color: Harding Blue. Habit: Bold and branching, forming open bushes from 18 to 20 inches high and of equal diameter, extra vigorous sprays of bloom last long as cut flowers. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

COSMOS Extra Early Single Dahlia-Flowered (Fraser's Selection)

A very fine strain, the result of many years' careful selection. Its points for earliness, size, color and productiveness are good all round. Height: 4 feet, with flowers of splendid substance, resembling giant single Dahlia flowers and stiff stems, unusual in the older varieties. The most profitable cutting cosmos in cultivation. We are offering 2 separate colors: Dahlia White, Dahlia Pink, Dahlia Mixed. Trade pkt., $1.00; 3 Trade pkts., $2.00.

R. G. FRASER & SON, Wholesale Growers, "Busch Gardens," PASADENA, CALIF.

business for this is past. Asked about Memorial day business, Mr. Gage said, "Everything sold out clean."

H. Amling, of the E. C. Amling Co., is putting in a good deal of his time at the Sawtelle place now, where planting is going on freely. At the store a good shipping business for Memorial day was the report.

Paul Miller, of the California Floral Co., said that everything sold on Memorial day, and so it appeared, the place being practically empty the following morning.

Amling Bros. have four of the new houses glazed at Santa Ana and a carload of rose plants on the way from the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.

F. H. Howard and his party returned from the wilds, all looking much better for the change and reporting a fine time.

A. Beverley, of the Mission Oak Nursery, Santa Barbara, is in the city this week on one of his periodical buying trips. He reports business good.

C. C. Thomas, manager at Lichtenberg's, says Memorial day trade was excellent. H. R. R.

The Market.

There are plenty of good roses in the market, and indications point to the crop remaining in for some time. Carnations are scarce, but the quality is good. Sweet peas are plentiful, but the crop has not been up to the usual standard of quality this year. Apparently, neither sweet peas nor garden peas are at their best in California after an exceptionally rainy winter. Aphis is reported on the sweet peas in some sections of the state, but traces of it are not observable on those coming into the San Francisco market. Gladioli are a feature of the market, especially Halley, which is just becoming plentiful. There are enough orchids, gardenias and lilies of the valley for the bridal work that is a feature of the June trade. Baby roses, while not particularly plentiful, are to be had. Easter lilies are still on the market, as are ranunculi and peonies.

of business they transacted, while others say that the trade, although satisfactory, would have been better locally if the rain had held off. The rain seems to have been limited to the bay section, and it in no way interfered with the shipping, which was of considerable volume.

Tuesday, June 7, the San Francisco florists met J. F. Ammann, secretary of the National Flower Growers' Association and chairman of the membership committee of the Society of American Florists, and H. V. Swenson, of the publicity service bureau of the S. A. F., both of whom are passing through San Francisco on their western tour. Angelo Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has been in communication with these gentlemen for some weeks, and he has been instrumental in arranging for them to appear before the members of the San Francisco Retail Florists' Association.

From the growers' and shippers' standpoint, strawflowers are rapidly gaining in popularity in California, and indications point to their being more extensively cultivated in the near future. The C. Kooyman Co. is devoting an especial amount of attention to strawflowers this summer; the ceiling of the store looks like an inverted field of helichrysum, for the approved method of drying is to hang the flowers head downward.

I. Inque, of the United Flower & Supply Co., said, "While we shall still deal in cut flowers, the company is henceforth to extend its cultivation of acroclinium and helichrysum. Special drying houses for them have been built. Strawflowers commend themselves to us, because they are not so perishable as most flowers, and they ship as well in July as in December. For that reason we plan to specialize in them."

Domoto Bros. have large stocks of roses and Japanese lilies coming from their nurseries. They say this is fortunate, as the former are in demand for weddings and the latter for funerals, of which there have been a great many recently.

Enomoto & Co. say that their Memorial day business far exceeded that of last year.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. is harvesting strawflowers. Yukichi Noda, of this firm, says a number of plant tubs have been received from Japan recently.

June weddings, coming on the heels of Memorial day, have prevented anything like a slump in the florists' business. Podesta & Baldocchi have three weddings coming off this month in the ranks of their staff. A. F. Podesta, Jr., is to marry Miss Lillian Bowman; Emil Mangini is to marry Miss Alvina Kochler, and Adolph Bacigalupi will be married to Miss Elda Dal Bon. All the brides are San Franciscans.

J. A. Axell says that not only was Memorial day business good, but all orders were taken care of. "This year shipping orders showed a demand for higher-priced stock, especially roses, than ever before," said Mr. Axell. "The reason is, no doubt, to be found in the prevailing high express rates. People can't pay high rates on cheap flowers."

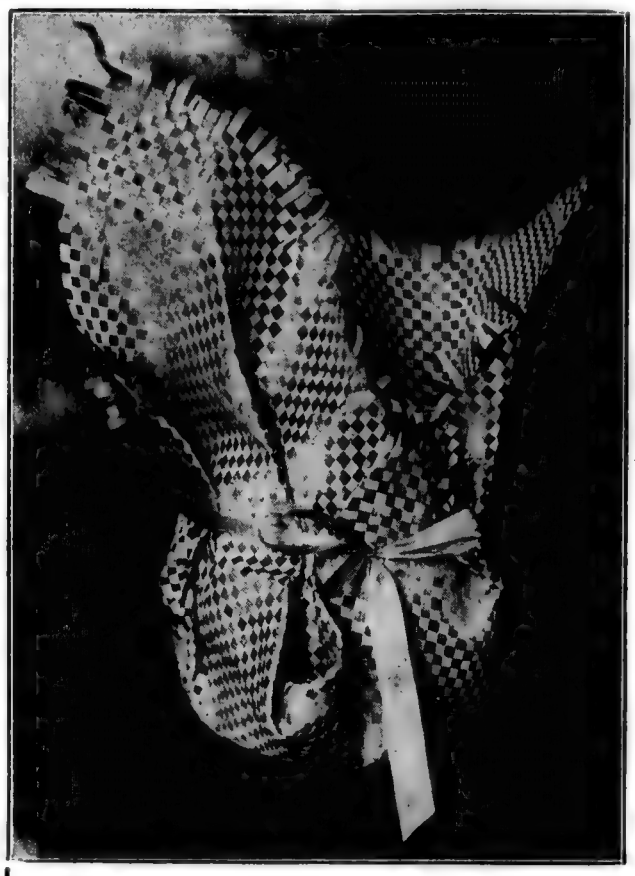
Fred Bertrand, of the Palace Hotel Flower Shop, says that the number of conventions to meet in San Francisco during June makes it safe to predict a good month for florists.

Brown & Kennedy base their belief on a prosperous June upon the number of wedding decoration orders that are on file at their store. Memorial day business surpassed their expectations.

Julius Eppstein believes that, given the right kind of customers, a florist can cultivate certain tastes in them. He prides himself on having established a reputation for selling orchids at his store in the St. Francis hotel.

Victor Ferrari, of Ferrari Bros., states that orchid crops are coming along favorably.

Ansel Bianchini, of Joseph's staff, is spending his vacation at Colma, among the growers. Miss Dolores Howard is at the Yosemite. George P. Wagner bought his wife a car as an anniversary gift.



Avansino Bros. & Co. have a new, specially built delivery car, which they have just put into commission. It is tan in color, lettered in Harding blue, and the body is designed to carry large loads.

E. Ramari, formerly with the MacRorie-McLaren Co., is now with an automobile firm.

Albert O. Stein reports a number of table decorations and orders for weddings.

F. C. Jaeger & Son have finished moving across the street, giving up their store at 152 Powell street.

Mr. and Mrs. Darbee left June 2 for a prolonged vacation trip by automobile

TACOMA, WASH.

The week of warm weather and sunshine just before Memorial day started the buying early. Carnations were sold out early, as were some varieties of roses, but, on the whole, the general stock held out well and all demands were met. A new bank building was dedicated early in the week and was literally banked with flowers sent by the bank's friends. The Hayden & Watson Co. did the decorative work. One design made of forget-me-nots was especially beautiful. Several big weddings are booked for next week.

The Tacoma Florists' and Gardeners' Association held a special meeting at the Commercial Club parlors May 27, with J. F. Ammann and H. V. Swenson as guests. The plans for their entertainment were changed because of the nearness of Memorial day, but a new arrangement proved quite satisfactory, and an automobile ride, followed by a chicken dinner, furnished plenty of entertainment. The evening's entertainment was enjoyable and highly instructive along the lines of coöperative advertising. All were so convinced of its practicability that everyone signed for the percentage basis plan.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

REPORT of the American Rose Society's annual meeting and its visit to the rose trial grounds at Bell, Md., appears on page 25 of this issue.

NEWS of the premium list of the exhibition of the American Peony Society at the time of its annual meeting, at Boston, June 18 and 19, appears on page 22 of this issue.

THE Poughkeepsie Nursery Co., Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has purchased the Sloan & Richardson property, on the south road. This property is to be stocked with trees and shrubbery. The sales office of the company will be maintained in its present location, on College avenue, until September. The grounds on College avenue have been purchased by Albert Tersteeg, who will take possession soon. Mr. Tersteeg's business will be known as the Tersteeg Nurseries.

THE G. & G. Nursery, recently established in South Pasadena, Cal., is a partnership formed by Mrs. Cecilia Gilbert, formerly at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., and George C. Groenewegen, from Amsterdam, Holland. They are engaged in nursery and landscape work. Mrs. Gilbert has had considerable experience as a grower and designer, and Mr. Groenewegen has spent many years as a landscape architect and has had the supervision of several large private estates.

EXCHANGE of opinion seems to develop that the A. A. N. wanted a slogan for advertising purposes, but got instead a trade-mark. Probably no one set out to arrive where the association now is. An advertising campaign, like an unbroken horse, sometimes carries the rider instead of being driven. But, when under control and properly guided, both horse and advertising will get one to the desired destination. A return to the first principles of what the members really sought or seek will enable everyone to get together on a new program at the Chicago meeting.

THE fourth annual convention of the Southwestern Association of Nurserymen will take place Tuesday and Wednesday, September 27 and 28, at Dallas, Tex. Nursery conditions in the southwest have been generally good and an increased membership and larger attendance are anticipated. Much business of importance is to come before the meeting. Dallas is a city of royal welcome. The officers of the association are: President, J. M. Ramsey, Austin, Tex.; vice-president, N. M. Shive, Cabot, Ark.; secretary-treasurer, George F. Verhalen, Scottsville, Tex. The executive committee is composed of Jim Parker, Tecumseh, Okla.; E. A. Knox, San Antonio, Tex., and the officers.

NOTED HOLLANDER COMING

A fresh attempt is to be made to obtain access to the United States for Holland's nursery stock and for a revision of the regulations of the Federal Horticultural Board for that purpose.

Dr. Ritzema Bos, the chief of the phytopathological service at Wageningen, Holland, on reaching his seventieth birthday, the age for the learned university men to retire whatever their energy or ability may be, was compelled to resign from his post, yet at his great age he intends to cross the Atlantic by the steamship Ryndam, leaving June 14, for the purpose of promoting the interests of Holland nurserymen by personal interviews with the authorities at Washington.

He is no stranger to this country, as once before, in 1898, he crossed by order of his government in a reverse case, to prevent the importation into Holland of certain plants conveying the destructive San Jose scale from America.

Holland exporters are advising their friends in the United States of the professor's plans, in the hope that he will find a committee to meet and support him.

HOLLAND NURSERY TRADE.

The nursery and plant trade in the Netherlands shows some of the depression to be noted in other lines, reports the consul general at Rotterdam, but on the whole the condition is considered satisfactory. Shipments to various countries so far this season have been lighter than usual, but trade prospects for the coming season are more promising. Exports to the United States have been small compared with last year, although in value the trade in 1920 was not up to the standard of the year before. The trade last year compared with that of the year before was as follows:

Articles	1919	1920
Growing flowers and plants	$ 131,314	$ 65,461
Trees and shrubs	1,257,836	1,659,954
Fruit trees	7,791	43,644
Other plants	464,433	140,413
Total	$1,861,374	$1,319,472

Most of the decreased shipments of trees and shrubs, which include roses and similar plants, were due to the collapse in the trade with Germany, which fell from $249,396 in 1919 to $23,212 in 1920, but the exports to the United States also fell from $173,178 in 1919 to $47,664 in 1920. Shipments to almost all countries other than Great Britain fell off materially, but exports to Great Britain increased from $158,772 to $473,785. There was also a general decrease in shipments of miscellaneous plants to all countries, but the decrease in shipments to the United States from $278,825 in 1919 to $35,075 accounted for most of the loss. Nearly all fruit trees, plants in pots, and the like went to Great Britain and Belgium.

PETERSON AND PEONIES.

Enthusiasm for the peony, which has inspired his thorough and accurate knowledge of this flower, in the case of William A. Peterson dates back thirty-five years, when, in 1886, he made his first trip to Europe with his parents. Four

That's the name of the new pink rose! The name will be Priscilla probably after the public has had it a while, but we have had to add the prefix to cover the rules of nomenclature.

In order to get someone who knows more about roses than we do to give an unbiased, honest opinion on the merits of this rose, we have placed 12 plants of it with each of the following rose growers:

months were spent visiting nurseries on the continent, following a tour of the British isles. Among those visited at Ghent was the nursery of Louis Van Houtte, where Mr. Peterson's father had been employed before coming to America.

On returning to this country, over 350 new varieties were bought. Mr. Peterson made a second trip alone in 1889 and this time he visited Paillet and also Croux & Sons.

When Krelage's catalogue was published, listing 500 peonies, with all the available data on each, Mr. Peterson assembled his resources and purchased every peony variety offered anywhere, and in 1900 he added to this collection.

Again, in 1906, Mr. Peterson made a visit to England, France and Holland, and also visited Good & Koeneman, in Germany, where he was able to purchase on the grounds over $3,000 worth of the most desirable kinds. To day Mr. Peterson has every variety of peony classified by a card-index system and a master list. The main divisions are in periods of blooming. These are early, midsummer and late. Each of these is divided into classes according to color and a variety is found to carry practically every available color, blooming in each of the three seasons. Thus any color can be obtained at any time.

But the search for new peonies still progresses at the Peterson Nursery, and William A. Peterson is probably as great an enthusiast over the peony today as he was thirty-five years ago, after his first trip to Europe.

The Market.

Since June is the month of commencements and weddings, business in the line of decorations and corsages has been good. Weddings have been fairly numerous and have helped to utilize the supply of cut stock. With the advent of summer and outdoor flowers, counter trade has diminished, so that a considerable supply of flowers is in the market. The majority of these, however, are outdoor flowers. Greenhouse-grown stock moves well. Among the former are delphiniums, peonies, daisies, coreopsis, pansies, pinks, rambler roses, etc.

Roses meet with fair approval at $6 to $8 per hundred for mediums. Carnations are good, considering the extremely hot weather we have been experiencing. They sell at $4 per hundred. Snapdragons are available at varied prices, according to quality. These are in good demand for decorations. Gladioli are not so plentiful, but the quality is good and they bring $12 per hundred. Sweet peas are practically gone. A few good Easter lilies are available at $2.40 per dozen.

Bedding stock has been in good demand this spring, the majority of florists having sold out early. Prices have held up well. Geraniums bring $3 per dozen retail; vinca vines, $3 and $4 per

I. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and Mr. Huddelson, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., called on the trade last week.

Temperley's have some good potted American Beauty rose bushes that have been in good demand.

The June meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held June 7 at the store of the Smith & Young Co. President L. E. Hitz exhibited some florists' posters of special merit that were made in the schools at Madison, Ind.

The A. Wiegand's Sons Co. has been displaying some excellent peonies, grown on the company's place west of the city.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. is putting in new concrete hotbeds at its Cumberland range. Irwin Bertermann has purchased a new pleasure car.

Memorial day was practically a second Mothers' day—a heavy demand and not enough stock. All available flowers were utilized, but, owing to the shortage in stock, there was not enough to go around. This shortage could be noticed in the cemeteries. Hot weather had brought the peonies into bloom too soon, and only a limited number were available. E. E. T.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HEATING WITH EXHAUST STEAM.

Practical and Profitable.

There are many advantages in heating greenhouses with exhaust steam, among which are the lessening of the danger of fire, the relief from the labor of firing and the removal of the cinders, and the securing of greater regularity in the heating. Where continuous service can be had from a power plant near by, this method of greenhouse heating is, at reasonable rates, a profitable one.

A flat rate per thousand square feet of glass or of radiation is sometimes given, but the cost of heating varies so much in different years, and according to the condition of the glazing and the character of the exposure, that no general estimate can be given on this basis. The method of determining the charge for heating used by most central heating plants is to base it upon the weight of the condensed water which is returned from the greenhouse coils, determined by a self-registering condensation meter.

The exact amount charged for the service varies with the cost of fuel at the given point, as well as with the amount of steam used. Thus, where fuel is cheap and where a large amount of steam is required, the charge may be as low as 40 or 45 cents per thousand pounds of condensation. On the other hand, the charge may be as much as 75 or 80 cents per thousand pounds of condensation where the cost of coal is high and the greenhouse space is small. In some sections it may be even more than this. There has been a marked advance in the charges during recent years, owing to the high prices of fuel. Ordinarily, the company owning the heating plant makes the connection, charging nothing for piping to the curb line, and asking the actual cost for labor and material for connecting with the steam mains inside the greenhouse.

If there is a small and, preferably,

THE LEADING GROWER IN VERMONT.
I have the Kroeschell Boiler six years; it is heating 17,000 sq. ft. glass. No other but a Plate Boiler for me.

WELL KNOWN IN THE GOLDEN WEST.
Our No. 2 Kroeschell is doing fine work and I am well pleased with it.

ONE OF BOSTON'S WELL KNOWN GROWERS.
The Kroeschell has taken the place of four cast iron boilers at a big saving in coal. We are using it now for the fifth year. The longer we use it the better we like it.

THE PLANT KING OF THE WEST.
I have used Kroeschell Boilers ever since I built my first greenhouse. They have always given me the very best satisfaction and I believe them as good boilers as money can buy.

OHIO'S CELEBRATED CYCLAMEN SPECIALIST.
After using your No. 12 Kroeschell Boiler I came to the conclusion that had I to install more boilers it would be the Kroeschell and no other. It really is a pleasure to heat, no trouble to get the desired heat in a very short time.

THE QUALITY PLACE OF BOSTON.
Regarding the Kroeschell, it is the best we have ever had and satisfactory beyond our expectations. It heats up especially quick and has saved us considerably already in the price of fuel. When we are in need of another boiler we will give the Kroeschell the first consideration.
(Signed) WM. W. EDGAR CO., WAVERLEY, MASS.

A BIG MAN IN THE FLORICULTURAL WORLD.
The Kroeschell Boiler I installed last year usually runs from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m. without attention. I do not have the least trouble to keep temperatures in the coldest weather. The boiler has given entire satisfaction.
The Kroeschell is the best boiler we have ever handled.
(Signed) CHARLES TOTTY, MADISON, NEW JERSEY.

A FAMOUS ILLINOIS ROSE RANGE.
In speaking of the Kroeschell Boiler as an economical greenhouse boiler I cannot say too much. Personally I have had the pleasure or misfortune to fire nearly every make of G. H. Boiler on the market and I can safely say the Kroeschell is the best of them all.
(Signed) CHAS. McCAULEY, RIVERBANK GREENHOUSES, GENEVA, ILL.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST MUSHROOM PLANT.
We spent $100,000 in building and equipping the largest modern mushroom plant in the world. We purchased in every instance the best of everything we could get, and the fact that we installed a Kroeschell Boiler to furnish our heat is sufficient evidence of our opinion of same.
Since installing this boiler and operating it we have never had any reason to change our opinion.
(Signed) FALMOUTH MUSHROOM CELLARS, INC., FALMOUTH, MASS.

The carnation range of Mr. Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, consists of nearly 70,000 sq. ft. glass and the water plant is heated by a No. 14 and No. 15 Kroeschell Boiler and Kroeschell Generator. The product of the plant is known throughout the West for its fine quality. Mr. Z. has used different kinds of boilers. As for the Kroeschell, he says: "I think the Kroeschell Boilers are the best boilers a florist can buy."

This Fairfield Unloading Machine is saving money for its owner

Don't shovel dollars away

The cost of the coal you use is high enough without adding $8.00 to $10.00 per car for merely unloading it.

This man is losing money for his employer

If you are located on a railroad switch, and use at least 100 tons of coal per month, you need a Fairfield Coal Unloading Machine. This machine is not an experiment. Hundreds are in use and cutting handling costs in half.

The Fairfield unloads from hopper-bottom cars, into an elevated storage bin, onto the ground, or into your inside bins if the location permits. Unloads a car in an hour to an hour and a half. Does the work of 20 to 30 shovelers.

It is automatic in operation—and needs no skilled labor in attendance. One man can keep coal flowing freely from car and clean up car.

The Fairfield is mechanically simple; has practically no upkeep expense and is built for a lifetime of hard, continuous service.

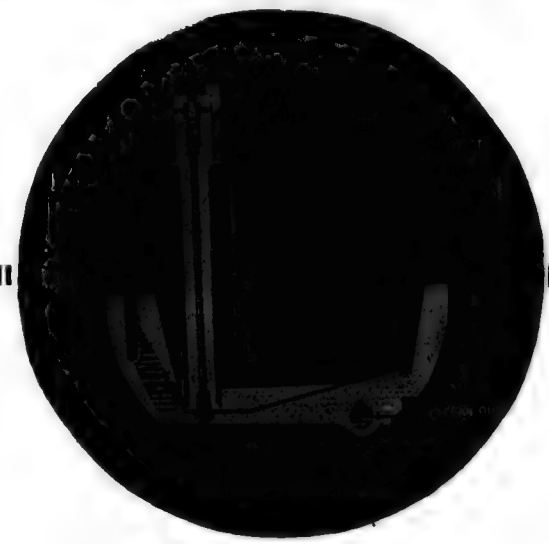
FAIRFIELD
COAL HANDLING MACHINERY

a cool house located at a lower level than the others, it is often advisable to put in "economy coils," through which the condensed water will circulate before going back to the heating plant. In this way the efficiency of the steam can be increased fully ten per cent.

When it is possible to carry the condensation back to the heating plant at a temperature of 150 degrees, as may be done when the distance is not great and the return pipe is properly insulated, this permits a considerable saving of fuel, as compared with the cost of raising the temperature of well water from 50 degrees to 212 degrees. We are told that it requires the expenditure of 967 degrees to form steam from water at 32 degrees, and on this basis, while approximately 950 degrees will be required to turn well water at its usual temperature into steam, only 850 degrees will be required if the water has an initial temperature of 150 degrees, and still less if it is returned at a higher temperature. On this basis an allowance of ten per cent, less any increased cost for returning the water, might be made, as compared with the cost when it is turned into the drains.

A Nebraskan's Example.



Acting on advice obtained through the Greenhouse Heating department of The Review in 1919, F. J. Ayres, of David City, Neb., now uses this method of heating his houses and pronounces it "sure a success." The houses heated include a main house, 34x100 feet, with a walk down the center across the width. On each side of this walk are six benches, forty-six feet long and forty-two inches wide. Joining this main house is a small house, 18x76 feet, where ground beds are used. Against the walls of both the main house and the small house is a small service house, 18x24 feet. This makes, practically, a house 100x100 feet square, having a glass area of about 5,000 feet.

He secured a 15-year contract with the city council to connect with the exhaust pipe of the city light plant. He was to make all connections and agreed to return all condensation to the plant's cistern. The cistern supplies the boilers in the light plant at a saving of about $1.50 per day for boiler compound which it was forced to use before the connections were made. The light plant comprises two 150-horsepower boilers and two 100-horsepower engines. It gives day and night service, the full twenty-four hours.

Connections.

The exhaust steam is carried from the engines in an 8-inch pipe, and an oil separator was connected on. An 8-inch back-pressure valve was attached, but employed only once last winter, when the temperature outside registered 16 degrees below zero. Connection was made with an 8x4½x8-inch tee.

The 4½-inch joint in the tee connects with a 4½-inch pipe which runs into the greenhouse. There is a gate valve in this pipe. After this pipe leaves the engine room it drops down to two and one-half feet under the ground. It is enclosed in wood logs in order to obtain the proper insulation. When it reaches the greenhouses it is brought up level with the gutters. It is split when it enters the greenhouse, a 4x4½x4-inch tee carrying the 4-inch pipes in two directions along the sides of the house. One of these pipes runs down to the corner of the small house, turns and

Is Your Steam Dry?

Dry steam is essential to even heat. Moisture in your pipe lines is an obstacle to proper temperature in your range. It leaves your end runs lukewarm. In cold weather considerable damage may result from this lack of heat.

insures dry steam—simplifies your heating problem. It is a positive-acting steam trap that will quickly and completely remove all condensation from your pipe lines. Dry, hot steam races through your mains to the very last run—unhindered by any heat-killing condensation.

The extra large capacity of the Fisher Trap enables it to operate more forcibly—less frequently.

A perfect water seal is maintained at all times. There is no steam leakage in the Fisher Trap.

The Fisher Trap has proven its superiority in thousands of greenhouses throughout the country. Several of the best known greenhouse manufacturers use the Fisher Trap exclusively in their installations.

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

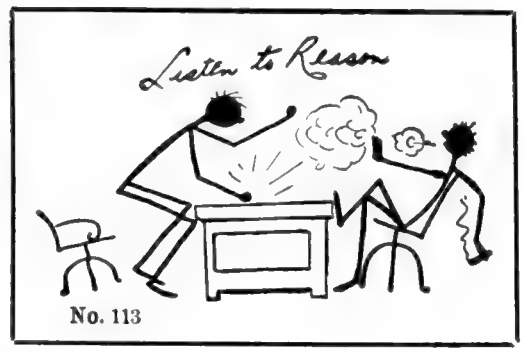
runs down to the end of the large house. The other pipe runs about halfway through the small service room, turns and runs to the large house, then turns and runs to the side of the house and again turns and runs along the wall to the end of the house. In the small house there is one coil of five 1½-inch pipes along one side of the house. In the large house there are, on each side, six coils of four 1¼-inch pipes, one coil under each bench. These coils run from the mains, at the sides of the house, to the center. At the center is the return, which is of 1½-inch pipe. The return is made by gravity and runs to the cistern, where the condensation is deposited. A Huffman No. 5 valve is used to take the air from the mains and a Huffman No. 10 to take the air from the coils. The latter is at the last connection of returns.



Plenty of Heat.

Only five to seven of the twelve coils under the benches were used all last winter, except on two nights when the thermometer registered below zero. And those two nights the temperature of the houses was kept at 58 degrees. Mr. Ayres lives a mile from his greenhouse. He goes home at night and returns in the morning, finding things all right, with a nice temperature in the houses. He has no firing or minding furnaces to bother him. He also can have steam any time, either summer or winter, simply by going into the engine room and turning on the gate valve. This is exceptionally advantageous in case of an early or late frost.

Furthermore, he has no coal bills to bother with, no coal storage room to allow for, and the likelihood of fire is lowered to the minimum. Now that so many industrial enterprises are seeking the small towns, there ought to be many chances for florists to profit by using the exhaust steam method for heating their greenhouses.

PLIBRICO
FURNACE LINING

Because: From the day he installs this air-tight, fuel-saving, heat-resisting furnace lining he no longer feeds the profits of his business to the flames. A furnace lining full of joints is bound to result in loss of money through waste of heat and rapid deterioration. PLIBRICO, being jointless, has no cracks in which clinkers may lodge, no joints where the thief disintegration may hide.

Then, too, PLIBRICO is simple to install. No skilled labor is required. PLIBRICO, being plastic, is easily applied by any man who knows how to use a plasterer's trowel and a mallet. When baked and vitrified, a finished and permanent job results. In the many testimonials we have from SATISFIED customers, the simplicity of installation is always dwelt upon.

PLIBRICO is especially adapted for use on front door-arches, side walls, baffles, etc. It is also excellent and durable for patching broken fire-brick settings.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

This Memorial day was the best one Duluth has ever seen. All through the week stock was moving fast, and the out-of-town trade in plants was heavy. Although stock was not up to standard in cut flowers, the sales were large. Roses seemed to have lost their "pep," and carnations were rather sleepy. Peonies were good and sold well. Sweet peas, lilacs, larkspur, marguerites, gardenias, cornflowers, forget-me-nots and valley were useful in making combination bouquets. Magnolia and galax wreaths were a good selling line. The bedding season was at its height, and a large quantity of plants was sold.

Various Notes.

J. J. Le Borious reports business good. He is well equipped to handle the bedding trade this year. His houses are well stocked with pelargoniums, geraniums, vincas, etc. He also has a fine house of tomato plants in 4-inch pots.

The Duluth Floral Co. had a wonderful business, both in plants and cut flowers. The staff was kept working late hours most of the week. In the seed department, things have been lively, with a marked increase over last year.

Matthew Scholtz, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., was a visitor to Duluth last week.

Miss Annie Rehbein, formerly of the Duluth Floral Co., has taken a position with J. J. Le Borious. J. E. S.

FOLEY BETTER BUILT AND HEATED GREENHOUSES

Point by Point—

In both the iron-frame and the pipe-frame constructions, from the foundation walls to the ridge cap, you will find so many points of superiority in construction, as well as detail, that you may join the big group of growers who send their orders to "FOLEY'S." They know that here they will get more for their dollars than anywhere else. Yes, comparisons are odious if you cannot dominate the comparison.

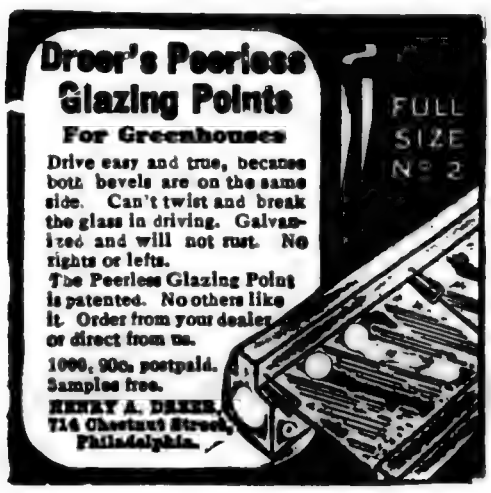
The Market.

The aftermath of the Memorial day business resulted in little better conditions than those of the previous week. The cut flower business proved a poor profit-making investment, and, were it not for the bedding stock and blooming plants, most of the shops would have little on the right side of the ledger to show for all the work. The home-grown stock brought the best returns; the carnations and roses which were shipped in were so soft that little was gained on them. While most of the growers moved their stock, the store men were loaded with unsold stock. It becomes more manifest, as the years roll by, that Mothers' day will take the place of Memorial day. The new generation does not seem so interested in Memorial day as it might be, and the day is given over to pleasure, instead of to showing reverence for the departed heroes.

Various Notes.



The Helmer Flower Shop had some nice gladioli and early outdoor flowers. Business has been holding its own.

The Century Flower Shop entertained a "transom" visitor last week. The receipts of the day had been left in the register, which was quite fortunate for the uninvited guest.

The Scottwood Greenhouse had another nice wedding last week, in which many orchids were used. Planting business is at its height at this store.

Metz & Bateman, Scottwood Greenhouse and the Century Flower Shop all did a big business for the funeral of the president of the Paragon Refining Co.

SKINNER SYSTEM OF IRRIGATION

4 Moves Water an Acre

Four moves of our 200-foot Portable Line water an acre.

Each move waters a space 200 feet long by 50 feet wide.

It takes two men about 20 minutes to move it.

It costs you complete, exactly $88.25, which price includes pipe, nozzles, hand turning union, globe valve, roller bearing, hangers for every 15 feet; and flushing valve.

And speaking of pipe posts, old pipe, inch or inch and a quarter, driven 18 inches in the ground, is all there is to that; 14 are all you need for each 200-foot space — or 56 for the entire acre.

Of course, you can do as Frank Oechslin did, as shown in this photo; and put on crates.

But by far the handiest, quickest way is to have the pipe posts always there, ready for quick shifting of the nozzle line.

With an acre Skinnerized, so you can have rain when you want it, you can always double and generally triple its yield.

It pays for itself over and over the very first season.

Give us the length and width of the piece of ground you want to irrigate, and we will send you some interesting facts.

The Market.

Business took a slump last week and stock has piled up nearly all week. Saturday, June 4, was the only day that relieved the congestion. A number of outdoor flowers made their appearance, such as gaillardias, daisies, larkspurs, coreopsis, bachelor's buttons, etc. Roses have been received in good quality, while carnations have been getting smaller and are not so good. The hot weather has made it extremely hard to hold any stock, and this condition makes it hard to get the shipped stock through in good shape.

Various Notes.

Frank Ritzenthaler, of the Knoble Bros. Co., is reported seriously ill.

F. Pawlak has opened a new store on Fleet avenue.

James Wilson, of the Wilson Florist Co., has returned from his trip to California and is back in the harness again.

I. Rosnosky, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, was a recent visitor.

There was an important meeting of the Florists' Club at the Hollenden, Monday, June 6, in which the coming annual picnic was discussed. There will be more about it later. W. A. R.

CLYDE, O.

The Memorial day business was good, larger than in 1920, and would have been still better had there been more geraniums in bloom. The cheaper grades in cut flowers sold best.

A. Doebel & Sons and Brown's Greenhouse report a highly satisfactory business for the holiday.

The store at 424 Superior street, Toledo, O., established by S. N. Peck and operated for the last year by Edith D. Navarre, has been purchased by Hall's Greenhouse, Clyde, O. The new owners took possession May 25, and Frank F. Hall, who is in charge, reports a good Memorial day business. The new store will have the name of Hall's Flowers. E. E. H.
